Gen. Butler Clashes with Haitian Envoy

MAKES PROTEST ON PATTERN OF MUSSOLINI CASE

Takes Exception to Diplomat's Story.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Pictures on page 10.)

Washington, D. C., April 24.—[Special.]—Even as the navy department called upon him only three months ago to explain certain words he had spoken about Premier Mussolini, Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler of the United States marine corps today called upon the navy department to investigate words reported to have been spoken about him by M. Dantes Bellegarde, minister to the United States from Haiti.

In a recent issue of a Washington paper Minister Bellegarde was quoted as saying that the Haitian fort for the taking of which Maj. Gen. Butler received one of his two congressional medals of honor, never existed.

The general wants the navy department to find out whether M. Bellegarde was accurately quoted or not. And in order to make his point all is plainer his letter was a paraphrase, almost word for word, of the letter which the department sent to him asking whether or not he had been accurately quoted when he mentioned the Italian premier as a hit and run driver.

Will It Work Both Ways?

It is Maj. Gen. Butler's purpose, as he is said to have expressed it, to learn whether the navy and state departments are interested only in protecting foreigners who happen to be officials by officers in the United States services, or whether they will also protect a United States officer when he is attacked by a foreign diplomat.

At his home at the marine base at Quantico tonight, the general made it plain that he had not demanded an apology, at least not as yet. But he was vigorously positive that he wants to get the truth of the matter.

The article that started the affair was a copyright interview in the Washington Herald of April 13, reporting the remarks made by Minister Bellegarde upon his return from a trip to his home land.

The article refers to "one of the myths" about Maj. Gen. Butler and mentions a controversy over his veracity.

Calls Captured Fort Imaginary.

Minister Bellegarde is quoted as saying that the general is "very imaginary." He refers to Maj. Gen. Butler's story of the attack on Fort Riviera.

It was for leading the capture of Fort Riviera, during the subjugation of Haiti in 1915, that Maj. Gen. Butler received the second medal of honor, which made him the only man ever to have been twice decorated with the nation's highest award for valor.

Minister Bellegarde, says the article, has added:

"We in Haiti have all wondered about that. For there is no Fort Riviera. There never was. We have looked all over our island and there is no such thing.

"However, for taking Fort Riviera to get the congressional medal of honor the second time. He is the only man in the United States to get it twice—fighting marine!"

At the Haitian legation tonight it was said that M. Bellegarde could not be disturbed.

Uses Navy's Language.

The first point in Gen. Butler's letter, almost exactly similar to that which the navy made to him, is:

Did Minister Bellegarde make the remarks attributed to him regarding Butler's record in Haiti?

The second point is to the effect that since it is inconceivable that a diplomatic officer accredited to the United States should have made such a remark, what, if anything, did he say?

The third point, again paraphrasing the navy department's letter, is: What does the navy intend to do to protect its high ranking officers from statements such as this made by diplomats accredited to the United States?

Calls It Slur on Navy.

Gen. Butler also points out that the award of the congressional medal was made upon the recommendation of the navy department so that Minister Bellegarde's purported statement challenges the veracity of the navy department as much as it does Gen. Butler's.

The Butler letter is expected to precipitate a storm, not only in army and marine corps circles but

CITY MARSHALS PARADERS FOR JUBILEE MARCH

Four Great Units Are Organized.

CHICAGO JUBILEE.

The Chicago Jubilee committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce, No. 1 La Salle street, telephone Franklin 7700, will supply all information to those planning to participate in the Chicago Jubilee May 11.

The program of the Chicago Jubilee, colorful celebration of the revived spirit of the metropolis which will be held in the downtown district and throughout all the outlying business centers of the city from May 11 to May 20, yesterday began to assume definite shape.

MAJ. GEN. PARKER

A preliminary schedule of the parade which will formally open the Jubilee on the evening of Monday, May 11, was announced last night. The parade will consist of four major units, including bands, choral groups, uniformed divisions, and floats, and will be led by Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the Sixth corps army area, as grand marshal. Other developments, some of them tentative, were:

1 A spacious reviewing stand, probably in Michigan avenue, from which governors of five central western states, a federal cabinet member, Mayor Cermak, and leading officials and citizens may be invited to review the parade.

2 Flight of the military dirigible, the Los Angeles, over Chicago during one or more days of the pageant. The Washington bureau of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has already directed inquiries toward bringing the ship here.

3 Dedication of the site of the new $10,000,000 outer drive bridge by the Lincoln Park and South Park boards.

4 Extension of the Jubilee to May 20 to include the huge air maneuvers on the lake front by 600 planes of the army air corps. The Jubilee was originally to have ended May 16.

5 The unanimous pledge of all outlying districts, represented by chambers of commerce, business men's associations, clubs, and civic and neighborhood organizations, to participate. More than 3,000 letters were mailed yesterday to outlying leaders by the coördinating committee, of which Frederick J. Ashley is chairman.

Formation of the Parade.

According to tentative plans, the Jubilee parade will start at Superior street and Michigan avenue. It will wind southward through the loop, past the reviewing stand and disband at 23d street. The procession will follow in this order:

FIRST UNIT—Fire and police department delegations, Great Lakes Naval band, Naval reserve, Illinois National Guard.

SECOND UNIT—R. O. T. C. corps, Boy Scouts, Sea Scouts, Catholic Boy Scouts and band, twelve bugle and drum corps.

THIRD UNIT—Senn High school championship band, decorated floats, Scoten Kittie band, Auburn Park Lions' band.

FOURTH UNIT—Veterans' organizations, American Legion, auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars and bands, civic organizations, trade displays.

Big Band to Escort Marshal.

Leading the march will be Maj. Gen. Parker, grand marshal, his parade staff, an appropriate escort, and a 500 man union band of the Chicago Federation of Musicians headed by James C. Petrillo, president.

This schedule of the parade is, of course, preliminary and subject to expansion, and the matter of the reviewing stand is to be taken up later. Appearance here of the navy dirigible will be determined both by weather conditions at the time and more immediately by Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations.

Admiral Pratt has before him a re-

Miss Helen Herron, 20 years old, a sophomore in the school of music, Northwestern university, was taken to the Evanston hospital yesterday suffering from poisoning. She was found in a dazed condition in the Sigma Alpha Iota sorority house, 1919 Orrington avenue, by her roommate, Miss Peggy Parker. The latter took Miss Herron to the hospital. According to Dr. Marshall S. Underhill, Miss Herron will recover.

Miss Parker told the police that Miss Herron "was despondent and in a poor frame of mind." Dean of Women Florence S. Robnett could not be reached, but her husband said that he believed Miss Herron had taken poison by mistake. The co-ed's home is in Mount Vernon, O.

Take 5 Million in Dope from a Ship at N. Y.

New York, April 24.—[Special.]—A clever dope smuggling plot was upset today when police seized a $5,000,000 shipment of morphine brought here on the Hamburg-American liner Milwaukee just before the stuff was to have been carted away by its illicit consignees.

The narcotics were in seventeen packing cases weighing a total of 232 pounds and were consigned to a mysterious "J. T." in this city.

A decoy rumor tipping the customs officials that a huge dope shipment was due on an ocean liner had them searching the French steamship Ile de France for three days.

Morphine Laden Cases.

While 135 inspectors and 20 workmen went over the Ile de France the morphine laden cases were unloaded from the hold of the Milwaukee.

Business rivalry among Broadway dope peddlers is believed to have prompted the last minute telephone call to Police Captain Henry Scherb that resulted in the big seizure.

The three day search of the Ile de France netted 110 pints of assorted liquors, market value about $250. The combined salaries of the agents amounted to about $4,000, overtime work by stevedores in rushing the cargo out today will cost the line $800 and the loss to consignees by the three day delays in the delivery of the entire cargo, worth $200,000, is not calculable.

Bottles Owned by Crew.

"The agents are perfectly within their legal rights in effecting such a search," Jean Tillier, general representative for the French line, said today, "but it is easy to see that if such a policy is applied to every ship there will have to be a rise in freight rates to the United States, and shippers will learn that this country, like certain South American republics, is a land in which it is impossible to guarantee deliveries at any set date."

The 110 bottles seized were scattered among 900 members of the big liner's crew.

Bandits Take 4,500 Pounds of Lead at Smelting Plant

Two robbers early yesterday took 90 bars of lead, weighing 50 pounds each and with a total value of $450, from the Honikamp Brothers Smelting company at 3951 Wentworth avenue. During the two and half hours required for the robbery, Thomas Day, the night watchman, was forced to sit on a box and watch the bandits load the heavy bars in a wagon.

EXPLOSION SETS MAIL CAR AFIRE; BOMB IS BLAMED

North Dorset, Vt., April 24.—(AP)—An explosion thought to have been caused by a bomb in a sack of mail fired a combination baggage and mail car on a Rutland railroad passenger train bound from Troy, N. Y., to Rutland tonight.

The car and all its contents, including several sacks of mail and a few trunks, were destroyed, but the mail clerk, William A. Goddard of Rutland, and the baggage master, Joseph Pilon of Rutland, escaped. The train crew detached the burning car from the rest of the train before any of the passenger cars caught fire.

Airplane and Bird Crash 5,000 Feet Up; Pilot Safe

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 24. — Pilot Officer John Baxter today narrowly escaped death when a royal air force plane piloted by him collided with a bird at an altitude of 5,000 feet. Baxter was emerging from a cloud when he saw a black object rushing toward him. The plane and the bird collided with a terrific shock. The propeller was smashed. Baxter made a forced landing on a cricket field, the only space for miles around available for landing.

Former Kaiser Ill with Cold, but Goes Outdoors

Big Industries Oppose Wage Cut: Lamont

Washington, D. C., April 24.—[Special.]—The principal industries of the United States are not considering reduction of wage scales, according to Secretary Lamont of the department of commerce, who recently ordered a canvass of leading manufacturers following rumors that such a reduction was being considered. On the other hand, the secretary said in a statement issued today, there was found a general belief that industry would best be served by maintaining present pay schedules. His brief statement said:

"I have canvassed the principal industries and I find no movement to reduce the rate of wages.

"On the contrary, there is a desire to support the situation in every way."

Recent announcement from the White House emphasized President Hoover's satisfaction in the general acceptance by industry of the promises made to the President at a conference with business, industrial, and labor leaders late in 1929 that every endeavor would be made to maintain wages and to prevent labor trouble.

Only Smaller Plants Reducing.

Reports of some wage cuts were received by both the department of labor and the office of Arthur Woods, chairman of the President's committee for employment, but these were said to be almost entirely in smaller industrial plants. The labor bureau reports some 22,000 men so affected in February. Mr. Woods, however, said that the number of wage cuts were decidedly less than in any previous depression.

"The big employers," Woods said, "are not cutting wages, but some of the smaller ones are."

Many employers, he said, were keeping wage rates up and providing part time work for all of their employes instead of laying off some or reducing rates and operating full time.

There also were encouraging reports of increased employment.

The labor department said the weekly pay roll of some 13,000 industries increased in March by $13,500,000 over January, indicating more men were being put on full time work and including an increase of 152,000 on the payrolls.

Chicago Employment Increases.

Reports from twenty-four states reaching the office of Mr. Woods disclosed that Chicago was among the communities which registered slight industrial gain during April. Wide sectional differences in employment conditions, showing indications of slight to genuine improvement in various areas, with some sections noting no changes, was apparent in the reports reaching Mr. Woods.

"The large industrial centers, while conditions are better, are slower to improve than are the smaller communities. The drought stricken area shows no change in conditions. The public attitude is reported greatly improved. Illinois, represented by Chicago in the survey, shows an improvement of about three-tenths of 1 per cent in all industries during April.

"There is still considerable unemployment in Michigan, but the number of persons employed by 440 firms in March shows an increase of two and five-tenths per cent over February."

Schools Close for Spring Vacation; Open May 4

Classes in the Chicago public schools will not convene again until May 4, William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, announced yesterday. The days intervening are the regular spring vacation or "moving week."

MAYOR SEEKING CUT IN COSTS, TAX REDUCTION

Commission to Aid in Finance Study.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Mayor Cermak returned yesterday morning from a two weeks' vacation in Florida and immediately plunged into what he considers the most pressing tasks of his new office.

A. A. SPRAGUE.

His first objective is to curb expenses and his ultimate goal is to reduce taxes. He announced definitely that he will have the personnel of his fiscal commission ready to submit to the city council at the inaugural session next Monday evening. The commission will be composed of from ten to fifteen representative citizens of experience and ability in business and financial matters who are willing to work for the community.

To Study City First.

The commission is to make a thorough investigation first of the city government proper, but later the mayor hopes its activity will be extended to embrace the other major local governments, such as the schools, county, drainage district, and park boards.

"Because," as Mayor Cermak explained, "the property owners will gain no relief if the city expenses are curtailed and the expenditures of the other bodies are accordingly increased. There can be no reduction in taxes unless expenses are cut."

Mr. Cermak's views were said to be a little disappointing to ward leaders who had hoped that he would consider his most urgent job the dividing of the spoils of the election. He conferred for three hours with Commissioner of Public Works Sprague and Corporation Counsel Busch, but the conversation concerned itself almost exclusively with right spending of public funds.

Sprague May Be Shifted.

Later the mayor said that he may have a few cabinet appointments for the council Monday, but that was uncertain. He hoped to have a city controller and it was reported that he prefers to shift Col. A. A. Sprague to the job of president of the board of local improvements rather than leave him in his present position of commissioner of public works.

In addition to the major street improvements, involving millions, the board of local improvements will award the contract for the $45,000,000 subway in State street on which the mayor is concerned about the expenditure.

Mayor Cermak appreciates more keenly than most citizens the financial difficulties which appear to be just around the corner for several local governments. Fourteen thousand school teachers went without pay yesterday because the necessary $2,775,000 to meet the pay rolls is not in the city treasury.

Borrow to Pay Employés.

The needed $400,000 to meet the pay rolls of civil service employés of the schools is not to be had. The city proper paid the policemen and firemen this week with $1,000,000 borrowed from its own funds. It has been unable to sell tax anticipation warrants to the banks or the public. An offering of half a million in tax warrants by the county has gone begging, although a plan of temporary relief was worked out yesterday for the county employés. The fees for the collection and extension of taxes are to be used for pay rolls.

President L. E. Myers of the school board said yesterday: "I do not know when we will be able to get the cash to pay school employés. Other indications of the precarious condition of the local municipal treasuries will undoubtedly be washed to the surface within a fortnight. Not the least of these is the present hostile attitude of property owners against paying taxes due May 15."

Public Must Be Informed.

In a chat on the subject Mayor Cermak forecast what is coming unless immediate and earnest steps are taken to remedy conditions and get the pertinent facts before the public.

So intensely does he feel on the subject that he desires to make some plain statements on expenditures in his inaugural message. He plans to confer with a number of bankers today, if they can be gathered together, but otherwise on Monday. He desires their active aid at once.—Columns upon columns have been printed urging wholesale consolidation of the tax expending bodies. Many of the suggestions involve enactment of new laws and in some instances changes in the state constitution.

Wants Results Now.

The new mayor would like to see accomplishments along that line, but is practical politician enough to know such a scheme would take several years. He said that he desires results as soon as they can be obtained. While he would have his commission supplied with engineers, accountants, lawyers, and other experts and wants a thorough job, he wants expeditious work. He said that he is confident that the expense of the commission can be obtained, part from the mayor's contingent fund and part from savings he plans in city expenditures.

The inaugural on Monday is to be a much more elaborate affair than is the usual induction into office of a mayor. The proceedings for one hour are to be broadcast by the National Broadcasting company over an extensive network of stations.

Ex-Mayors to Speak.

The council is to meet as scheduled at 8 o'clock and the usual business transacted. At 9:30 o'clock the distinguished guests are to be placed upon the air. These will be former Mayors Carter H. Harrison and Edward F. Dunne and United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis. When they have finished, Mayor Cermak is scheduled to read his message.

The festivities will be held in the council chamber. For his speech Mayor Cermak has had material collected from several sources that he may say something definite and positive rather than the usual generalities which are rehashed from the previous campaign speeches.

The speech has not been written, but five phases of it were discussed with Mayor Cermak yesterday. He is reported to have vetoed three of the suggestions made to him. He told his advisers that he would not utter a boastful sentence for the aid of the party.

Will Talk About Chicago.

This he followed by sending word to former Mayors Harrison and Dunne and Senator Lewis that he deemed it both good taste and good citizenship to talk about Chicago in their speeches.

Mayor Cermak thought yesterday that he might discuss a few conditions in the city government on which he thinks the public is poorly or not at all advised. If he decides to treat these subjects—and it will be decided probably today or tomorrow—the new mayor may make some statements of interest to property owners, other than those relating specifically to fiscal matters.

Admission by Card Only.

Admission to the council chamber will be by card only. In response to thousands of requests for tickets to the inaugural an order was issued yesterday for the printing of 4,000 tickets granting the bearers admission to the main floor corridor of the city hall. Loud speakers will be installed to carry the speeches to the corridor.

It had been planned originally to allow persons to enter on the main floor without tickets, but because of the crowd expected it was deemed necessary to grant admission only by ticket.

Petty Grafting Must Stop.

Grand jury action against any city employé who requests payment from persons in return for service was promised yesterday by Mayor Cermak. Through his personal secretary, Henry Bonnenschein, the mayor announced that petty grafting by employés must be stopped.

The mayor also ordered the removal of fire alarm instruments from the homes of "fire fans" who have been accorded the privilege in the past of having the alarms in their homes. These alarms, which were under the jurisdictions of the department of gas and electricity, have been maintained and operated at the city's expense.

BURNS HIS AUTO TO GET INSURANCE.

Carbondale, Ill., April 24.—[Special.]—Grover Casper, Cobden farmer, was found guilty in the Circuit court today of setting fire to his auto to collect insurance.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES REFUSE TO AID CERMAK CLEANUP

Mayor May Carry Fight to Legislature.

Lewis E. Myers, president of the board of education, and some members of the board have refused to support Mayor Cermak in his campaign of weeding out jobholders who received their appointments by virtue of having been supporters of the old city hall machine, it was learned yesterday.

Mayor Cermak, in an interview yesterday, indicated that he would persist in his efforts to replace those employés whom he thinks should be replaced and that, if the school board refuses to coöperate, particularly in enlargement of the board, he will carry his fight to the state legislature.

Sullivan Slated to Go.

Chief among those whom the mayor has slated to go are Thomas V. Sullivan ,school attorney, and Ernest E. Withall, business manager, both of whom draw annual salaries of $12,000. Sullivan, whose reputation as an orator caused him to be brought from St. Paul in 1927 to speak in the mayoralty campaign, recently outmaneuvered the former attorney, James T. Todd, replacing the latter as school attorney. Sullivan had been a special school attorney appointed by the former mayor.

Withall is also known as a supporter of the previous administration. He has been Republican committeeman in the 15th ward for several years. It is understood that Myers refused to aid in securing the desired resignations and he is reported to have the support of the board in this stand. When questioned about the matter, Myers said, "It is my policy to do all in my power to keep an employé if his salary is not excessive and if he is efficient, regardless of the political lineup."

De Lue Slated to Go.

Nate De Lue, assistant to Withall at $6,000 a year, was certified as a civil service employé just before the end of the last administration and is also on the list for replacement. De Lue, who is also known as "Col. De Lue," rose into prominence when a canceled check payable to him and signed by Jack Zuta, vice and gambling lord, was found in one of Zuta's safe deposit boxes.

The first sign of opposition by President Myers was his refusal two weeks ago to cause the dismissal of Edward Schneider, who is in charge of assigning janitors and janitresses, and Peter Nix, chief clerk in the engineering department. The probationary periods of both these men in the civil service expired a week ago yesterday and now they can be removed only after trial. Maj. Hamlet C. Ridgeway, purchasing agent, another city hall appointee, is also scheduled for discharge.

Dawes Granted Leave of Absence to Visit Chicago

Washington, D. C., April 24.—(AP)—Ambassador Charles G. Dawes has been granted a leave of absence by his own request by Secretary Stimson and will return shortly to the United States. The ambassador in making the request said he desired to attend to some personal affairs at home. State department officials said they presumed it was in connection with the Chicago fair, in which he is interested. No conferences have been arranged for him in Washington.

BERRYS RESUME DIVORCE BATTLE ON DRINK CHARGE

H. Roy Berry, head of a real estate firm at 77 West Washington street, and his estranged wife, Mrs. Frances M. Berry, 200 East Chestnut street, resumed their divorce battle yesterday in Superior Judge De Sort's court after efforts to effect a friendly settlement failed. Berry originally sued for divorce on grounds of drunkenness and Mrs. Berry countered with a cross-bill making the same charge.

Jack Frost, 11358 Stephenson avenue, testified yesterday for Berry. He said that he formerly had been golf caddy for Dr. Fred Poynter, who owned a cottage adjacent to the Olympia Fields Country club. On the morning of Labor day, 1929, Frost said, he went to Dr. Poynter's cottage, as was his custom, to awaken the physician.

Frost said he entered and found that Dr. Poynter was not there, but in another room he discovered Mrs. Berry asleep. She awakened, he said, asking for a drink of liquor. Frost said he went to a nearby cottage and returned with a half glass of gin, which Mrs. Berry drank in one gulp.

STATE REVOKES LICENSES OF TWO CHICAGO BROKERS

David H. Jackson, head of the securities branch of the office of the Illinois secretary of state, yesterday revoked the licenses of two Chicago brokers charged with unethical practices.

The brokers are Felix E. Sicorske, whose offices are in the La Salle-Wacker building, and Grant Williams, who maintained two offices, one at 134 North La Salle street and the other at 11 South La Salle.

Williams is charged with failure to deliver securities after money was collected, excessive use of long distance telephone calls in soliciting business, changing customers' stock from listed to unlisted stock without their consent, selling through unregistered agents and salesmen and using the name "company" while he was licensed as an individual.

Sicorske was charged with failure to deliver securities, selling through unregistered salesmen, and dealing under a name other than that under which he was licensed.

STICK TO OWN RACE, 176 NEGRO GRADUATES TOLD

Hampton Institute, Va., April 24.—[Special.]—The sixty-third anniversary of Hampton institute closed today with the return to northern cities of the special Hampton party of 100 leading men and women under the direction of Alexander B. Trowbridge of Washington, a Hampton trustee and president of the National Hampton association.

Dr. Robert Russa Moton, principal of Tuskegee institute and a member of the board of trustees of Hampton institute, presented to the board the 176 candidates for degrees and diplomas. He gave the graduates two pieces of advice: To get all the culture, learning, wealth, beauty and position they could and never to detach themselves from their own race which so needs their counsel, advice and leadership. He said:

"I would rather be a Negro and help my own people to get homes and land and justice than do anything else in the world."

Bridge Bids Are Opened.

Dedication of the site for the outer drive bridge during the Jubilee is authorized by President Edward J. Kelly of the south park board and President Warren Wright of the Lincoln park board. Authorization was given yesterday at the opening of bids in the offices of the Chicago Plan commission.

The bids were for the construction of the substructure and the superstructure of the bridge. The lowest estimates were those of the Ketler-Elliott Construction company, contained in a set of three alternative bids. They were for $1,491,326, $1,491,676, and $1,491,343. Hugh E. Young, chief engineer for the plan commission, said the name of the successful bidder would be announced in a week. He cautioned contractors that only materials made by Chicago manufacturers would be used.

Jubilee Plans Speed Ahead.

A survey of the progress made thus far in the preparation of the Chicago Jubilee revealed amazing advances. This was partly due to the vigorous enlistment of the outlying business districts, whose coöperation means the spreading of the Jubilee on a metropolitan scale.

On the south side the various chambers of commerce, among them the South Shore, headed by Arthur C. Clemensen, geared themselves into immediate action. The west side started work through the West Town Chamber of Commerce, of which F. J. Bilek is secretary. Equal progress was reported uptown and on the northwest side, where John C. Bowers, president of the Central Uptown Chicago association, and M. S. Szymczak, president of the Milwaukee Avenue Chamber of Commerce, took leading rôles.

In all sections parades are being planned. Streets will be ablaze with brilliant lights, bunting, and festoons. Store windows will be refurbished, and special sales will rule. Community singing and dancing will be featured, and neighborhood gatherings will be held. While local in action, the spirit will be city-wide and a part of the general Jubilee.

With the active participation of the outlying districts, a full coördinating committee was named. The members, representing downtown and the other districts, are:

Lawrence Fenlon, chairman, Cook county council, American Legion; W. A. Dudley, managing director, Greater Central District association; Walter Roy, busines manager, South End Chamber of Commerce; Lawrence D. Jones, executive secretary, South Chicago Chamber of Commerce; Frank Bilek, secretary, West Town Chamber of Commerce.

Charles V. Falkenburg, president, Logan Square Business Men's association; Carl J. Johnson, president, Uptown-Clark Business Men's association; G. R. Schaeffer, advertising manager, Marshall Field & Co., retail; W. J. Buffington, vice president, C. D. Peacock, Inc.; R. J. Thain, advertising manager, Carson Pirie Scott & Co., wholesale; W. Z. Tucker, sales manager, W. A. Wieboldt & Co.; J. L. Spellman, publicity manager, Illinois Bell Telephone company; I. C. Tilden, president, Spaulding-Gorham, Inc.

John Burke, president, Chicago Hotel association; Louis B. Reitman, General Outdoor Advertising company; B. C. Getsinger, secretary, domestic commerce committee, the Chicago Association of Commerce; George M. Tobey, secretary, Chicago Building Managers' association; Byron F. Field, president, Junior Association of Commerce; George L. Treadwell, secretary, Chicago Rotary club; Frank P. Hammond, chairman, All-Chicago Kiwanis clubs; J. M. Parkinson, treasurer, Middle West Stock Transfer company, and Melvin Jones, secretary, International Lions clubs.

Praise from All Quarters.

From all quarters came encouragement, praise, and assistance to make the Jubilee a success. Mayor Cermak, on his return from Florida, repeated his promises to do all in his power to help the celebration.

"Chicago needs a boost," he said, "and I hope the Chicago Jubilee succeeds beyond the expectation of the most optimistic worker for it."

President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago acclaimed the celebration. The Jubilee, he said, will be a great thing for Chicago. It manifests the admirable spirit of the people, and the business and civic organizations are to be congratulated for the part they have played in developing the program, he declared.

TERMINAL AREA RIPE FOR BOOM, REALTORS TOLD

Develop Near South Side, Plea of Taylor.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

The Chicago river, which was made to flow backward, now has the kinks taken out of its south branch, the old bed has been filled in and the river souths sides, with plans for air right developments over the railroads, is measurably nearer realization.

This is the next step to be taken toward the fulfillment of the Chicago plan, in the opinion of Eugene S. Taylor, manager of the plan commission, who spoke on this subject yesterday before the Chicago Real Estate Board.

The thing to do now, he told the real estate men, is to spur the railroad owners on toward building of new terminals. They might complain of poverty, he said, but this was to be regarded as a real estate proposition, with immense values to be established by the new buildings that will rise in the future over the old scrambled network of tracks. Real estate men see here a development similar to that in Park row, New York.

Tells of Union Station.

"Back in 1914," said Mr. Taylor, "when the Union station negotiations were under way, the Chicago plan commission succeeded in having the city council incorporate in the Union station ordinance a provision requiring the Union station company to cooperate in the straightening of the south branch of the Chicago river.

"Within the past few months that old bed of the river has been straightened and the old bed of the river has been filled in. This will now make it possible for the numerous railroad companies affected to rearrange and realign their terminal tracks. While this is being done, new passenger and freight terminal plans to house the thirteen railroads now using the three south side terminals should be worked out and coordinated with plans for opening north and south and east and west streets through this square mile of railroad obstruction.

Five Streets to Be Opened.

"The commission feels that the terminals and the street openings should be worked out as a single problem. The time is now opportune and this is the project Chicago should realize. It would open Wells, La Salle, Dearborn, 14th and 15th streets."

The federal government, he said, in connection with the new postoffice project, has agreed to open Congress street to a width of 120 feet through the new postoffice building.

As to the status of the new Illinois Central terminal at 12th street, he urged the real estate men to ask the railroad to resubmit its petition to the city council asking elimination of the clause which compels it to take in any other of the south side roads that want to use the terminal. The committee refused to consider this, but Mr. Taylor said there was good reason to think that the new council and the new committee would look favorably upon it.

I. C. Anxious to Proceed.

The New York Central and the Rock Island railroads have definitely refused to go into a common terminal with the Illinois Central, Mr. Taylor said, and negotiations with the other roads have been indefinite. The Illinois Central, therefore, wants to go ahead and build its own terminal and is anxious to get it done by 1933, so that it will harmonize with the lake front as it is presented to the World's Fair visitors.

Mr. Taylor also discussed highways and urged as one immediate improvement, which could be made with little expense, the adoption of the through traffic street system, marking the existing streets in accordance with this plan. This would give such traffic forty boulevards, extending in every direction through Chicago, at intervals of about a mile apart, and connecting at the outskirts of the city with main avenues of traffic to and from Chicago.

"Of equal importance with the rehabilitation of the streets," he said, "is the problem of facilitating the movement of traffic. We are still using the streets laid out by our grandparents for a city of one and two story buildings.

"Our conclusion is that the next practical step to take in this direction is to have separate grades for local and through traffic. New York has just built a mile of elevated highway and they like it so well they are going to complete it. New Jersey has grade separated highways. We've got the plans and we need from eight to 12 super highways radiating from the heart of the city. There are 13 main highways leading into the city, but no way to continue the trip through the city. There is no business loss or property detriment in this. A speedway from the loop to the northwest limits, 160 feet wide over the tracks at Kinzie street, is one of the plans."

29 PASSENGERS ARE STRANDED, BROKE BY BREAKDOWN OF BUS

Hot Springs, Ark., April 24.—(AP)—Twenty-nine passengers on a bus enroute from Los Angeles to Chicago were stranded here today with the bus broken down and their funds depleted. They told police they had spent all their money in having the vehicle repaired at intervals en route. The final breakdown came a few miles from Hot Springs and the bus was towed here. Police said they had learned the driver left the passengers last night. Four women are in the party, which left Los Angeles April 17.

Beauty Parlor Windows Riddled with Shotgun Slugs

Two men in an automobile fired revolver bullets and shotgun slugs through the front windows of the Wedel beauty shop at 7544 South Halsted street early this morning, imperiling the owner, Mrs. Betty Wedel, a widow, and her children, who were asleep in the rear. No one was injured. Mrs. Wedel told Gresham police she was mystified by the attack. Witnesses said the gunmen drove by the shop slowly and that one fired once from a shotgun and the other fired three or four times from a revolver.

FALL FATAL TO LABORER.

Fred Lund, 70 years old, 13 North Des Plaines street, a laborer, died in the county hospital yesterday from injuries incurred when he fell into a basement areaway on West Monroe street last Wednesday.

STEERING GROUP OF COUNCIL ENDS LABORS TONIGHT

Ald. James B. Bowler [25th], chairman of the city council committee on committees, yesterday called a meeting of his group for tonight to complete the organization of the new council. The report of the committee is to be submitted to the council at the Monday inaugural session.

The committee began its task in Miami Beach, Fla., but returned to Chicago yesterday with the job uncompleted. Late developments in the selection of certain committee chairmen, according to members of the steering group, have complicated the situation.

Tentative selections for vacant chairmanships are Ald. Dorsey R. Crowe [42d], buildings and zoning; Sheldon W. Govier [9th], World's Fair and conventions; William A. Rowan [10th], harbors, wharves and bridges; Frank Landmesser, railway terminals. Others to be filled are the police committee and the committee on local industries, streets and alleys.

JUDGE TO HEAR CASE AGAINST HIS ATTACKERS

Two men charged with an assault on Municipal Judge Alfred O. Erickson and his bailiff, Jack La Verne, will be arraigned in the Shakespeare avenue court this morning. Judge Erickson will hear the case himself. The men are Henry Berger, 36 years old, 2660 Milwaukee avenue, and Walter Hawkins, 35 years old, 3513 Diversey avenue.

The judge and his bailiff had just alighted from their automobile in front of 2344 Milwaukee avenue when they noticed two men scuffling. In trying to part the pair they became embroiled in the fight. La Verne struck Berger over the head with the butt of his revolver, rendering him unconscious. At the police station both prisoners said they had been drinking and remembered nothing of the attack.

ROB BAKERS AND HELPERS.

Two gunmen yesterday entered the Maypole bakery at 1442 North Maypole avenue and robbed Max Brodsky and five helpers of $110. An undetermined amount was taken from the cash drawer of the bakery.

RED BARKER, OUT OF JOLIET PRISON, IS PUT INTO JAIL

Seized by Chicago Police on Old Gun Charge.

George [Red] Barker, labor racketeer and gunman, who was released from the Joliet penitentiary yesterday at the order of the Illinois Supreme court, last night was in the Cook county jail moaning about the bad luck which kept him from roaming the streets. Barker was arrested by Chicago policemen on a gun carrying charge as he left the prison, but he had expected that his trip to Chicago from Joliet in police custody was only a matter of form and that bondsmen would be waiting to put up $10,000 bond for his release.

WARDEN HILL. [A. P. Photo.]

By closing time of the courts, however, no one had come forward with the expected bond and Barker had to spend one more night at least in jail.

Freed by High Court.

Barker, a public enemy twice sent back to prison as a parole violator, was ordered freed from Joliet when the Supreme court ruled against the action of Chief Justice McGoorty of the Criminal court in committing him to serve out an unexpired larceny term. The high court upheld the action of Judge T. N. Greene of Peoria, who in 1929 granted a writ of habeas corpus freeing the gangster.

Barker had a rough time in his last hours in the penitentiary. His hat was knocked from his head by a deputy warden and it was impressed upon him by Warden Henry C. Hill and other penitentiary officials that to them he was nothing but an ex-convict, and not the labor leader that he was in Chicago prior to the uprising against racketeers, gunmen and hoodlums.

State's Attorney Swanson said that he is not through fighting to keep Barker in the penitentiary. He ordered his two legal experts, Assistant State's Attorneys Q. J. Chott and Edward Wilson, to prepare a petition for a rehearing before the Supreme court.

Swanson Hits Representation.

At the same time that the petition for a rehearing was ordered drafted Prosecutor Swanson issued a statement pointing out that the Seventh judicial district — comprising Cook, Lake, Will, Kankakee, and Du Page counties, which have half the population of the state—is represented by only one Supreme court judge. The remainder of the state has six judges for its half of the population.

"Reapportionment is provided for in the constitution, but the state has failed to abide by its provisions," said Prosecutor Swanson.

Barker's attorneys, Milton Smith and Everett Jennings, arrived at the penitentiary with the Supreme court writ about the same time that Lieut. William V. Elaul and state's attorney's detectives appeared with a capias demanding Barker's custody on the old gun toting charge.

He Refuses State's $10.

Barker was a prisoner in the old Joliet penitentiary and had to be taken to the new Stateville prison to be discharged. He was bundled into an automobile and made the trip in his prison brogans and clothes. As soon as the public enemy spied photographers he put a handkerchief to his face. Barker was given the customary prison suit and offered the $10 given to every convict on his discharge. He refused the money and grumbled about the clothes.

"Look at these things," he growled. "Give me my own shoes and my own clothes."

"Shut up," said Warden Hill, "before you get slapped in the face. We'll send you your clothes."

Barker glared at the warden.

"You're just a convict to me," said Warden Hill, stepping up to Barker. "I'll take none of your guff. You behave like other prisoners or you'll be sorry."

Before this Barker had failed to obey the prison rules that prisoners should take off their hats. His hat was knocked from his head by Deputy Warden Frank Knass after Barker refused to remove it.

Barker's wife was present to see him on his way to Chicago in the police squad car.

"We'll have bond for you in a couple of hours," she shouted to him. But the bond was not forthcoming.

The gun toting charge is one growing out of an arrest last fall of Barker, William J. [Three Fingered Jack] White, and Claude Maddox in Cicero.

Maddox has since been indicted for attempting to murder Policeman James McBride of Bellwood, who was the main state witness against White in an old murder case. White has since been convicted of the murder charge and is under a 14 year sentence. His motion for a new trial was continued yesterday by Judge Joseph Sabath until May 4.

In addition to its fight to keep Barker in prison, the state's attorney's office was also preparing yesterday to combat the other Supreme court decisions, which resulted in new trials being granted to James [Red] Forsythe and Simon Gorman, north side gangsters, convicted of gun toting.

The Supreme court at the same time granted $40,000 bail to Danny Stanton, south side hoodlum, wanted in Wisconsin for the murder of Jack Zuta, former west side vice chief.

BRIAND THROWS HIS HAT IN THE RING FOR FRENCH PRESIDENCY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 24.—Foreign Minister Briand as the next president of France became a virtual certainty tonight when the wily old diplomat broke his long silence and intimated to friends that he chose to run. Since it is not the custom formally to announce one's candidacy for the highest office in this country, M. Briand's informal assent is believed to be all that is necessary to secure his election.

Political observers tonight are betting that M. Briand will be elected by a fat majority on the first ballot when the presidential electors get together on May 13 at the Palace of Versailles. He will have at least the acquiescence of all his friends and the wholehearted support of all his Nationalist enemies, who are convinced that the only way of getting him out of the Quai d'Orsay is to put him in the Elysée palace.

Since the French political scheme allots no direct executive authority to the president, M. Briand, as nominal head of the republic, would have very little influence over the foreign policies of the country.

JURY VINDICATES FOUR CAPTAINS IN WEALTH INQUIRY

Hints Other Officers Will Be Found Blameless.

Four of the seventeen police captains whose bank accounts have been under investigation by the special grand jury during the last week were vindicated yesterday in a statement issued by the jury's foreman, J. A. Farmar. The affairs of the other thirteen on the list—or possibly only twelve, as it was said no account had been found in the name of Capt. Martin Mullen—are to be further scrutinized, it was announced.

CAPT. MULLEN.

The jury plans to issue subpoenas for the bank accounts of the other 35 police captains, after which the captains will be called before the investigating body and asked to explain any deposits that are considered excessive for a police captain, whose salary is $4,000 a year.

Foreman Issues Statement.

A number of apparently abnormal bank accounts were found, the jurors declared, but in order to clarify public opinion on the results so far obtained, Mr. Farmar issued the following statement.

"I am rather fearful that an erroneous impression may have been conveyed regarding the status of the bank accounts of certain captains of police because of stories recently published, and in connection with which stories certain names have been specifically mentioned. I desire to state most emphatically that a rank injustice would be done if it were permitted to let the story remain without comment and correction.

"Reference has been made, by inference at least, that a review of certain records disclosed unusually large accounts were confined to a limited number of captains. While it may be true that some captains may be requested to explain certain items, there are others whose accounts are normal, no unusual amounts developed, and therefore no necessity for further investigation.

Four Captains Cleared.

"We have completed our examination of the available records of certain of the men referred to. Our work thus far completed indicates clearly that the records of the following named captains are entirely satisfactory and beyond question: Capt. Daniel A. Lynch, Capt. James J. Fleming, Capt. Thomas Kilroy, and Capt. Thomas C. Wolfe.

"I have reason to believe that the same results will obtain insofar as it involves the names of other captains of police, and just as quickly as our work is completed announcement in a proper way will be made."

KING OF SIAM MAY ESCAPE OPERATION; DECISION PENDING

New York, April 24.—[Special.]—New York's royal guests, King Prajadhipok of Siam, may not have to undergo the operation on his eyes for which he came half way round the world, it was learned today.

Dr. John M. Wheeler of Presbyterian hospital, after his first examination of the monarch, said that a decision for or against the operation had not been made, and probably would be postponed until the return of the royal party from Washington, D. C., next week.

BUILDINGS FOR TAXING PURPOSES TOTAL 493,890

A statistical report of the number and classifications of buildings in Cook county against which taxes for 1928 were assessed was made public yesterday by J. L. Jacobs, efficiency expert for the county board. The report is the first of its kind ever prepared and is based on the records of the 1928 quadrennial reassessment.

The report shows that a total of 493,890 buildings on 1,036,674 parcels of land in the county were assessed. Classed in three major divisions the items include 468,119 residential, hotel and club buildings; 17,075 commercial buildings, and 8,696 industrial and farm buildings. In addition there were 440,565 private garages, sheds and other small buildings which were assessed small amounts, making a grand total of 934,395 buildings.

Seventy per cent of the grand total of buildings assessed were located within the city of Chicago and the remainder in townships outside of the city. Buildings owned by public agencies, educational, religious, and other organizations exempt from taxes were not included in the report.

SEEK BIDS FOR NEW POSTOFFICE IN A FEW WEEKS

Dirt to Fly Soon, Major Heath Says.

The government hopes to be ready to advertise for bids on Chicago's $31,000,000 postoffice "within a few weeks," Ferry K. Heath, assistant secretary of the treasury, who conferred with Chicago architects and federal officials yesterday, announced before starting back to Washington, D. C.

"The architects, Graham, Anderson, Probst & White, have as large a staff as could possibly be utilized completing the working plans and specifications," said Maj. Heath. "It is impossible to say at this time when they will be finished, but I am assured it will be within a few weeks. Then the government can advertise for bids.

Good Start This Summer.

"The contractors will have five weeks to submit their bids, and after the contract is awarded, the dirt will begin to fly immediately for Chicago's new postoffice. The foundation work, at least, will be well under way this summer."

Maj. Heath inspected the site of the new postoffice, across the Union station tracks between Harrison and Van Buren streets, and also the proposed site of a new federal customs appraisers' stores building, for which $2,000,000 has been appropriated. This building, for which an architect is soon to be selected, is to be erected on the Harrison-Canal street corner of the abandoned Marshall Field postoffice site, and tentative plans call for utilizing the remaining space as a park. The old appraisers' stores building will become a federal jail.

Proud of New Postoffice.

"The new postoffice and appraisers' stores will give Chicago a federal center to be proud of," said Maj. Heath. "I am particularly enthusiastic about the new postoffice, which will be the largest and finest in the world and the largest federal building project ever undertaken outside of Washington."

Maj. Heath pointed out that the many technical details incident to erecting such a building as the new postoffice on an air rights site were responsible for the delay in getting started.

BRITISHERS FLEE MADEIRA; TROOPS PREPARE ATTACK

LONDON, April 24.—(AP)—The London Express says about 100 British subjects took the advice of the British consul and sailed today aboard the British liner Armadale Castle, which made a brief call at Funchal, Madeira. The consul's statement was issued in view of the impending Portuguese attack against revolters in the city.

The newspaper's dispatch, which was received by radio from the liner, indicated that the approach of the expeditionary force from Lisbon had caused considerable anxiety among the populace as well as among the rebels.

There was every indication that the rebel leaders at Funchal intended to resist desperately the punitive expedition and all available reserves have been called to arms, bringing their strength to about 3,000 men. Sandbag barricades have been raised near the shore and guns concentrated on the high hills overlooking the harbor.

Boston Gives a Reception, Dinner to Japanese Prince

Boston, Mass., April 24.—(AP)—Sidewalks were lined and office windows crowded today as Prince and Princess Takamatsu of Japan passed from one official reception to another in a day climaxed by an official dinner given by Mayor James M. Curley tonight. Gov. Joseph B. Ely, former Gov. Alvan T. Fuller, and high representatives of the army and navy and the clergy were among the 800 guests at the dinner.

CHANGE IN TRAIN SCHEDULE.

The Burlington's morning train to St. Paul and Minneapolis will leave Chicago at 11:30 A. M. Central Standard Time instead of 11:40 A. M., arriving in the Twin Cities at 9:30 P. M. and 9:55 P. M. respectively, effective Sunday, April 26th, and henceforth will be called the "MISSISSIPPI RIVERVIEW."

On its daylight run northward the train follows the shore line of the Mississippi River for three hundred miles. S. J. Owens, General Agent, Burlington Route, 179 W. Jackson Blvd., Chicago. Phone Wabash 4600.—Adv.

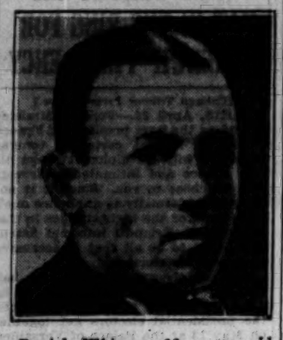
George Eaton, 24 years old, Libertyville.



Daniel Whigam, 23 years old, Libertyville.

Clifford A. Gustafson, 23 years old, Libertyville.

Edgar Lindroth, 21 years old, Libertyville.

Delay Inquest.

The inquest into the deaths of five young men who were killed early yesterday morning when the automobile in which they were riding crashed at high speed into a Soo line freight train on a crossing a half mile north of Antioch, was continued yesterday until May 1 by Coroner John L. Taylor of Lake county.

The victims were Herrick C. Herrington, 19 years old, the driver; George H. Eaton, 24 years old; Clifford A. Gustafson, 23 years old; Daniel Whigam, 23 years old, and Edgar Lindroth, 21 years old. All were residents of Libertyville and were on their way home from a fish fry at Camp Lake when the accident occurred.

Two motor fatalities yesterday increased the Cook county toll since Jan. 1 to 363. The victims:

George Croci, 64 years old, 1516 Portland avenue, Chicago Heights. Crushed to death when a truck on which he was riding was struck by a switch engine in the yards of the Inland Steel company in Chicago Heights.

Eugene Travis, 6 years old, 1616 North Wood street. Fatally injured when he fell from a truck on which he had "hitched" a ride in front of 1614 North Wood street.

LETS CONTRACTS FOR MILLION AND HALF ROAD WORK

State Awards 21 Jobs on Highways.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., April 24.—[Special.]—The state highway department today let contracts for twenty-one road projects calling for 80 miles of paving, grading, and widening at a cost of $1,445,321.77. Work will start shortly.

The contracts call for 57.39 miles of paving, 11.5 miles of grading, 11.72 miles of road widening, and one bridge and the benefits are well scattered over the state. Of prime interest to residents of Chicago and St. Louis are the four widening projects for route 4, the main highway crossing the state north and south.

Will Widen Joliet Road.

Route 4 will be widened north of Romeo, near Joliet, for a distance of 8.8 miles; for 5.05 miles north from a point near Spring Forest; 1.24 miles north of Joliet, and 4.14 miles north of Lockport. These sections will be widened to forty feet.

Paving and widening in Cook county and the metropolitan area includes 6.34 miles widening from Ontarioville to Elgin; .39 miles paving northwest of Chicago Heights; .25 mile paving in Westchester, and 3.38 miles paving from route 23 to Serena.

18 Millions Outstanding.

Thus far this year the department has let contracts for $7,500,000 worth of work which, combined with the $11,000,000 in contracts let and carried over from last year, completes more than one-third of the $45,000,000 program for 1931.

Another road letting, the largest this year, will be held here May 12, when 165 miles of paving, 26 miles of grading, and 21 bridge jobs, at an estimated cost of $6,500,000, will be awarded.

UNEMPLOYMENT COMMISSION AIDS 80,000 FAMILIES

The governor's commission on unemployment during the period from Oct. 1, 1930, to April 23, 1931, gave aid to 80,000 families and, through the shelters and clinics, gave food clothing, medical attention, and shelter to 30,000 single persons, according to a report issued last night by Frank D. Loomis, secretary of the budget and relief committees.

Total receipts during that period were $4,622,846. Total expenditures were $3,596,881, leaving a balance of $1,102,965 to care for all needs until the summer months. Unpaid subscriptions total $300,152.78. General family relief was handled through six recognized agencies and other funds were allotted to a special work fund, clothing account, milk fund, coal fund, school children's aid fund, neighborhood relief, protective and miscellaneous services through 15 agencies and suburban and country relief through 15 agencies.

The clothing committee distributed 236,876 garments to approximately 56,511 people, representing 13,803 families. Of these garments 130,168 were purchased new at a cost of $65,344. Donated garments, collected by the women's division, were cleaned and repaired by the cleaners' association and the laundrymen's association. The total cost of maintaining the clothing division was $16,625.

Harvard Chapel to Honor Only Allied Cause Heroes

Cambridge, Mass., April 14.—(AP)—Only those Harvard men who died in the allied cause will be commemorated in Harvard's war memorial chapel, to the exclusion of three who died fighting for the central powers. This decision was announced today by President A. Lawrence Lowell and the Fellows of Harvard college. It was decided, according to the announcement, that under the terms of the fund raised for construction of the chapel, the names of three German youths who died in the world war could not be included.

GREIN ORDERS SUITS AGAINST FOOD CHEATERS

City Sealer Grein yesterday ordered law suits against the proprietors of four meat markets, one bakery, one fish market, and one ice cream parlor on charges of giving short weight and of overcharging. The overcharges made on the purchases of deputy inspectors ranged from 2 to 40 cents.

In the meat market of Bessie Kramer, 2443 West Lake street, the inspectors said they were attacked by Mrs. Ethel Wiss, wife of a clerk, when they said they had been overcharged 40 cents on the purchase of a chicken. A police squad was called to help the inspectors.

Representatives of coal dealers, gasoline station proprietors, the Retail Meat Dealers' association, the Grocers' and Butchers' association, and the Bakers' union have visited the city hall to pledge their coöperation in the drive against short weight merchants, Mr. Grein said.

Girl Beaten on Street; Mystery Assailant Flees

Miss Mary Berger, 21 years old, 1416 South Springfield avenue, was beaten in a mysterious attack by an unidentified man at 13th street and Springfield avenue as she was on her way to a movie last night. The Fillmore street police took her to the Sinai hospital, where she was treated for a broken nose and bruises. She told police that no attempt was made to rob her.

GEN. BUTLER AND HAITI DIPLOMAT CLASH ON STORY

Marine Resents Doubts Cast on Heroism.

also in international relations. Friends could not see how the state department could escape asking for Minister Bellegarde's recall. This, however, would most seriously complicate the present situation in Haiti, governed by an administration which is anti-United States and anti-marine corps.

Minister Bellegarde is one of the most prominent members of this Haitian administration. His recall might mean an increased public resentment against the United States at a time when the state department is endeavoring to work out a program for Haiti under which the marines would be withdrawn within the next five years.

The Mussolini Incident.

The Mussolini incident on which Maj. Gen. Butler is patterning his conduct and his letter writing grew out of a speech made by the general in Philadelphia in which he recounted an anecdote telling how Mussolini had run over a child with his automobile and had driven away.

The Italian embassy asked for an explanation. Secretary of the Navy Adams passed the request on to the general, who replied that the story was substantially true. Thereupon the secretary of state offered formal apology to Premier Mussolini through the Italian ambassador and Secretary Adams ordered a court martial for Maj. Gen. Butler.

The court martial, however, never came off. Public opinion took a hand; the press was outspoken; congress took notice of the affair. It was arranged that Maj. Gen. Butler should tender his regrets, which he did, and the court martial was canceled.

ALFONSO TRIES TO KEEP BURIAL OF OLD AUNT SECRET

Isabella's Grave in Famous Paris Cemetery.

BY EGBERT SWENSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 24.—Infanta Isabella of Spain, ex-King Alfonso's aged aunt, who died here yesterday in exile, will be buried at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning in the Pere La Chaise cemetery among a nondescript group populating the world's most famous burial ground, already inhabited by Heloise and Abelard, Gambetta, Oscar Wilde and a thousand other historic personages.

It is understood that the haste in burying the popular and vivacious Bourbon princess, the choice of a Paris cemetery and the secrecy of the plans are the result of telephonic instructions from London by Alfonso to Quinones de Leon, Spanish ambassador in Paris during the monarchy. The former envoy is in complete charge of the funeral arrangements.

Alfonso May Fly to Paris.

The purpose of the speedy procedure is to avoid crowds, confusion, sensationalism and embarrassment to the French government.

It is reported that no member of the royal family will attend the funeral, but there is a strong possibility that Isabella's impetuous nephew may fly across the English channel in time to bare his head before the open grave. On the other hand, it is declared that Alfonso may not return to Paris until Tuesday, when he will decide whether his aunt's final resting place shall be France or Escorial, the burial place of Spanish royalty.

Sips Tea with King George.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 24.—The duke of Toledo, formerly King Alfonso of Spain, sipped tea with King George and Queen Mary at Windsor castle today. Accompanied by the duke of Miranda, Alfonso drove to Windsor from London.

His automobile drew up in High street in Windsor and the exiled king's chauffeur asked a policeman to direct him to the castle. None recognized Alfonso. The Bourbon chatted an hour and a quarter with the king and queen and returned to London to meet his third son, Don Juan, who came from Paris to enroll in the Dartmouth Naval college.

Berenguer Pledge Loyalty.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

MADRID, April 24.—Amazement was caused here by the report in an evening paper that the first two generals to signs adhesion demanded of army officers to the republican government were Damaso Berenguer, King Alfonso's right hand man and former premier, and his brother, Frederico Berenguer, member of Primo Rivera's first directorate. The report states:

"The hero of Annual—the place in Morocco where 10,000 Spaniards lost their lives during Berenguer's high commissionership—has acted as one might expect. If he had shouted, 'One, two, three, death to Berenguer!' we would have been even more conscious of his loyalty."

The bodies of Capts. Herandes and Galan, martyrs of the Jaca revolt, will be transferred to Madrid from Huesca, where they now lie, and placed in sumptuous tombs amidst the pomp and ceremony which the new republic feels is due them.

TWO HONDURAS TOWNS SACKED BY 400 REBELS

All Nation's Funds Put in "War Chest."

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, April 24.—(AP)—The government today issued a decree placing all national funds at the disposal of an executive committee for the purpose of waging war against rebel forces which revolted several days ago in the northeast. An undetermined number of casualties were reported in several clashes between loyalist troops and the rebels Wednesday and yesterday.

Government forces today announced that they had captured Col. Calixto Carias, a rebel officer, near Santa Barbara.

Two Towns Sacked.

The newspaper El Pueblo today reported further rebel activities, saying that the undefended towns of Pimienta and Villaneuva in the San Pedro section had been sacked by 400 rebels under Gen. Roman Diaz.

The paper said that another battle was probable as Gen. Jose Maria Reina was leading federal troops against another detachment of 500 rebels under Gen. Ferrera near Chasnigua, southwest of San Pedro.

Government troops previously had claimed consistent victories against the insurgents in the Puerto Cortes area, saying the rebels were being pursued into the mountainous sections of the interior.

Claims Revolt Is Quelled.

Washington, D. C., April 24.—(AP)—Official declaration that the revolutionary movement in Honduras was terminated was contained in a communication from its government today to the Washington legation. A terse message from the foreign relations department said:

"Revolutionary movement quelled."

Plans for Capt. Lisandro Garay, Honduran flyer, to return with a machine gun equipped plane recently purchased in the United States, were unchanged, Legation officials said he would leave from Wilmington, Del., probably Sunday, after permission has been obtained for his flight between here and Honduras.

Fear New Sandino Attack.

PUERTO CABEZAS, April 24.—(AP)—Reports that large groups of insurgents were advancing on this city caused considerable apprehension tonight. The rumors were that the attackers, well armed, had been united at Jinotega and Matagalpa and were headed in this direction. Reports from Cape Gracias a Dios at 3 p. m. today said that town was quiet.

American naval forces have not been landed here, although the U. S. S. Langley and two destroyers are off shore. Those aboard the ships have been ordered, in case they are brought ashore, not to fire until they are attacked and not to go beyond the city limits. A negligible number of national guardsmen are in Puerto Cabezas.

Little credence is given to a vague rumor that Augusto Sandino, insurgent leader, had been captured. Some believe that the report might have been circulated by his followers. There are conflicting versions about the leader's whereabouts, although some believe that he might lead an attack on this city.

KILLED TO SAVE OWN LIFE, GIRL SLAYER CLAIMS

Jealousy Considered as Possible Motive.

Flint, Mich., April 24.—[Special.]—Self-defense was the plea today of Miss Helen Joyce Morgan, 27 years old, daughter of a wealthy mother, who admitted she killed her sweetheart, Leas Casteel, a 33 year old automobile mechanic, last night.

MISS HELEN MORGAN.

The killing occurred on a lonely highway near this city and the Glenwood cemetery. The woman says she killed Casteel with a pistol wrested from his hand as he threatened her life. Police, however, are searching tonight for other possible motives. Prosecutor R. M. Freeman said she would be charged with first degree murder.

Casteel faced arrest on a charge of arson, a charge from which he was preparing to flee. Miss Morgan lived with her mother, Mrs. Carrie Morgan, reputed to be wealthy—the owner of valuable real estate in this city. She formerly lived in Chicago.

Says Casteel Taunted Her.

In her confession to police, Miss Morgan said Casteel berated her for informing police he had set fire to his home and taunted her with being a "stool pigeon."

"He told me that if I sent him to prison he would kill mother and me when he got out," Miss Morgan said.

"Less stopped his car near the cemetery and became violently angry. He struck me several times and then drew a revolver and thrust it at me.

"He aimed the gun at me and I thought he was going to kill me. I fought with him, grabbed the gun and fired blindly until the gun was empty."

Drags Body Into Cemetery.

After firing five shots into Casteel's body, Miss Morgan dragged his body from the car and into the cemetery.

Detectives are investigating a report that Miss Morgan had the revolver several weeks. They say friends of the family informed them Casteel was Miss Morgan's "first boy friend," and that she was intensely jealous of him.

Recently Miss Morgan informed police that Casteel had set fire to his home in order to collect insurance. Casteel was arrested for arson. Miss Morgan refused to repeat her statement, however, and the case against him was dropped.

Yesterday she returned to the prosecutor's office and repeated her story.

HOOVER ORDERS CUTS TO AVOID BILLION DEFICIT

316 Millions Are Saved in Next Year's Budget.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 24.—[Special.]—A continued steady cabinet drive to curtail government expenditures without affecting unemployment relief measures has been ordered by President Hoover in an attempt to hold down large prospective deficits during the next two years.

This became known today when the President announced that his cabinet meeting had been devoted to a discussion of comparative government expenditures for the 1930, 1931 and 1932 fiscal years. Tabulated statements placed before each cabinet member when he took his place today indicated that total expenditures during the current fiscal year will be 441 million dollars greater than those in the fiscal year 1930.

Estimated expenditures during the 1932 fiscal year beginning July 1 were given by the President as four billion 119 million dollars, a decrease over the current year of roughly 316 millions.

Compare Figures with 1930.

Comparison of the 1932 government expenditure figure with that for 1930 disclosed, however, that unless reductions are made at least 120 millions more will be spent next year than was spent during 1930. One reason for the high expenditure for the current year in comparison with those estimated for next year lies in the fact that most of the appropriations for extraordinary expenses such as veterans' bonus, farm relief, and unemployment, were made available during the current year and will help to swell the deficit expected on June 30.

As treasury figures today disclosed that on April 22 the government deficit was 861 millions, it was apparent the treasury deficit may run up to close to a billion at the end of the fiscal year. With prospective spendings for 1932 but 316 millions lower than the current year some treasury officials today were of the opinion next year's deficit may equal if not surpass that for the current year.

Urged to Hold Down Expenses.

In his anxiety to avoid a deficit in the fiscal year 1933 the President has impressed all cabinet members with the necessity of holding the 1932 budget estimates, which they will submit next September, down to the basic needs of their departments. Money saved during the remainder of this fiscal year and the next will aid in cutting down the deficits which will appear on the books this coming June 30 and June 30, 1932.

The tabulated figures considered by the President and his cabinet showed that exclusive of expenses of the postal service payable from postal revenues, the expenditures of the government during the 1930 fiscal year were $3,-084,153,437. Estimated expenditures for 1931, the current year, were given as $4,435,929,732, while estimated expenditures for 1932 were $4,119,230,649. The spendings for the year 1932 compared with a budget estimate submitted to congress for that year of $3,563,909,000.

What President Said.

In explaining the tabulated statement, which included expenditures for national defense, public building, and all phases of government activity to newspaper men at his 4 o'clock conference, President Hoover said in part:

"The budgets for all three years are greatly influenced by the increased expenditures for construction work in aid of unemployment, for relief to agriculture, and for increased service to veterans, but it will be seen that these increased expenditures are somewhat offset by reductions in other directions.

"The heading of public buildings and public works, amounting to 434 million dollars for this fiscal year and estimated at more than 457 millions for next year, includes highways but does not include construction expenditures of the army and navy for military purposes, or the veterans' bureau, or merchant marine through loans from the shipping board, or for aviation and park improvements, and many other minor construction items.

For Construction Work.

"The total of all construction work, including these items, is now progressing at the rate of over 725 million dollars per annum, being about 500 millions per annum in excess of the rate of expenditure for construction previous to the depression.

"The expenditure shown as aids to agriculture of a total for this year of 341 million dollars includes drought relief and farm board expenditures, together with other expenditures of the department of agriculture, but does not include highway construction.

"The expenditure on veterans' relief shows an increase of about 190 million dollars for the present fiscal year, but includes 112 millions of the normal payment into the bonus fund for the next fiscal year, which was advanced by congress to the present fiscal year."

According to the President, loans made to veterans under the adjusted compensation laws now amount to 912 millions, counting loans with applications outstanding of 140 millions. This includes loans in excess of 300 millions made prior to the passage of the law boosting the loan value of certificates to 50 per cent.

Various reductions in expenditures for the next fiscal year as compared with the present one are shown by the tabular statement. The expense allotted for the army for national defense purposes drops $12,000,000.

The item of aids to agriculture drops almost 200 millions due to the fact that the figure for the current year was boosted by the efforts of the farm board to artificially maintain wheat prices and the relief funds voted for drought relief.

The navy obtains $35,000,000 more in 1932 than in 1931, but this largely is due to the fact that funds voted for warship building work during the current year were held up while the naval arms conference was in progress in London.

FISHER ARGUES CITY'S SIDE IN TRANSIT SUIT

Attorney Walter L. Fisher, special counsel for the city, yesterday began his reply in Superior Judge Lindsay's court to the attack of Attorney Stephen Foster, representing two taxpayers, on the validity of the local transportation plan. Attorney Foster asks that the city be enjoined from spending any of the transit fund on grounds that the franchise offered to the new consolidated company is null and void.

Attorney Fisher declared that Mrs. George Bass, one of the complainants, brought the suit as a taxpayer but that she has frequently appeared in the case as a "dissatisfied holder of transit bonds who does not feel that she is getting enough stock in the Chicago Local Transportation company."

The enabling legislation, which Attorney Foster has termed unconstitutional, was drafted by the ablest lawyers in the state, Fisher said. The legislation was available for every one to examine and criticize before it was passed, he said, but Attorney Foster and his clients did not protest at that time. Attorney Fisher will continue his arguments Monday.

ARTIFICIAL LAKE TO BE OPENED AS A PLAY CENTER

An artificial lake, with a bathing beach and recreation center, will be opened tomorrow in the Thorn Creek forest preserve, it was announced yesterday by Emmett F. Whealan, president of the Cook county forest preserve district. The new play center is at Sauk Trail lake, which is about three-quarters of a mile long, extending south from 26th street in Chicago Heights.

The lake was created by the construction of a concrete dam and spillway which was necessary for the extension of the 26th street pavement through the south end of Cook county. The beach is 225 feet long.

LINGLE KILLER'S CRIME HISTORY IS TOLD IN FULL

Investigators Learn His Name Is Leo Brothers.

Twenty-first installment of "The Solution of the Lingle Murder."

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

CHAPTER XXI.

"The toughest gangster I ever met."

This was the verdict of Pat Roche, who has seen the toughest gangsters of the land, after he had spent a few days with the murderer of Alfred Lingle, and had questioned him at great length, and had investigated the gangster's record.

At first the captured killer tried to live out his lie, and asserted his true name was Louis V. Bader, but at length he perceived the futility of such a falsehood, and he revealed that his name was Leo Vincent Brothers, that he hailed from St. Louis, and that he had fled from that city because he was wanted there for murder.

Silence Broken at Last.

This was the first time Rathbun and Roche came to learn the real name of the Lingle murderer, so carefully had he been hid, and so thoroughly was he under cover.

Hoodlums aren't grown any tougher than they are in St. Louis, the city of Egan's Rats and the Red Hots gang. Buster Brothers was as tough as any of them, as was soon demonstrated by his record.

The full and true story of the criminal life of Leo Brothers has never been told. It was not revealed by Brothers himself, nor by his lawyers, for obvious reasons. It could not have been exposed in court for legal reasons, as shall be shown. To publish Brothers' record previously would have been taken as an attempt to prejudice the jury.

Story of Brothers' Life.

But it can be told now, and the beginning might well be Brothers' own formal statement, made by him on Dec. 29, 1930, in the presence of Prosecutor Rathbun, Pat Roche, and Dr. James Whitney Hall, the alienist. The full statement was recorded by an official court reporter.

Mr. Rathbun conducted the questioning:

Q.—What is your name? A.—Do you want my right name?

Q.—I am asking you what your name is. A.—Louis V. Bader.

Q.—Is that your right name? A.—Leo V. Brothers.

Q.—Why do you use the other name? A.—Because I didn't want to use my right name here.

Q. — Why? A. — Because I was charged with a crime in another state, in St. Louis, Mo.

Q.—What crime were you charged with? A.—Charged with murder.

Q.—The murder of whom? A.—John Di Blase, a service car driver.

Conflicting Versions of Murder.

Brothers in this formal statement denied that he had been anywhere about the scene of the murder of Di Blase, who was killed because he refused to join a union for which Brothers was an organizer and slugger.

In earlier discussions the prisoner had given several contradictory stories of the murder. He claimed he had shot in self-defense, that Di Blase had been going about the town with a gun saying he intended to kill Brothers. At another time Brothers declared another man killed Di Blase, and that the murderer then shoved his revolver into Brothers' hand.

Then he told a story of the St. Louis murder case having been "arranged," and that the union officials had fixed it so that another union member, who had since died, would be blamed for the Di Blase murder.

Facts to Be Told Later.

The facts of the murder, as they were given by eyewitnesses who accused Brothers, will be given in a later chapter of this story. Brothers admitted that he had fled from St. Louis on Aug. 3, 1929, the day after the murder, when he learned that witnesses had named him as the killer, and that he had hidden in Chicago ever since, under an assumed name.

Brothers declared the union officials had sent him $25 a week during the time he was in Chicago. He exhibited an eagerness to be sent back to St. Louis, for trial on the Di Blase murder charge, and this was understandable in the light of his guilty fear of the consequences of the Lingle murder charge.

The questioning went on:

Q.—Have you ever been arrested? A.—Yes.

Q.—How many times? A.—I don't know exactly, may be 25.

Questioned About Butler.

Q.—Before your were arrested a week ago yesterday, how long before that had you seen Benny Butler or communicated with him in any way by letetr, telephone, or otherwise? A.—I talked to him on the telephone the Friday before Sunday. That was two days before I was arrested.

Q.—What was the subject of the conversation? A.—Why, he told me he got a telegram from a man named Pat, wanting me to come to Excelsior Springs.

Q.—Who was Pat? A.—Pat O'Day.

Q.—Did he go by any other name? A.—Pat Hogan.

Q.—What is Pat's business? A.—I don't know what he does.

Q.—How many times did you meet him? A.—O, maybe 20 times.

[It should be recalled that Paddy Hogan, another St. Louis gangster, was in Excelsior Springs, planning crimes in the presence of John Hagan, the Rathbun-Roche undercover man, and that Hogan had sent word to Brothers to come there to join in several robberies.]

Admits Knowing Butler.

Q.—You say you know Benny Butler? A.—Yes.

Q.—When I asked you about that on the day you were arrested you denied you knew Benny, didn't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—What was your reason for telling me that? A.—Because he was in the beer racket.

Q.—Do you know a man by the name of Danny Stanton? A.—Yes.

[Danny Stanton is the notorious south side beer runner, operating with the Capone gang.]

Q.—When did you first meet him? A.—Ten months ago.

Q.—Ever visit him at his house? A.—Yes.

Q.—You visited him more than once? A.—About three times.

Q.—Do you know Motor Joe Cada? A.—No.

Q.—He was killed by your friend Hogan. What was Stanton's business? A.—In the beer business with Butler.

Q.—Is that your understanding? A.—Yes.

Q.—Ever get around with Stanton? A.—Drank some beer with him at his house.

ADMITS IDENTITY

Leo V. Brothers, who, after first trying to deceive his captors, confessed he was wanted in St. Louis, gave his right name and told of knowing Ben Butler, Danny Stanton, and other gangsters.

AT THE GREEN MILL

Brothers admitted that he had been employed at the Green Mill Gardens while Texas Guinan and her girls were holding forth there. He said Harry Voiler, one of the lessees of the cabaret, had hired him.

Q.—What did you say to him? A.—I told him I was sent up there.

Q.—By whom? A.—I mentioned Paddy Hogan's name.

Q.—What did he say after you said Paddy sent you up there? A.—He said, "All right, come out."

Q.—What did he tell you to do? A.—To turn on the spotlight and when people came in to sit people at the tables.

Q.—What do you mean by sitting people around the tables? A.—Like if there would be people sitting next to each other that were quarreling or getting in a quarrel or anything, move the tables over or move another party in between them; keep order in the house, that is all.

Never Had Any Trouble.

Q.—You were a policeman, were you? A.—No, just to keep order.

Q.—Bouncer? A.—No.

Q.—What would you call the job you had up there? A.—Bouncer, whatever you would call it. I never had any trouble.

Q.—Heavy man, is that what you call them? A.—Maybe so, I don't know.

Q.—Suppose you saw trouble, what did he tell you to do? A.—The only trouble, people drink, you tell them to sit down, and they sit down.

Q.—Suppose they got to fighting? A.—The majority of them, they were too drunk to hurt anybody.

Q.—How much did you get a week there? A.—$100 a week.

Q.—For just doing what you said? A.—Yes.

His Only Honest Job.

Brothers admitted that with the exception of this bouncer job, which lasted three months, he had not earned a single honest dollar in Chicago. He said that he had received from the St. Louis union officials a recommendation to Tommy Maloy, business agent for the Chicago Moving Picture Operators' union, and that he had spent a week attempting to master the trade, but had abandoned it without receiving any pay for his apprenticeship.

His only income, Brothers stated, was the $25 a week that was sent to him from the secretary of his union in St. Louis. He paid $12 a week for his room at the Lake Crest, and he was well dressed, his suits having been tailored by a fashionable shop on Michigan avenue. There were other evidences that he could not have maintained himself in the style in which he lived for $25 a week.

Asked how he spent his time in Chicago, the prisoner said he played golf frequently in the summer time, at public courses, and that he frequently played the races and gambled at cards.

The Questioning Goes On.

Such was his story. The questioning went on:

Q.—How long since you have seen your mother? A.—Before I come up here, about a month or two weeks, I guess. That is a year and a half.

Q.—Have you ever corresponded with her since you have been up here? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Why didn't you write, A.—I thought maybe the mail would be traced or something.

Q.—You were afraid the mail would be traced and somebody would find you? A.—Yes.

Q.—And all they had against you was this charge in St. Louis? A.—Yes.

Q.—You have not talked with your mother on the telephone? A.—No.

Q.—For the same reason? A.—Yes.

Brought down to a discussion of the Lingle murder, Brothers persisted, as he did throughout the entire 17 days he was in custody, that he had no recollections whatever concerning his whereabouts on the 9th of June, the day of the murder.

He couldn't remember a single person he had talked to. He had no idea as to where he was that day except that he admitted he was in Chicago, and had not left town during any time in June. He was asked if he had read about the Lingle murder, and admitted that he had, but he said he didn't know whether he read the story of the murder on June 9, or later.

The prisoner was shown a gun of the exact type used in the murder of Lingle. He looked at it hesitatingly, and denied he had ever seen it before.

"Here, take it; it won't bite you," said a police officer. Brothers picked it up, gingerly, between his thumb and forefinger. He wouldn't grab it around the butt, as an ordinary man would.

Witnesses Are Called.

Witnesses were summoned to the hotel suite which served as the secret headquarters of the investigation. A screen had been tacked up covering a doorway between the rooms of the suite, and while the witnesses stood in one room, behind the screen, they peered through a slit in the screen into another room. The latter room was brilliantly lighted with lamps that gave as closely as possible the appearance of natural sunlight.

One at a time the witnesses were taken before the screen, and then Brothers, with two of more policemen, was walked into the other room. He walked, he ran, according to instructions. The witnesses viewed his profile, then his full face, and were able to see the manner of his walk, which had certain peculiarities. Brothers walked with a slight sway of his square shoulders.

"Yes! He Is the Man."

It should be borne in mind that Rathbun and Roche had no doubts whatever, before they arrested Brothers and before a single witness ever saw him, that he was the killer they had sought so long.

The description of the slayer which had been assembled and broadcast to police authorities throughout the country fitted Brothers with an amazing correctness.

But for all their certainty, there was a certain leaping of hearts for the investigators when a witness would step up calmly to that screen, see Brothers, and then step back, pale, lips drawn, excitement showing in his eyes, and say:

"Yes! He is the man!"

A CASE AT LAST

At last had been broken the terrible monotony of that other phrase: "He is not the man," which had been the witnesses' refrain after they had looked at the earlier suspects in the case.

First one, then two, then three witnesses accused Brothers.

"We've got a case now," said Rathbun. "It is seldom in any murder case that you find more than three identifying witnesses."

But there were more to point the finger of guilt at Brothers. The witnesses could not all be assembled at one time; some had to come from far parts of the country. It was the hope of the investigators to have every witness who saw the killer in that tunnel at the time of the murder, every man or woman who saw the slayer in flight, come to take a look at Brothers.

All Cannot Be Found.

Of course, all of them could not be found. Many had never revealed themselves to the authorities in fear that because it was a gang murder they might be assassinated if they came forward.

Many witnesses declared that they had not obtained a good enough look at the slayer so that they would be able to identify him. A few stated frankly that they were afraid, and that even if they saw the slayer, they would not identify him. Even these were taken to see Brothers.

When eight witnesses had stated their positive conviction that Brothers was the murderer of Lingle, his capture was announced. Rumors that the killer had been arrested had leaked out and some of the newspapers, still obstructing the investigation, ran sensational stories in which they invented names for the killer. The newspapers exposed the secret hotel headquarters, and made it necessary for Brothers and the investigators to be moved to another hotel.

Indict Brothers for Murder.

Four days after the announcement of the capture of Brothers, Rathbun and Roche took two of the eyewitnesses, Warren Williams and Otto Swoboda, before the grand jury, and immediately an indictment charging Brothers with the murder of Lingle was returned. That night Brothers was placed in a cell in the county jail.

Viewed in the Courtroom.

There were still some witnesses left who had not had opportunity to look at Brothers, and the state made arrangements for these witnesses to be present in court on the day of Brothers' first arraignment.

At this time it may be stated that of all the witnesses interviewed by the state after they had seen Brothers, not a single one stated that he was not the killer of Lingle. Some said they could not be certain; that their memory of the killer's face had dimmed somewhat. Others declared they had not seen enough of the killer to be certain that Brothers was the man.

Not one witness could say with certainty that he was not the man. But eight witnesses said positively that he was the man. They said, in various ways, that never would they forget the killer's face, and that they had seen it again, half a year after the murder of Lingle, in the face of Leo Brothers.

Tell Truth, Is State's Advice.

Never was any witness urged to identify Brothers. They were urged simply to tell the truth, and they were made aware of the seriousness of their duty, that they must be certain, or they should not say so. But they were certain.

There was one man, who had claimed to have seen the killer running away, and who was invited by the prosecutors to look at Brothers in the courtroom, who never reported back to the state's attorney whether the prisoner was or was not the man. On the day that he saw Brothers he left the court and did not return to the investigation headquarters as he had been requested to do. Instead he telephoned that he had become ill and went home.

This man was Paul Thorne, a writer of detective fiction. Later he attempted to sell to various newspapers in the country a story he had written in which he declared that Brothers was not the man he had seen running from the murder scene. He described himself as the "star witness," and his story as a "sensation." He is later to appear in this story as a witness for the defense.

Hagan Still Under Cover.

After the capture of Brothers was announced, secrecy still protected John Hagan, the undercover man who had exposed Brothers, and he continued to hear from Brothers' gangster pal, Pat Hogan.

Shortly after the announcement, Hogan telephoned to Hagan from St. Louis and said he was broke and that Hagan should find Ted Newberry, the erstwhile north side gangster who had deserted to Capone, and borrow $100 for him. Hogan mentioned the capture of Brothers and Hagan asked if there was anything he could do in the matter.

"There ain't anything anybody can do for that fellow, he's gone," replied Hogan. "Stay out of that picture."

Butler Grows Suspicious.

Hagan didn't try to find Newberry and later told Hogan to come to Chicago to try for himself. But Hogan wasn't ready to brave Chicago's "heat." The surveillance was still maintained on the apartment of Benny Butler and Hogan called there on one occasion.

He talked with Mrs. Butler, who revealed that Butler had become suspicious of his telephone wire and she cautioned Hogan not to talk too much over that wire. She gave him another number at which to call Butler, but investigation of this number indicated an error, for instead of the gang hangout which the detectives expected to find at that number, they found only a group of women playing bunco.

Brief Biography of Brothers.

Something of the general biography of this gangster Brothers may be told here.

He was born on April 14, 1899, in Belleville, Ill., and at the time of his capture he was 31 years old. When he was still a child his parents, Harvey and Rose Langford Brothers, separated and were divorced. Mrs. Brothers made her home in St. Louis, where in 1923 she remarried, and she is now the wife of Robert Jessen, a plaster contractor at Webster Groves, a suburb of St. Louis.

Leaving the public schools in St. Louis at the seventh grade, Brothers took one job and another, messenger boy, window trimmer, taxi driver, and also followed other trades.

In 1917 he joined the navy, enlisting from St. Louis. He was sent to the training school at Great Lakes, Ill., and after six months' training was sent to New London, Conn., where he was assigned to duty on a submarine chaser. He never left American waters, and some months after the armistice he was discharged.

Weds St. Louis Girl.

He returned to St. Louis, and shortly afterward he married a young St. Louis girl. They had one child, a son, who is now 10 years old.

The young Mrs. Brothers, interviewed by an investigator sent to St. Louis by Prosecutor Rathbun, stated that Brothers had never made a home for her and that in all the years of their married life he did not contribute more than $40, or $50 at the most, to her support.

They lived for a time with her parents, and at another time with Brothers' mother. Finally, she said, Brothers fell into his ways of crime. He deserted her and the baby, and has never since contributed a penny to support either of them. Mrs. Brothers is living with her parents in St. Louis.

When Brothers fled St. Louis, after the murder of Di Blase, he came directly to Chicago. He lived during the next 18 months in various south side hotels, the Stratton, the Riviera, and the Lake Crest Drive Apartments.

BACK IN PRISON AFTER 13 YEARS, HE GETS PARDON

Governor Frees Fugitive Who "Made Good."

Columbus, O., April 24.—[Special.]—Frank Preston, 30, St. Louis, recently returned to the Ohio reformatory at Mansfield, after a freedom of 13 years, received a full pardon from Gov. White here today.

The pardon, which the governor personally awarded the escaped trusty, was issued upon recommendation of W. J. Kennedy, assistant state director of public welfare, assigned to investigate the case. Gov. White said his investigation showed that Preston had become a law abiding citizen during his years of freedom and that he felt "he had made good and was respected by everyone who knew him."

Letter Causes Arrest.

Preston's case caused much comment when he was found to be an escaped prisoner from the Mansfield reformatory after the receipt by authorities of an anonymous letter. He was returned to the reformatory ten days ago from St. Louis.

Preston walked away from the institution in 1918 while serving a term for robbery of a South Zanesville store.

A trusty job was given him for his bravery in saving several women who had been attacked by Negroes. After escaping from the prison, Preston went to St. Louis and married. He set himself up in the restaurant business and became a respected business man. He is the father of three children.

Pardon Plea Supported.

Application for the pardon was made by Maurice Weil, St. Louis, philanthropist, and by several St. Louis newspapers interested in the case.

"I'm mighty happy, although I knew the governor would pardon me, but I didn't think he would do so soon," Preston said.

"I'm going to hurry back to St. Louis to the wife and my babies and pick up where I left off," he said as he received his pardon from Gov. White.

PLEA TO LOWER BAIL OF $100,000 SET FOR SHELDON IS REFUSED

Los Angeles, Cal., April 24.—[Special.]—In spite of protests by defense attorneys, Municipal Judge Scheinman refused today to lower the bail of $100,000 for Ralph Sheldon, Chicago gunman who awaits arraignment on a charge of perjury. Sheldon's preliminary hearing is set for May 4.

Sheldon's attorneys argued that $100,000 bail is excessive and in violation of the asserted gangster's constitutional rights. "He has been incarcerated for four months, except for two days following his acquittal on charges of attempted murder at Long Beach," Attorney Roland Swadfield told the court. "And he is suffering from tuberculosis."

The perjury charge is based on testimony Sheldon gave at his trial in Long Beach on a charge of shooting a Long Beach policeman.

HELD ON ATTEMPT TO KILL.

Albert Allen, 25 years old, 5734 Indiana avenue, colored, yesterday was held to the grand jury for murder by a coroner's jury investigating the death of James Fyfe, 23 years old, 1234 South 18th avenue, Maywood, who was killed April 12 in a fight over a wrench.

FIND NO CLEW TO MISSING DOCTOR'S FAMILY RETICENT

St. Louis, Mo., April 24.—[Special.]—Along with a myriad of false tips and the lack of tangible clews, the police tonight said they were handicapped by the reticence of the family in the kidnaping of Dr. I. D. Kelley, wealthy physician.

"They are not telling us a thing," said Chief of Detectives Robert Kinder, upon leaving the Kelley home after a brief conference.

Members of the family and friends of the physician stoutly maintained tonight they had received no demands for ransom, police said.

St. Louis police and detectives were engaged in an intensive search of criminal haunts in seven Missouri and Illinois counties for the physician, who left his home Monday night on a faked sick call and whose abduction was witnessed by a man known only to the police.

LIKENS EARTH TO SOAP BUBBLE; ALL THINGS TO VANISH

But Savant Gives Million Billion Years More.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 24.—[Special.]—Sir James Jeans, the British astronomer, arrived on the Mauretania today en route to Pasadena, Cal., where he will discuss cosmological problems and theories with scientists there.

In passing through, Sir James ventured the prediction that in time the atoms of the planets, including the earth, will dissolve into radiation and that all matter will disappear. There will be no earth nor any other visible thing.

A million million years, and maybe more will elide by, however, before the ultimate end and there is no need of being sleep over the prospects. But the dark, distant day of disintegration is coming, of that Sir Jeans is mathematically certain, and his charts jibe with those of Prof. Albert Einstein.

Universe Like Soap Bubble.

Sir James believes the universe is somewhat like a soap bubble, that as soon as it came into existence it began swelling out in size and must go on expanding indefinitely. The material universe, he holds, is wasting away, due to the radio activity of the sun, and mankind is like a polar bear on a melting ice floe.

The visiting astrophysicist, who is accompanied by Lady Jeans, is on his way to see Prof. Robert Andrew Millikan and Prof. Edwin Hubble in their mountain mecca for astronomers.

Asked whether the constant increase of radio waves in the air might not in time have a dramatic effect on the permanence of the earth, Sir James smiled.

Unseen and Unknown Forces.

"There are," he said, "so many unseen and unknown forces about us which we do not understand or grasp that a blind use of them might result in something of the sort."

The astronomer was asked about Van Maanen's star, in the interior of which, he has been quoted as saying, a particle the size of a pea emits sufficient radiation to burn everything within 1,000 miles. Specifically he was asked concerning the release of such sub-atomic force.

"I doubt that it will ever come in my day," he replied. "But with certain protective devices such a thing is conceivable. After all man is not going to attempt experiments which, instead of furnishing benefit, would mean burning him up and turning him into gas."

If an atom were split and its energy released, the astronomer said, it was quite possible the distintegration might communicate itself to the earth and destroy it. Mankind a million times as old may be a million times as wise, Sir James believes, and for that reason civilization may be able to keep pace with the disintegration of the earth. The present human race, whose intelligence dates back only a single tick of the astronomical clock, could hardly hope to understand so soon what it all means.

BALCHEN BACKS BYRD IN AIR CONTROVERSY

New York, April 24.—(AP)—Bernt Balchen, pilot, said tonight: "The idea that I have ever felt that Rear Admiral Byrd didn't give me sufficient credit on the trans-Atlantic flight of the America is absurd."

Balchen in a statement prompted by publication of an autobiography of Anthony Fokker, airplane manufacturer, in which Byrd's part in the flight was belittled, added:

"After all, I went to the antarctic with him as chief pilot. And that fact ought to speak for itself."

He said he did not wish to enter into a controversy, but that some newspaper accounts of the subject had misquoted him.

"Byrd, of course," he said, "was always in command of the America. I took my orders, verbally and written, from him throughout the flight and at the moment of landing at Ver-sur-Mer. We were always in agreement as to what had to be done during the flight.

"I am glad that I went with Admiral Byrd on his expedition. I don't know a more courageous man and I have always been satisfied with his leadership."

Asks More Alimony

MRS. EDITH WILMANS BORN.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Edith Wilmans Born, former member of the Texas legislature, filed a petition with Superior Judge Desort yesterday asking for an increase in the temporary alimony payments she is receiving from her estranged husband, Henry A. Born, president of the Born Refrigerator company. Mrs. Born says that she is entitled to the increase because she sacrificed a high political and social position in Texas to marry Born in February of 1929.

Mrs. Born has pending a suit for separate maintenance in which she accuses her husband of cruelty. Through her attorney, Lloyd Faxon, she recently was awarded $80 a month temporary alimony in addition to the rent on her home at 4746 Greenwood avenue. Born, according to the petition filed yesterday, now has a weekly income of $200, owns property worth $250,000, and is able to pay more alimony.

Mrs. Born is 48 years old. She was in the Texas legislature in 1923-'24.

Chicago will be connected with Philadelphia and other Pennsylvania centers by air line on May 1, when the Transcontinental Western Air Express line will inaugurate a shuttle service between here and Columbus, O., connecting with the coast to coast line of the company. Announcement of the new service was made yesterday by Harris M. Hanschue, president of the line.

Eastbound planes will leave Chicago daily at 12:20 p. m., stopping at Fort Wayne and connecting at Columbus with the transcontinental ships at 3:48 p. m. This connection will provide six hour air service between here and Philadelphia, the planes arriving there at 7:58 p. m. Four hour service will be provided between here and Pittsburgh. The planes will also stop at Harrisburg, Pa., and will arrive in New York at 8:44 p. m.

Tri-motored Ford air liners will be used in the Chicago-Columbus shuttle. West bound, the planes of the main line leave New York at 10:45 a. m., connecting with the Chicago shuttle at Columbus.

WOMAN IS FINED IN INTERCEPTING POLITICAL WIRE

Mrs. Mildred Bailey, 33 years old, 3103 North Springfield avenue, a telegraph operator for 17 years, yesterday was fined $200 by Judge Alfred O. Erickson on a charge of intercepting a political telegram sent by a Democratic worker and used by the former city administration during the recent campaign.

Mrs. Buckley's defense was that she did not know of a law prohibiting the diversion of telegraph messages. Police are searching for her husband, James Buckley, who is charged with turning a copy of the telegram over to the former city hall forces.

DOCTORS BALKED BY MISSIONARY'S RARE AFFLICTION

Cleveland, O., April 24.—(AP)—Suffering from distomiasis, a dreaded and rare disease of the orient, the Rev. Ralph Thurber lay in City hospital here tonight, uncertain of his fate, but anticipating death within a month.

Officials of the hospital said the diagnosis of Mr. Thurber's ailment was definite but that they and consulting physicians were puzzled by the case.

Mr. Thurber said he undoubtedly contracted the disease while he was recently a missionary in China, that it was caused by eating fish containing parasites which attack the human liver or lungs, and that generally distomiasis is fatal. His doctors said he apparently knew more about the disease than they did, as only five cases are on record in the United States.

Johns Hopkins Not Qualified.

In a faint hope of obtaining a cure, Mr. Thurber today said he wanted to be taken to the Johns Hopkins university at Baltimore, as a subject of experiment for the medical staff there. No arrangements for such a transfer had been completed tonight however, and the Johns Hopkins physicians said they had advised him to seek advice from the tropical disease departments of Harvard or Tulane universities. The Johns Hopkins doctors said the disease was so rare that only a few institutions in this country are familiar with it.

Attendants at the hospital here said Mr. Thurber was conscious and did not give evidence of suffering any great pain, but that he was strictly confined to his bed. He was experiencing occasional hemorrhages and alternate periods of chills and fever with his temperature running as high as 104 degrees.

Can't Determine Treatment.

Dr. A. J. Sullivan, medical superintendent of the hospital, said no special treatment was being given the sufferer because so little was known of the disease in this country.

Other attendants said they believed the Rev. Mr. Thurber might be "overly alarmed," but Dr. Sullivan said there was no evidence that it was a psychopathic case. There was a wide variance of medical opinion whether Mr. Thurber had a little or large opportunity of recovery, but the burden of the opinions were that his chances were slim.

COMES FROM FISH EGGS.

Distomiasis was described by American Medical association officials here today as caused by tremagods, or organisms that find a habitat amidst the eggs of fish. The disease is contracted either by eating raw fish or drinking water infected by the fish eggs.

The disease is divided into four different clinical classes — intestinal, liver, pulmonary, and blood—dependent upon where the tremagods lodge themselves permanently after entering the intestinal tract.

Should the organisms bore into the blood system, they spread even to the brain. Three have been instances, the association said, of eye distomia.

75TH BIRTHDAY IS OBSERVED BY HISTORICAL BODY

Without pomp or ceremony the Chicago Historical society observed its 75th anniversary yesterday. Any celebration for the society's diamond jubilee will be held early in the summer in connection with construction of a new building in Lincoln park.

A radio address was given over W-G-N by L. Hubbard Shattuck, director, who reviewed the society's history, and visitors viewed the treasures of the society in the building at 632 North Dearborn street. There was only one collection in the whole building that was a part of the original exhibit of the society. All the others were burned in the fire of 1871.

The remaining collection is of the letters written by George Flower and Morris Birbeck, Englishmen who tried to establish a colony at Albion, Ill., to President Thomas Jefferson, and his replies. The letters were loaned in the southern part of the state at the time of the fire.

The Chicago Historical society, Mr. Shattuck said in his radio talk, was organized in a building on La Salle street, between Lake and Randolph streets. William H. Brown was president. At that time Chicago's population was 86,000.

CANNON REPORT TO BE MADE; UP TO BISHOP TO ACT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 24.—[Special.]—The Nye senate committee will not back down in the face of the challenge of its constitutional powers voiced by Bishop James Cannon Jr.

It will continue its inquiry into the uses Bishop Cannon made of the $65,300 given him by E. C. Jameson of New York to conduct an anti-Smith campaign in Virginia in 1928.

A report of whatever evidence the committee brings out in connection with the Jameson fund, or other campaign funds entrusted to the bishop, will be laid before the senate and, if it is warranted, before Attorney General Mitchell.

Study of Bishop Cannon's accounts in various banks has disclosed, it is reported, that he was custodian not only of the sum donated by Jameson but of other large campaign contributions.

It is the attitude of members of the committee that their proper course is to compile the evidence they have gathered and let Bishop Cannon come forward with his testimony, or not, as he chooses.

FOR MY BABY'S SAKE..I WANT TO try IT..

• I have just been talking with Mrs. Brown, my next door neighbor. She has raised a family of four children—and such fine children they are.

• She very often gives me good advice when I take any of my problems to her, especially when they concern my own baby.

• I asked her yesterday what milk her children were raised on—and she said Wanzer's. Then she became as enthusiastic as I have ever seen her. She strongly recommended that I try Wanzer's milk—said we would all love its rich flavor.

• Of course I shall try it. Her children are the only evidence I need—and I want the best there is for my baby. I am going to call Wanzer's right away. Their number is Boulevard 7900.

POLAND FEARS TO GRANT AUTONOMY TO UKRAINIANS

Warsaw's Policy Is Still "Up in the Air."

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LVOV, Poland, April 24.—In the present Polish parliament, in which the nonpartisan bloc of Marshal Pilsudski has a majority, there are 26 Ukranian deputies. Five belong to the nonpartisan bloc and the remainder constitute the Ukrainian National Democratic party. This party has opposed the government for years. In the last parliament it had 26 deputies, while eight other Ukrainians belonged to the communist group and only three to Pilsudski's party.

According to some Ukrainian deputies their party's position is made difficult by the Ukrainian military organization, whose members use this organization to cover their anti-government activities. These deputies, fresh from prison, where they were confined during the "pacification" of Galicia, contend their party is pledged to carry out a "minimal program" against the government. They demand Ukrainian autonomy under the Polish flag, with a Ukrainian governor, diet and a university in Lvov. This party has filed petitions with the league of nations asking that Poland be compelled to grant the Ukrainians autonomy, to reopen their schools and grant economic help to their organizations and societies.

Want Independent State.

"In their campaign against the Polish government for autonomy and other privileges the Ukrainians are basing their program on the hopes of the disintegration of Russia and the formation of an independent Ukrainian state," a professor of the Lvov university said. "This would include 36,000,000 Ukrainians in the present Ukrainian socialistic soviet republic and cut off the entire southeastern corner of Poland, a piece of Czecho-Slovakia, and take Bessarabia away from Rumania.

"Poland is not so sure that the soviet federation will fall to pieces and, if it does, we are prepared to defend our present frontiers. It is because of this dream that the Ukrainians have announced through their parliamentary leader, Dr. L. Lewitzki, their intention to continue the fight for an independent state. They refuse to admit that the formation of the Polish republic saved them from incorporation into the soviet government, where their fate would be a thousand times worse than under Polish rule.

Policy Still in Formation.

"One of the obstacles to the solution of this conflict is the lack of unity on the part of the present Polish government towards the Ukrainians. The Warsaw policy is to conciliate the Ukrainians, but they look upon the situation as an administrative problem. The government fears to recognize an autonomous district within Poland's frontiers because it might be compelled to grant such rights to other groups, especially the Germans in upper Silesia. Its policy is still in the process of formation and for this reason the negotiations between the Ukrainians and the government are still in the air.

"There also is the stand the Poles are taking in Galicia. We insist that the Ukrainians must surrender their claim that this part of Poland is Ukrainian territory. Poles as well as Ukrainians live there. The Poles refuse to be placed completely under Ukrainian administration because they and the Jews comprise the majority of the urban population.

A Step Toward Autonomy.

"The Ukrainians are peasants and their intelligent class is small. If the present leaders of the Ukrainians will realize that it is better for their race in Poland to live peacefully under the Polish flag than to be actively working against Poland for a dim hope of a great republic with headquarters in Kiev, only then will the government be prepared to grant them concessions and meet their demands halfway.

"A proposal has been made by the government to the Ukrainians to liquidate the three governorships of Lvov, Tarnopol and Stanislav, uniting them into one, under the administration of a man satisfactory to the Ukrainians. This is a step towards autonomy.

"Concealed beneath the dispute is the land hunger of the Ukrainian peasants. All of the large estates in this section of Poland are owned by the Poles."

BRITISH TRADE BODIES TOLD RUSSIA'S 5 YEAR PLAN MENACES WORLD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 24.—Russia's five year plan today was branded as a grave threat to the economic structure of the world before British chambers of commerce by Sir John Sandeman Allen, whose alarm at the appearance of Russian products on the British market has resulted in the organization of a preliminary defense of Great Britain's industries.

A resolution requested the executive council of the commerce bodies to study the effect on British trade and industries of Russia's steadily increasing exports and the offering by Russia of goods for sale at prices "which bear no relation to the true cost of production calculated on a regular commercial basis." The resolution further urged a study of what steps can be taken by the government and the business world to counteract "this entirely new method of marketing which manifestly constitutes a serious organized attack on the commercial system of the whole world."

Sir John who, as a Conservative member of parliament, represented the Liverpool chamber of commerce, said: "It is perfectly clear that the soviet government, which is perfectly ruthless, is determined in its efforts to become one of the leading industrial nations of the world. Its output is increasing at a startling rate so that the goods which they have exported to this country, now small, will very soon come forward in larger quantities and will have a very serious effect on the industrial and commercial interests of other nations. The issue is threatening the entire business world."

CAR THIEVES FLEE CHAUFFEURS; ARE TAKEN BY POLICE

Two chauffeurs for Harold F. McCormick, chairman of the executive committee of the International Harvester company, yesterday brought the capture of two young automobile thieves in a restaurant near Michigan avenue and Ontario street after two Lincoln park policemen had taken up the chase and fired at the fleeing robbers.

The youths captured are Thomas Darrus, 19 years old, 707 Blue Island avenue, and August De Angelo, 17 years old, 858 Blue Island avenue. While tampering with an automobile at 115 East Huron street, near Mr. McCormick's private garage, they aroused the suspicions of the two chauffeurs, L. H. Hull and Carl Mitchell.

When the chauffeurs approached to question the youths, they jumped into the car and started off. Hull leaped on their running board and grappled with one of them, but was pushed off. He followed on foot, and attracted the attention of the park policemen, A. F. Holt and Phillip Jeffries, who took up the chase. The youths abandoned the car after the policemen started shooting and ran into a restaurant in Ontario street, where they were captured.

Police said the pair confessed stealing the car from Miss Marian Markham, who is employed at 644 North Michigan.

COURT PROBES THREATS AGAINST HOLDUP VICTIMS

Alleged intimidation of witnesses who appeared in Melrose Park police court yesterday to identify George Ryan, 27 years old, companion of Michael Ferelli, who was slain last Wednesday morning when the pair attempted their fourth holdup in Melrose Park, resulted in a personal investigation by Magistrate Louis Senese.

Mrs. Theresa Coskinis, owner of the Diana confectionery, 1607 Lake street, identified Ryan and said that she had been threatened with being "taken for a ride" in anonymous telephone calls if she persisted in her identification. James Miliatello, owner of a roadhouse, robbed by the pair, refused to identify Ryan. Two other witnesses refused to appear in court.

"Just Shot by a Friend," Says Dying Gang Suspect

South Bend, Ind., April 24.—[Special.]—In the traditional code of the gangs to which police suspect he belonged, George L. Parry, 40, died tonight at the Epworth hospital, refusing to tell anything further than that he had been "shot by a friend." He was struck in the mouth by a single bullet fired at short range as he stepped out of a garage at his father-in-law's home here, where he had just put his new Lincoln automobile. His wife's father said Parry traveled a great deal and had recently returned from an airplane trip.

DAY OFF IN RUSSIA FOR MEN MEANS WASHING FEET

Women Sew, Read, or Write Letters.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MOSCOW, April 4.—[By Mail.]—All dressed up and no place to go, seven hours work a day and a five day week, but nothing to do on time off. That is what the Russian is facing today. Soviet authorities have continuously sought to reduce working hours, ostensibly to give the proletariat more free time, although some cynics assert it is merely to give jobs to more people and keep a greater number of the population on the pay roll and held well in hand.

In the timber camps I have visited I have asked the workers how they disposed of their free time. I have looked about to ascertain for myself, but nowhere have I found an adequate reply and explanation.

"We work only seven hours a day and get a whole day off after every four days' work," they invariably boasted. "Under the old régime we worked ten and eleven hours a day and six days a week."

Most of Them Rest.

"What do you do on your day off? What do you do after you complete your shift every afternoon?" was my invariable question.

"We rest," was the censensus of replies.

"But you can't be so tired after working only seven or eight hours when you formerly worked ten and eleven hours," I observed.

"Well, we go to the 'Lenin corner,' or to the club, or we tidy up our room, or read or write letters," they said.

Many men, women, boys, and girls on their day of recreation just sit or lie about waiting for the morrow when they would be back at work.

Because no matter what the shortage of labor is or how much of a rush it is in, Russia never calls on her laborers to work on their day off.

A man spends a good part of his day off in fixing his feet. They usually keep them washed quite clean (unless they are kulaks) and they patter about their rooms and the corridors barefooted—none have slippers—while their big, heavy felt boots are propped up against the Russian stove drying and warming.

Tinker with Radio Sets.

They also tinker with radio sets or walk miles, if necessary, to see some friend who has a radio. They walk down to the cooperative store and examine various articles and gossip or "kid" the girls behind the counter. Some do a little drinking. Women usually sit on the edge of their beds in the dormitory and sew. I saw one girl manicuring her finger nails. She showed me her tools.

"These clippers came from Germany," she explained, "and the cream a friend sent me from Moscow. I am hoping to get some red pomade, too."

When I said that might be a trifle conspicuous, she assured me that a girl who worked in the same mill had worn crimson finger nails all winter.

The children, the apprentices, boys and girls from 16 to 19 years, some only 15, revealed a sad misconception of what a holiday means, and annoyed their elders by insisting on hanging around the saw mill, even though it was their day off.

Children Good Workmen.

On the job the children took their business very seriously. They stood there stiff as starch, carrying out their instructions solemnly and carefully. A 16 year old girl was at a lathe, reaming out slots for a cog wheel from a big lump of metal. She watched the machine carefully as it spun around, scooping out a tiny filament of steel on each revolution.

"I am a correspondent for the factory newspaper and I spend my day off working on that," she explained. "I get personal items about the people I know and yesterday I wrote a big piece about a man who got his little finger sliced off by a circular saw."

These house organs are printed in big block letters by hand and illustrated by volunteer artists and then, on the date of publication, are pasted on the wall of the club building. One stands in front of them and reads the news. Hence they are called "wall papers." They have always been an institution in Russia.

PASTOR IS CLEARED BY JURY OF CHARGE OF KISSING WOMAN

Kansas City, Mo., April 24.—[Special.]—It took the jury in the Wyandotte County District court just thirty minutes and two ballots to decide that the Rev. James Cornish did not kiss Mrs. Bertha Thomas, therefore should not be required to pay her the $5,000 damages she sought.

The Rev. Mr. Cornish immediately became the center of a large group of women members of his former congregation, all seeking to congratulate him. Mrs. Thomas, the plaintiff, quietly left the courtroom, remarking that in all probability there would be a motion filed for for a new trial.

"It just goes to show," Mr. Cornish said, "that justice will triumph."

AMERICAN JAIL BIRD HONORED BY RUSSIAN REDS

MOSCOW, April 24.—(AP)—William Z. Foster, American communist, who has served prison terms for his activities in the United States, was elected one of the twenty-seven members on the standing committee for current business of the communist internationale, a report of the congress held early this month disclosed today.

The document includes a balance sheet figured in dollars instead of rubles for the first time since the organization published a balance. The 1930 receipts were $1,096,231, as compared with $838,092 in 1929. The membership in 1930 was given as 2,518,637, as compared with approximately 2,000,000 in the previous year.

There is a section reiterating the charge that the United States, under the leadership of President Hoover, plotted to assist in a scheme for foreign intervention in Russia through the medium of the federal farm board, which "purchased supplies intended for intervening armies under the guise of farm relief."

Fashionable Bay State Hotel Burns; Million Loss

Lenox, Mass., April 25 [Saturday].—[Special.]—The Hotel Aspinwall, one of the most fashionable hostelries in the Berkshires and a social center for summer activities during more than twenty years, was destroyed by fire early today. The hotel, valued at about $1,000,000, was located in a 550 acre private estate north of Lenox.

SNOWDEN LEAVES HIS SICKBED TO PRESENT BUDGET

Expect Tax Increases to Meet Big Deficit.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 24.—Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, returned to London today from his country home, where he had been several weeks recovering from an operation. He will attend a final meeting for the cabinet before introducing his budget Monday.

PHILIP SNOWDEN. [Acme photo.]

It was announced today that Mr. Snowden is well enoug hto undertake the heavy task of making his own budget speech, which, however, will be cut to one hour instead of the usual two hours. While he is making the speech two doctors will watch from the gallery of the house of commons. The speech will be typewritten so that if he breaks down it can be finished by one of his colleagues.

Contents of Budget Secret.

The contents of the budget, as usual, are being kept secret in order to prevent speculation in commodities on which taxes will be changed.

It is generally agreed among the political prophets that there will be no increase in the income tax, but it seems almost certain that the tax on gasoline, which is now 8 cents on the Imperial gallon, will be increased by 4 to 6 cents. There is also talk of an increase in the taxes on tobacco, beer, and wine.

May Use Fund in U. S.

It is also stated that it is likely Mr. Snowden will decide to use a fund established in New York when exchange conditions were unsettled for the purchase of dollars when the market was favorable for the payment of interest and amortization of the American debt. That fund now amounts to about $175,000,000 and it is considered no longer necessary.

TITLED IOWAN, ELEVATOR MAN, SEEKS DIVORCE

Waterloo, Ia., April 24.—(AP)—Sir Reginald Beatty Wolseley, elevator operator here, who last year came into a title, is seeking a divorce from the English girl he married because she cared for his mother.

Sir Reginald, better known as Dick Wolseley, filed suit in District court today against Lady Marion Elizabeth Baker Wolseley, charging desertion.

Wolseley last May 24 received a telephone call from Miss Baker, who said she had nursed his mother during the latter's fatal illness in England, and had promised to bring home the wandering son. She suggested marriage. After the marriage Lady Wolseley left at once for Devonshire, England, seat of the family estate, and her husband announced he would follow shortly.

But he never did, preferring to remain and run the elevator.

Commenting on the divorce suit, Sir Reginald said, "The lady can keep her title, and everybody should be very happy."

Swallows Kernel of Corn; Child Dies 2 Days Later

Urbana, Ill., April 24.—(AP)—Ruth Hanson, 5, of Rankin died today as the result of a kernel of corn lodging in her windpipe. The grain became caught two days ago, and surgeons at a Danville hospital were unable to remove it. Death was caused by lung congestion.

German Novel Loses Fire in English Version

"The Web of Youth" Is Lauded Abroad.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Web of Youth," by W. E. Suskind. [Brewer & Warren.]

WITH such a recommendation as as this from Thomas Mann, the Nobel prize recipient, "The Web of Youth" comes to America [in translation by Malcolm Campbell]: "Willy Suskind, in my opinion, belongs among the most gifted and, intellectually as well as artistically, among the most representative members of the generation of young German writers. His first great novel, 'The Web of Youth,' deals with the life of the young people who experienced the war as schoolboys and the postwar inflation as youths, and analyzes in a very subtle and plastic way their outer and inner lives."

W. E. SUSKIND.

Other critics, Bruno Frank and Frank Thiess, also praise the book without reservation. The enthusiasm of all of these estimable writers convinces me that the translator of "The Web of Youth" has made a bad job of getting it into English for us. For in Mr. Campbell's translation, it has a sort of stodgy heaviness. The author's wings, so unreservedly proclaimed as authentic in their long, strong flight in the realms of creative art, seem tipped with lead. The flight goes on, but not with the sure, swift direct purpose that you feel must be in the original German or it would not have caused a jury of his peers [and of his elders if not his betters] to become so lyric about young Willy Suskind. Unfortunately we must judge "The Web of Youth" as it appears in English, since it is offered to us in that language. As such it seems to me, although it has the outstanding and impressive virtue of authenticity and honesty, to lack the endearing quality of a beautiful or a brilliant or a powerful style.

One does get from it a picture of post-war youth in Germany [not Berlin, but a smaller place]. One does feel that Fleming [as its major character] actually did live through the days and the experiences which it records; that his fellow students were ardent participators in the youth movement, that there was a certain matter-of-factness about love with them which is slightly alien to our minds trained on romantic tales; that their life was tamped, in a sense, by fate. You feel that because the facts are so obviously facts. You do not feel it because the author, as a great artist, makes it impossible for you to miss feeling the pulse of youthful post-war adjustment.

"The Web of Youth" has much more of the atmosphere [in its technique, not in its material] of the long, discursive, a little underdone Russian novel than one would have expected from the younger German school.

There are pages in the book, however, which are tremendously gripping, so much so that they make it easy to believe that the reason the whole book is a little on the dullish side is the fault of the translation. A sentence like this about the hero's meeting a group of incurables is amazingly keen observation: "When Auntie Violet introduced any of them to Fleming she slurred over their names, but stressed their infirmities—both legs paralyzed—leg amputated—and each time the woman in question would nod with a certain pride, half straighten herself and confirm the statement, 'both legs paralyzed since I was twelve years old.' Their pride and assiduity were terrible. Fleming did not feel he was among sick people; the sensation he had was rather of being in a sweet smelling hothouse among misshapen and luxurious human plants."

And this: "There are some people who, no matter how clever and full of life they may be, allow you, in some inexplicable way, to spare yourself in their presence; you feel free of certain obligations, can readily deceive them, for instance, and be double-faced toward them without any pangs of conscience. Children as a rule stand in such a relationship toward their parents."

The weeks which Fleming spends in England, the trip to England, seem, strangely, the best part of the book, perhaps because the translator was on more familiar ground there than in the chaos of post-war Germany.

HENRY J. SMITH GETS FICTION AWARD AND GEO. DILLON, POETRY

The first awards for poetry and fiction of the Chicago Foundation for Literature were made on Thursday evening, Shakespeare's birthday, at a dinner given by the Friends of American Writers at the Blackstone hotel. The poetry award was made to George Dillon, author of "Boy in the Wind," and the fiction award to Henry Justin Smith, author of "Deadlines," "Josslyn," "Poor Devil," and collaborator with Lloyd Lewis in "Chicago: the History of Its Reputation."

The presentation of the poetry award was made by Harriet Monroe, editor of Poetry Magazine; Carl Sandburg, Agnes Lee Freer, and Miss Monroe were the judges of the poetry award.

Llewellyn Jones made the presentation of the fiction award. Mr. Jones, Frank Hurburt O'Hara and Baker Brownell formed the committee to choose the laureled novelist. The prizes were for $300 each.

Mrs. Carl I. Henrikson is president of the Chicago Foundation for Literature, which was founded two years ago, sponsored by the Friends of American Writers and supported by many of the women's clubs of Chicago. The foundation was formed to encourage American writers, especially those of the middle west and Chicago, and the awards are to be made annually. George B. Utley, librarian of the Newberry library, suggested as a slogan for the foundation, the football yell, "Hold 'Em Chicago."

The audience, which filled the Crystal ballroom, all very thoroughly lived up to their names as friends of American writers. They even helped to name Margaret Ayer Barnes' next book. She is torn between two titles for it, "Love Still Has Something of the Sea" and "Third Thoughts," one of which she chose and the other by her publisher.

We decided there never was a better chance to canvass intelligent public opinion about a title, so we asked every one to indicate by a raising of the hand [as they say] which title appealed most to them. "Third Thoughts" got it.

Mrs. Barnes, in a short talk afterwards, said since every one was so helpful about the title perhaps some one would be willing to write her last chapter for her. It has to be finished by May 19. There were no takers, however. Among those making short talks were Mr. Utley, Edgar J. Goodspeed, Lessing Rosenthal, Howard Vincent O'Brien, Alice Gerstenberg, Mr. O'Hara, Hugo E. Otte, treasurer of the foundation, and Mr. Henrikson, its secretary. F. B.

Meetings and Lectures

"Stout Cortes," by Henry Morton Robinson, will be reviewed at the meeting of the Bookfellows this evening at 6 o'clock at 19 South La Salle street.

Under the auspices of the William Vaughn Moody foundation, Christopher Morley will lecture at the Mandel hall, University of Chicago, on Monday at 3:15 p. m. His subject will be "Escaped Into Print."

On Tuesday at 6:45 p. m. in Fullerton hall of the Art institute, Prof. Robert M. Lovett, department of English, University of Chicago, will give his fourth lecture on "Values in Fiction," with a discussion on "Aesthetic Values: Nature, Sex."

Boys Invited to Play Ball by Babe Ruth

While Another Book Has Mother's Day Appeal.

BY AGATHA L. SHEA.

[Director of children's work for branches of the Chicago public library.]

"How to Play Baseball," by Herman [Babe] Ruth. [Cosmopolitan.]
"Mothers of Famous Men," by Archer Wallace. [R. R. Smith.]
"Pershing," by Harold McCracken. [Brewer & Warren.]
"A Fifth for the King," by Alida Malkus. [Harper.]
"Little Yussuf," by Idella Purnell. [Macmillan.]

The baseball season and Mother's day are both upon us. Young people interested in taking active parts in the program of either will find some very practical assistance in two books whose timeliness alone would make them especially valuable.

Young players who are planning their first team, or older ones who would like to graduate from beginners' into winning teams will find Babe Ruth's "How to Play Baseball" exceedingly helpful. In it the famous player covers all of the various phases of the game, points out the problems of each and explains the professional handling of them. The author talks directly to the boys as he would were he instructing them on the practice field, points out mistakes commonly made and tells how to avoid them. Diagrams and sketches clarify the directions for playing. It is a useful handbook for the boy who is anxious to learn the game.

Equally timely is Archer Wallace's "Mothers of Famous Men." With the development of Mother's day observance by churches, clubs, etc., in the last few years, a need for suitable material for use has been keenly felt, and this book of brief biographies of mothers of famous men makes a welcome addition to program material.

For the readers who have a liking for adventure with a background of history there are two titles of interest among the week's offerings. Harold McCracken's "Pershing" is a story of Gen. J. J. Pershing from the time of his early childhood to that of his retirement and includes the history of his various campaigns. Boys will enjoy reading of his pioneer boyhood in Missouri, his adventures in the Indian country, and his achievements in the Spanish-American and world wars. It is interestingly written, and boys of 10 to 12 years will find it a good adventure story. Adventure of another type is Alida Sims Malkus' "A Fifth for the King."

This is historical rather than biographical, telling the tale of a Spanish orphan lad, Ramon de la Torre, who plays his part in the conquest of Yucatan. Sailing as a stowaway on the Spanish ship bound for the new world, he sets out to seek a lost brother, but shipwreck and strange adventures lead to his playing a leading part in the Maya conquest, and it is years before a little toy ship finally is the means of bringing the brothers together. Like the other fine stories by this author, it is not only an inspiring tale of daring and adventure, extremely well written, but is also an authentic picture of the civilization of the period.

For the younger children [8 to 10 years] Idella Purnell, in her "Little Yussuf," tells a good story of a little Syrian boy, of his everyday life, of the desert trip which he took with his uncle's caravan, and of the gay celebrations which marked Halloween.

"THE GARDEN" WINS PRAISE AS NOVEL, DELICATELY WRITTEN

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—L. A. G. Strong's new novel, "The Garden," which I have already mentioned prior to its publication, is now enjoying great success. I do not know of a recent novel which has received so much praise from the reviewers in England. It will not be published in the United States until this fall, but when it comes I think it will find a great welcome from all who appreciate delicacy in novel writing. The book is the story of a boy's life tit has some affinities with Neil Gunn's "Morning Tide") and is told with much beauty.

LIONEL BRITTON.

The author has been living in London for a time and meeting other authors, publishers, and critics. It has been a new experience, for Mr. Strong has until recently made his home at Oxford. He is still in the early thirties, is a graduate of Oxford university, is Irish, modest, and is unlikely to be spoilt by all the praise he is getting. Indeed, his next action will be to leave London far behind him, retire to the remote highlands of Scotland, live the simple life, and set to work upon his next book.

This shows wisdom on his part, for London is no place for a successful young novelist who wants to do even better work than he has done. Another good sign in Mr. Strong is that he does not talk, or show any inclination to talk, about his own work. He is interested in other writers, but is more interested still in their work. I shall be very much surprised if he does not take a high place among English novelists within the next few years.

The other book that is being taken seriously by inner critics at the moment is Lionel Britton's "Hunger and Love." America has just had this book, but it was fitting that it should make its mark first of all in London, for Mr. Britton is a London man. His book is largely autobiographical. And what an autobiography! Born and self-brought up in the slums of London, Mr. Britton was possessed with enormous ambitions. He got hold of books and read them in the street on his way to work; he read (I am sorry to say) in his employer's time; and taught himself languages in the same way.

All this he vividly describes in his book. And he worked in London bookshops, tramping the streets with a sack in which he put the books he had to buy from the various publishers on whom he called. When at last he had won free from this dreary life, he wrote a play which has already been published. He had, and has, the most overwhelming confidence in himself, and he forced Bernard Shaw to read the manuscript of this play. He also forced Arnold Bennett to attend the first performance. He just told them they had to do so, and they could not refuse him. His novel has a preface by Bertrand Russell, and it has made a real hit here. It will surely do the same in America.

No book so vigorous and so egotistical could help making a hit.

Borneo Wins Place Again in Stories of Adventure

"Cross Roads of the Java Sea," by Hendrik de Leeuw [Cape-Smith], is as alluring as its title. It's the first book about Borneo, Celebes, Sumatra, Java, and Bali written by a Dutch-American since 1868, and with the author's linguistic skill with Dutch, Javanese, and Malay dialects he has obtained picturesque and intimate details of life in Holland's East Indian possessions not possible with the average traveler. The book has a few photographs and many bizarre sketches, but not one map nor even an index.

WITH SPRINGTIME AND ROMANCE, the world turns to Edna St. Vincent Millay's new volume of Love Sonnets, FATAL INTERVIEW

Love is not all; it is not meat nor drink
Nor slumber nor a roof against the rain,
Nor yet a floating spar to men that sink
And rise and sink and rise and sink again;
Love can not fill the thickened lung with breath,
Nor clean the blood, nor set the fractured bone;
Yet many a man is making friends with death
Even as I speak, for lack of love alone.
It well may be that in a difficult hour,
Pinned down by pain and moaning for release,
Or nagged by want past resolution's power,
I might be driven to sell your love for peace,
Or trade the memory of this night for food.
It well may be. I do not think I would.

This poem, copyright 1931 by Edna St. Vincent Millay, is the thirtieth of fifty-two love sonnets in

THE NET OF JUSTICE.

The difficulties besetting the course of justice in this community are poignantly emphasized in the case of Red Barker.

Barker is a conspicuous example of the incorrigible offender who somehow manages repeatedly to escape the clutches of the law and return to prey upon society. He has a criminal record dating back to 1916, serving one term in the Michigan penitentiary and one in Illinois, now brought to a close by a decision of the Supreme court.

He was convicted in 1918 for larceny. As soon as the law allows he was granted a parole. He made use of his freedom by, among other things, committing a robbery in Michigan, for which he served his term in the Michigan penitentiary. When discharged there he was sent back to Pontiac for violating his parole. If Judge David's view of the habitual criminal act is valid, as we believe it is, his committing of a crime while on parole authorized his return to imprisonment for life. But Barker was paroled a second time, and in 1928 was arrested for the murder of an attendant at a north side garage. When the case came to trial in 1929 the identifying witness had changed his mind and couldn't be sure Barker and his two companions were the men he saw. Barker was doing well for himself as a labor racketeer, but in March of 1929 he was sent back to prison for violating his parole. In September he came out under writ of habeas corpus granted by Judge T. N. Greene of Peoria. This unfortunately under the law had the effect not of a parole but of a pardon.

To meet this situation proceedings were brought in Cook county for violation of parole, and Judge McGoorty returned Barker to prison to serve four years on his conviction for larceny, holding that Judge Greene was without jurisdiction in the proceeding before him. The decision of Judge McGoorty was affirmed by the Appellate court, but has now been overruled by the Supreme court, and Barker is free, so far as that case is concerned, to proceed with his peculiar activities. There is no doubt of his incorrigibility, of his unfitness to be at large, but the net of the law has not held him.

It is a remarkable history, and there are too many like it. But it should not discourage the war against professional crime. We are gaining ground, slower than we could wish, but steadily. Loopholes, one by one, are being closed; legislation that will help is on the way, prosecution is determined and persistent. Criticism of defects in procedure is brought to bear more effectively than hitherto, and the influences which defeat justice are better understood. Methods are going to be improved and exposed weaknesses of the personnel charged with the enforcement of law are on the way to judgment.

BAND MUSIC.

Chicago ranks high among the musical centers of the country, though not, as it ought to be, first. In the winter we have the services of the Chicago orchestra, one of the leading symphonic organizations of the world, under the leadership of Mr. Stock, one of the most scholarly and progressive of conductors. The orchestra has increased its concerts and widened its influence as fast as its means permitted. Its conductor and board of directors are wide visioned and public spirited men who will expand the inspiring work and influence of their institution in the future. In the winter we also have the Civic Grand Opera in its new home, an institution saved from oblivion by Mr. Samuel Insull and placed upon a financial footing which in the long run will assure its permanency and its artistic progress. We have chamber music and choral organizations of merit and reputable schools of instruction.

But these all represent winter activities and moreover they leave one important field of music poorly provided. In the summer, for lovers of opera music who live on the north shore or are able to make the trip to Ravinia, Mr. Louis Eckstein has built up the magnificent opera company at that place, a unique institution giving classic operas, cut as to length but unsurpassed anywhere for brilliancy of performance with stars of the first operatic magnitude.

But we are grievously lacking in open air band music for the city public. We have needed a great band and concerts for the people and our visitors in the summer. No less a musical authority and leader in the musical affairs of Chicago and the nation than Mr. Stock has recently said that every town in America should have a good band, and he has especially pointed out Chicago's need in this respect.

We are glad that this gap in Chicago's musical organization is in prospect of being filled. The Chicago Concert Band association has been formed by public spirited citizens and music lovers who will organize and maintain a concert band which it is hoped will take the first rank. It will have about 70 members at first, and will be led by Victor Grabel, a well known bandmaster. The south park board has provided a site for its concerts in Grant park, just north of the Field museum, between the east and west drives, and forty to fifty concerts will be given over a period of ten weeks this summer.

The initial cost will be about $90,000, of which a part has already been subscribed and further donations are now solicited. Among the patrons who assure the artistic excellence of the enterprise are Mr. Stock, John Alden Carpenter, Edward C. Moore, music critic of THE TRIBUNE; Karleton Hackett, music critic, and Henry E. Voegeli, manager of the Chicago orchestra. Col. Randolph of the Association of Commerce assures the hearty coöperation of his organization, and we are as sure as we can be of any future event that the public will respond enthusiastically. Mr. Herbert Witherspoon is chairman, and offices have been taken at 2209 Tribune Tower, phone Whitehall 4424, where information will be given and subscriptions may be sent.

The Chicago Concert band we hope will open a new chapter in the musical history of Chicago and the west. The band can and will, if it succeeds as it should, grow in size and influence. The Century of Progress offers a great opportunity for band music of the first order. All of us remember the magnificent band organized at Great Lakes by Rear Admiral Moffett during the war as one of the most inspiring influences of those days of national trial and achievement. A good band is a source of inspiration and delight at any time, and our people should have this resource. New York has its famous Edwin Goldman band, endowed by music lovers, which gives in the summer 70 concerts in Central park and on the campus of New York university to audiences ranging from twenty-five to sixty thousand. Long Beach, at the other side of the continent, has a band of the first order giving open air concerts the year round, and many other cities have good bands. Chicago should not lack band concerts of the highest grade, and we hope the new institution will prosper and expand. Eventually we should have not only first rate band music in Grant park but in other city parks. In fact, we hope all our American cities and towns will in time establish good bands with high musical standards. Americans are to have more leisure as time goes on, and the problem of providing wholesome and inspiring entertainment is one which should be given serious thought and practical action. We cannot have too much good music.

STATE DRY LAW REPEAL AND ILLICIT LIQUOR.

In support of his veto of the repeal of the state prohibition and search and seizure acts, the governor asserted that it would leave the state law enforcing officers without authority "to interfere with the sale of liquor to children, the operation of stills and dramshops near schools and colleges, or any other trafficking in intoxicants."

The governor apparently has not read the national prohibition [Volstead] act. The act provides that "an action to enjoin any nuisance defined in this chapter may be brought in the name of . . . any prosecuting attorney of any state or any subdivision thereof. . . . Such action may be brought and tried as an action in equity and may be brought in any court having jurisdiction to hear and determine equity cases." U. S. Code, Title 27, Section 34.

The national prohibition act also provides [U. S. Code, Title 27, Section 11] that Section 591 of Title 18 "is hereby made applicable in the enforcement of this chapter."

Section 591 of Title 18 referred to provides that "for any crime or offense against the United States the offender may by any . . . chancellor judge of a Supreme or a Superior court, chief first judge of common pleas, mayor of a city, justice of the peace or other magistrate of any state where he may be found, and agreeably to the usual mode of process against offenders in such state and at the expense of the United States, be arrested and imprisoned or balled, as the case may be, for trial before such court of the United States as by law has cognizance of the offense."

The national prohibition act also provides [U. S. Code, Title 27, Section 11] that "the officers mentioned in said Section 591 are authorized to issue search warrants under the limitations provided in Sections 611 to 631 and 633 of Title 18."

The national prohibition act also provides [U. S. Code, Title 27, Section 40]: "When the commissioner . . . or any officer of the law shall discover any person in the act of transporting, etc., . . . it shall be his duty to seize any and all intoxicating liquors found therein being transported contrary to law . . . such officer shall at once proceed against the person arrested under the provisions of this chapter in any court having competent jurisdiction."

The act also provides [U. S. Code, Title 27, Section 51] that "all records and reports kept or filed under the provisions of this chapter shall be subject to inspection at any reasonable hour . . . by any public prosecutor or by any person designated by him or by any chief officer in the state where the record is kept."

If these provisions mean anything, they are available to such Illinois authorities as are disposed to make use of them. They cannot be repealed by our legislature and provide most practicable means of interfering with "the sale of liquor to children, the operation of stills and dramshops near schools and colleges, and any other trafficking in intoxicants." The picture the governor holds up of a commonwealth helpless to act against illicit liquor has no reality.

Editorial of the Day

LETTERS.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

Gov. Pinchot has undertaken the job of reforming the official letter writing of Pennsylvania, and in this praiseworthy ambition he has our moral support. Let us add, however, that if defeat should be his portion we shall not be depressed, or if success attend him we shall not be insufferably jubilant. The governor's grievance has to do with the meaningless phrases, archaic custom and unnecessary verbiage that clutter up the state's correspondence. Good enough. But when the Pinchot poniard transfixes "your favor at hand," with the withering comment, "a letter never has been a favor," we are obliged to dissent. Not only dissent, but to speculate sadly upon what our illustrious fellow countryman has missed.

Has he forgotten Maude's chattering pen?
The missives of Madge in her pensive vein?
Gorgeous Ethel—one never knew when
She would come breezily down the lane?
Clara painting the dull terrain
In gold and frankincense, silver and myrrh,
And Sarah and Mary and Flo and Jane—
Weren't their letters favors? You bet they were.

Perhaps there is a blank space in the memorabilia of our reformers. Perhaps that's what makes them that way.

PRECAUTION.

He—We're coming to a tunnel. Are you afraid?
She—Not if you take that cigar out of your mouth.

ANOTHER CAUSE OF ECZEMA.

PEOPLE with old fashioned eczema would be more willing to give up the old disease and to take up the new one, dermatitis, if it were easier to find out the toxic agents. Some of them test out their face powders, the dyes used on their garments, the chemicals their hands are exposed to, the feather pillows they sleep on, the cats they fondle, and the foods they eat. Finding no indication of the cause of their trouble they go back to good old eczema and the salves that mother used to use.

A new suggestion comes to them from Dr. E. S. Lain of Oklahoma City. He advises them to inquire into their spectacles. He had a run of cases of so-called eczema. The eruption was on the side of the face, around the eyes and nose, and around the ear shell. He noticed that all of them wore white gold spectacles. Close examination of the rims and temple frames of these spectacles showed minute points of corrosion. Those who suspect poisoning from white gold spectacles may need to examine their frames with a magnifying glass in order to see these minute corrosion points.

When the people thus affected stopped wearing their glasses or changed to other frames their eczema got well without the use of ointments or salves.

White gold is an alloy containing nickel. Nickel is not very poisonous to the average skin, but there are people whose integument is susceptible to it. Nor is nickel very corrosive. But nickel alloy may be slightly corroded by the salts in sweat.

The hazard of eczema due to white gold is not limited to those who wear spectacle frames made of this alloy. Various articles of jewelry are made from white gold and in some instances these are worn in contact with the skin.

Most of the reports of cases of nickel eczema have come from Europe. They were in people who worked in nickel. They did such work as nickel plating and manufacturing of articles made from mixtures of nickel. Two Canadian physicians, Bulmer and MacKenzie, made an excellent study of nickel poisoning in a nickel plant. They told how it could be prevented in such plants and among the workers therein.

The point made by Dr. Lain is that the wearer of nickel goods may be under some hazard.

TREATING SORE EYE.

Mrs. I. H. writes:

What can be done for a sore eye? The eye was hurt by a blunt instrument a few days ago. It began to get red little by little each day as a result of the blood spreading over the eye. However, this blood is not on the surface of the eye, but it covers the entire surface inside. What is the best way to get the blood away from the eye and restore its white color?

REPLY.

Protect the eye as much as possible from exposure to light and other irritants. Beyond this, you need do nothing if the ball was not injured. The blood clot will absorb in a few days and just as promptly without treatment.

If you feel you must do something use a sterile boracic acid wash.

NOT VERY SERIOUS.

R. B. C. writes:

Today I am afflicted with that which commanded my observation so frequently when a boy, and that is too frequent dripping of drops of water from the nose, especially when eating and in the mornings. I was born in '63, so, as you may gather, I am at last among the ancients to whom I referred in the preceding paragraph.

REPLY.

My guess is that this is drainage from the cracks and crannies of your nose and principally from your sinuses. Since it is there you are lucky that it leaks. As it is, you are not especially harmed and you had better let well enough alone.

If you want to move to Florida, Arizona, or the warm, dry parts of California that cure can be recommended.

REAL ESTATE BONDS.

Chicago, April 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Will you please tell me what happens to the first mortgage real estate bonds on buildings made by a bank which closed, and real estate bonds made by a bank which was merged with the other bank before it closed? 2. Does one lose on the value of the bonds? 3. Is interest paid to the holder while bank is closed, or by whom? 4. Where are they cashed when due? 5. If bills are paid by check on the 7th of the month and bank closes on the 13th, am I still responsible for payment if not cashed promptly? 6. Does the bank notify depositors about what is being done, or where can one get information? 7. Are the saving and checking accounts paid off like when payments are made? 8. Do they usually send checks, or where is this done if bank remains closed? 9. Where can I secure information about deposits, etc., when bank remains closed? A. W.

1. The failure of the bank has no necessary connection with bond issues upon which it has acted merely as broker. The bondholder should continue to look to the security which should have been his principal reliance from the first.
2. Not if the security back of the bonds is adequate.
3. Interest should be paid by the maker whose name is signed to the bonds.
4. Depends on the wording of the bonds. We suggest that you read them.
5. If the checks were good when issued and the holder's loss is due to his delay in presenting them for payment then the loss would remain on the holder.
6. Presumably you would have to apply to the receiver.
7. Yes, if there are not separate corporations.
8. The receiver sends checks to the parties entitled to them.
9. Apply to the receiver.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CITIZENSHIP STATUS.

Chicago, April 16.—[Friend of the People.]—1. Up to 1919 I was a citizen through my father's naturalization, but in that year I married an alien. Did I lose my citizenship at that time? 2. My husband took out papers in 1924. Would that make me regain my citizenship? 3. If I lost my citizenship, do I have to take out papers for myself? C. M.

1. Yes.
2. No.
3. Yes. FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT, District Director, U. S. Department of Labor.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

IT'S JUST AROUND THE CORNER!

Hunting industriously around for something to be thankful for yesterday we found that crude rubber had dropped to seven cents a pound. That ought to have made tires much cheaper, but on paying for a couple of front ones we could not see any difference between what we paid yesterday and what we paid for new tires a month ago. Crude rubber is only seven cents a pound now, said we to the repair man, which should make new tires much cheaper. Lykell, said the repair man. A repair man is often much cruder than rubber.

LAKE MICHIGAN.

Savagely snarling at the training whip of the wind,
Slavering and biting at the caging bars of the breakwater,
Wrathfully tonguing in impotent fury between them
To stealthily recede and crouch
To hurl herself anew in hopeless attack,
Baring her pointed fangs in a sardonic smile of death,
Clawing deep in the floor of her prison
And in derision flinging far the refuse,
Tossing shoreward in disdain the bones of forgotten feasts,
Roaring in triumph unholy requiems over her slain
And tauntingly challenging attempt to reclaim them,
Cold from timeless incarnations of Arctic repression,
Defiant, sullen, black-brooding and rabid,
A jungle thing to fear.

Purring in deep-throated tones of contentment,
Stretching sleepily over the hot sands of the Dunes,
Gently arching a ruffled back to the caress of the summer breeze,
Brushing with silver whiskers of foam the white skirts of the passing ships.

Slowly unsheathing from velvet coverings
Her slender predatory claws for plunder
Tossing from her pirated playthings,
A piece of drift-wood, or a pallid drowned man,
Boxing right and left her frolicking cub waves
Then mewing them again to the hunt
Warm with trickling remembrances of a tropical pole
Sleek, supple, alluringly and eternally hypnotic
Domestic, and adored.

ETHELYN BRYANT CHAPMAN.

TEN THOUSAND four hundred Protestant preachers in the United States have replied to a questionnaire refusing to sanction or participate in any more wars that these United States may get into. Well, maybe we can get along some way. Anyhow, Nat Forrest, that grand old Johnnie Reb, once captured a Yankee chaplain, and after keeping him a while sent him back to the Union lines with a note reading, "You kin hav yer prechur. I'd rather fite him than feed him."

A LADY IN NEW YORK has sued the Metropolitan Opera company for breaking her leg as she left her box in the golden horseshoe. She probably stumbled over a great heap of diamonds, pearls, and rubies carelessly dropped by New York society leaders attending a first night's performance.

THE REPUBLICAN GOVERNMENT in Spain has closed the golf links around Madrid as being centers for dangerous reactionary arguments. Piffle, piffle! What outsiders often think is a horrible riot at a golf club is simply a member insisting he went around in less than bogie and a half dozen more members saying he's lying like a horse.

WONDER who named them "safety islands," anyhow. We are always reading about automobiles crashing into safety islands. They seem to be about as safe as a steel trap is to a beaver or the stockyards to a nice fat corn-fed steer. "Safety islands." Some old grouch that had it in for auto drivers invented those things.

THE HOMICIDE RATE in these United States has leaped from 9.9 per one hundred thousand population in 1929 to 10.9 in 1930. Chicago has a rate of 14.4; Detroit, 13.3; Philadelphia, 7.7; New York, 7.1; Los Angeles, 6.6; and Memphis, Tenn., takes first place with the record of 58.8. England and Wales have only 0.5. Now, why should our American cities have such a high percentage while England and Wales have only one-half of one per cent? They always told us that likker was the cause of all murders, and yet England and Wales are plastered with legalized dram shops, and in America we have none whatever. It is really astounding! We shall have to look into this.

RARITY.

"Un homme en qui je crois."
(For John H. Grier, Esq.)

Three thousand guys, in every wise,
One meets in wonted travels,
And thus a lifetime teaches
'Tis only the dullard cavils . . .
For who seeks friendship past a word; . . .
An empty word, of many,
Is but a fumbling oaf, at most—
A sub-mattoidian zany!
"Most friendship . . ." (what is't sings the clown?)
"Mere feigning is . . ." Thus rarer,
To find fidelity and truth
And comradeship fairer
When there is naught but truth between,
No place—expectant's guerdon—
But helpfulness and high belief
And a hand to each other's burden!

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 25, 1915.

NORTH OF FRANCE.—There is no doubt that the action which has been proceeding about Ypres for a week, and which will probably go down in history as the second battle of Ypres, is the hardest and hottest yet developed on the western frontier. It is the third desperate effort of the Germans since the war began to take the important city of Calais. The attack began a week ago on hill No. 60 and has spread until it involves at least half of the British-Belgian line, and is widening hourly.

LONDON. — The most desperately fought battle of the war in the west is in progress in Flanders. Along a front 10 miles long, extending from Eixschoote in the north to St. Eloi in the south, French, British and Belgian troops are hammering at the kaiser's army. Unofficial dispatches place the number of Germans centered at this point at 500,000, and the allies' army is thought to be at least as great. An Amsterdam dispatch says that more than 25 trains of 15 cars each have carried wounded from the front to Liege, the new German base, on each of the last two days. While the German attack originally met with considerable success, it is said to have been already checked and that at some places the allies have recovered a part of the ground lost.

LONDON.—Four ships sunk by German submarines, another by a mine, and two others made prizes by German warships is the report on sea activities. Three of the four ships sunk were torpedoed in the North sea and the other in the Baltic.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Cuban commissioners will have conferences tomorrow with the President and secretary of war, at which they will present the views of the Cuban constitutional convention and the Cuban people. The delegates will make a strong plea for an independent government without any supervision by the United States. The delegation consists of Diego Tamayo, member of the National party; Gonzalez Llorente, a lawyer and scientist; Pedro Betancourt, Rafael Portuondo, and Domingo Mendez Capote, president of the convention.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—Denied, even in death, the rest that comes to the ordinary mortal, the body of Abraham Lincoln was shifted for the eleventh time. The transfer was from the temporary vault, where the remains have reposed during the reconstruction of the national monument, to the marble sarcophagus inside the tomb. Here, it is predicted, the revered bones will be permitted the peace they have failed to secure for 25 years.

CHICAGO.—Mayor Harrison would not discuss his choice for chief of police other than to say "the next superintendent will be a member of the present department and a man holding a rank above that of sergeant. Who he will be nobody but myself knows, and when my wife asked me this morning who would be named I told her she would know next Monday night."

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 25, 1881.

COLUMBIA, S. C.—William Lowry, a guard at the South Carolina penitentiary, was arrested on the charge of being implicated with a gang of counterfeiters inside the penitentiary. Investigation disclosed that the counterfeiting of silver currency of various denominations has been systematically carried on for months by a band of white convicts with the aid of several of the guards.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The city is full of old sailors and bronzed naval officers who are here to participate in the unveiling of the Farragut statue tomorrow. President Garfield, his cabinet, army and navy officials, and members of the diplomatic corps will attend the exercises. The Hon. D. W. Vorhees of Indiana will speak.

LONDON.—A French column under Logeret has entered Tunisian territory without opposition despite the bey's strenuous protests. The invading force encamped between the frontier and Kef. Two French men-of-war remain at a distance off the shore at Labarca. Considerable reinforcements have joined the bey's troops, who occupy the whole of the Kroumirs district.

HOME BUILDING FOR PROSPERITY.

Chicago, April 20.—In order to restore prosperity there should be started a great residential building boom. A general revival of this type of construction would provide employment for thousands of building tradesmen and create a tremendous market for materials, hence further strengthen the demand for labor. It would create a tremendous volume of revenue producing freight for the railroads. They in turn would spend more money for equipment and still further expand the demand for labor. It would revive a stagnant real estate market. It would, all in turn, create a better domestic market for our American farmers.

There is at present only one thing in the way of a general resumption of residential (single family homes) building, and that is mortgage loans. There is today a demand for 75,000 of such homes. The land, the materials, the men, and the desire are in evidence. Banks contend, and justly so, that real estate mortgages do not enjoy any degree of liquidity. Why not, then, bring pressure to bear upon our representatives in the congress of the United States in favor of an amendment to the federal reserve act to make first mortgage real estate loans acceptable for rediscount at the reserve banks?

If these loans were properly appraised and attested by a federal agency and, let us say, made available for a loan approximately 50 per cent of the loan or 25 per cent of the total value of the house, whichever is less, all or at least half of our present day problems would be solved. GEORGE H. BROCKMEIER.

DEPRAVITY ON SHERIDAN ROAD.

Chicago, April 23.—Your correspondent, Mr. Travers, is right. Something should be done to clean Sheridan road, especially from Montrose to Lawrence, of motorists and loafers traveling up and down the street or hanging around certain corners all day, pestering and insulting decent women. In many cases my wife has arrived home all out of breath after being insulted and followed all the way home by those rats. H. LARSEN.

IS INSULIN USEFUL?

Hinsdale, Ill., April 20.—THE TRIBUNE was quick to print a letter of praise from Dr. Karl Meyer on its inspired editorial, "Laboratory Dogs," but thousands of fair minded persons have watched in vain for you to publish anything condemning that same editorial, which was 99 per cent incorrect and 100 per cent unfair. THE TRIBUNE flatly states that no cruelty exists in laboratories. If THE TRIBUNE had the decency, honesty, and the fairness to investigate before it condemns it would discover that there is cruelty. The issue is not whether cruelty exists but whether such cruelty is productive of useful results. MRS. H. O. MATILE.

THE AMERICAN SAGA.

Chicago, April 22.—I am positively sure that George Washington was a Norwegian. He came over with his father with a boatload of herring, and they liked the country so well they decided to stay, and after a few years they went back to Norway and brought over Abraham Lincoln. J. JACOBSON.

A SHORT SERMON.

Chicago, April 15.—I object strenuously to William A. Graham's statement, "God hates a coward." I wonder where he got that idea. I do not remember having read that God hates any one.

C. R. PALMER.

REMAPPING THE WARDS.

Chicago, April 22.—Such problems as ward remapping will reveal the quality of Cermak's political leadership. The politician would adjust his ward boundaries so as to give two groups of say 40 per cent voting strength each, but differing in civic ideals and interests, so that the ward could be controlled by manipulating the remaining 20 per cent of deliverable votes. Sound civic leadership would work out the ward boundaries so as to develop and foster civic groups having similarities of ideals and interests. The statesman would consult civic and community leaders and community organizations; the politician would consult partisan political leaders. The politician would seek party solidarity; the statesman would seek civic solidarity.

We have a specific illustration on the south side. The section lying between Cottage Grove avenue on the east and the railroad yards on the west, and extending from 26th street to 63d street, probably contains the largest compact colored population in the world. It affords the greatest opportunity for the development of experience and practice in civic ideals and self-government which history has ever bestowed upon the colored race. Have the partisan politicians of Chicago ever given to the colored race an opportunity for effective self-expression in the civic life of Chicago? Most emphatically they have not. The colored vote has been split up into different wards that, civically speaking, the colored representation at the city hall has always been a purely partisan, machine controlled representation which has been played up politically to offset an evident solidarity of ideals and interests obtaining in other parts of these various wards. The tremendous opportunity for group expression and the development of common interests and ideals has been most effectively buried behind the political smoke screen.

There are a dozen such situations existing in Chicago right now. This is the time for civic leaders and civic organizations to speak out. A. STOCKS.

BUS COMPLAINT.

Chicago, April 15.—Will some one please tell me why the bus service is so terrible on Sacramento boulevard? Last evening at about 5:15 there were eighteen adults and two children waiting at Washington and Sacramento boulevards for a northbound bus. After twenty-five minutes one finally showed up, crowded to the doors. I don't see why, with the unemployment situation as it is today, more buses are not put into operation, especially on this boulevard during the rush hours. I am sure if this were done a great deal more people would use the buses, as those who reside north of Grand have quite a long walk if they use the Metropolitan L. M. O.

FREEDOM BREEDS HONOR.

Chicago, April 15.—Honor is born with the sense of freedom. A desire to do the orderly thing cannot be developed by a series of placards saying thou shalt not smoke, thou shalt not drink, thou shalt not park, keep off the grass, do not spit, do not cough. Printed rules create a subconscious resentment. It is the subnormal who conforms to all rules and laws.

As manager of a park, I removed the "don't" signs and am getting splendid coöperation from the regular visitors. The younger element feel that this is their park, and I am highly gratified with the honor system results.

BADGER FARMER TAKING IN CASH; NO TIME TO KICK

Works While Politicians Yowl About Relief.

BY PAUL POTTER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., April 24.—[Special.]—Wisconsin farmers are too busy marketing dairy and live stock products and getting in their cash crops to get the blues or worry about the political farm relief that's been kept just over the horizon for those who spent so little time farming that they had plenty of time for such day dreaming.

A drive through the southern and central sections of the state, where most of the real farming exists, would convince any one that agriculture is far from the doldrums and that thousands of progressively minded men are continuing to make of it a profitable life work.

Meat Animals Profitable.

In these rural regions, above the average as American agriculture goes, but exemplary of land utilizing in the old fertile north central prairies, the dairy cow, the hog, and the meat animals are continuing to show the way out. For cheap grain to these farmers is so much cheap feed for their live stock—a finished product that even with drastic price reductions continues to show a paying spread from field crop to finished consumptive product.

"The farm price index for Wisconsin last month stood at 98, or two points below the 1910 to 1914 average," according to Walter H. Ebling of the federal and state departments of agriculture at Madison. The index for grains stands at 70, plainly indicating the spread between feeds and animal products still available to the farmer in position to capitalize upon it.

That there is a readjustment taking place is evident in conversations with thinking farmers. That there is leadership here to meet such conditions is evident from talks with such men as the new dean of agriculture at the university, Chris Christenson, former secretary of the federal farm board, who is just in his first month at the helm.

Real Thinking by Farmers.

"My first duty," said Mr. Christenson, "is to get acquainted with the personnel and work of this great institution. But I know that there is some real thinking being done by farmers, and that they are thinking straight, and I am convinced they will carry this thinking into action during such a period of readjustment as this.

"In part, the problem now is individual, part of it a group problem. Every farmer has to recognize the need of developing some sort of land policy, and while we now have a high standard of efficiency on the modern farm and in some groups, I am one of those who believes that we must regard land being farmed as a great production plant and adjust it as one would in a factory, to the most profitable and most needed lines of output."

The new dean declared that in many fields Wisconsin has done some outstanding things in this direction, research and technique of most unusual value when brought together and applied in a form readily usable by farmers. He holds that coöperation in marketing and in production has been advancing to the Wisconsin farmers' material gain.

Not Faring So Badly.

E. L. Hatch, veteran university farm leader, declared that even with prevailing low prices of dairy and poultry products, Wisconsin agriculture was not faring as badly as in most other states, and that as wheels of industry started turning such farmers as these would be the first to prosper. He said that with the farmer, still in better position than his cousin in industrial centers, the better manager also will continue to make money.

Nearly 85 per cent of Wisconsin's agricultural income is from dairy and farm stock products, he pointed out. These four ways, he said, are open to the farmer who would improve his net income in times like these: Market better goods more efficiently, producing quality goods which sell at a better price, produce more economically, and adopt a better system of farm management.

CONFESSES

On the recommendation of Police Chiefs Jacob Rudolph and William Peterson of Glencoe and Winnetka, respectively, Miss Frances Hayek, 30 years old, 835 Grace street, who confessed to burglarizing five north shore homes, was yesterday ordered sent to the Cook county psychopathic hospital for examination. Police Magistrate B. F. Meyer of Glencoe made the ruling.

As an explanation for her misadventure, Miss Hayek said in court, "I wanted excitement and I wanted to be dressed up so that I could meet nice, refined people." The homes she robbed and the value of the articles taken were: April 11, Henry A. Delfosse, 853 Sheridan road, Wilmette, $1,200; April 13, Fred Dickinson, 1228 Scott avenue, Hubbard Woods, $1,500; April 14, Jules Girardin, 778 Foxdale avenue, Winnetka, $300; April 16, Ralph D. Rogers, 514 Lincoln avenue, Glencoe, $1,100, and Mrs. Mildred Ward, 900 Bluff road, Glencoe, where she was surprised and arrested.

BUILDINGS SWAY IN EARTHQUAKE AT LOS ANGELES

Store Fronts Shattered, Dishes Broken.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 24.—(AP)—An earthquake of sufficient strength to sway the city hall here, break dishes and glassware and crack plaster was felt in Los Angeles and its ocean side suburbs today.

The shock that quivered buildings for five seconds or so came at 10:28 a. m.

Strongest effects were registered in the Santa Monica bay district, and between that section and southwest Los Angeles, being marked by shattered store front windows, broken crockery and glassware and some cracked plaster. These were reported chiefly from Redondo beach, Compton and Torrance.

An hour before the shock, excitement was caused throughout the area by registration of a disturbance on the seismograph at the Carnegie institution laboratory at Pasadena.

The swaying of the Los Angeles city hall, 28 story structure, was noted perpectibly by occupants of upper floors. The building, the tallest in Los Angeles, was not damaged. It is constructed so that the tower can sway several feet.

People fled to the streets from hotels and apartments at Redondo beach, on Santa Monica bay.

DIES AFTER SLASHING THROAT.

William E. Thon, 54 years old, 1015 North Hayes avenue, Oak Park, died at the West Suburban hospital last night from self-inflicted knife wounds in the throat. His wife, Elizabeth, 49 years old, whom he beat on the head with a hammer in a quarrel on Thursday, is expected to die.

GOV. ROOSEVELT VETOES LAW FOR DOCTORS' LIQUOR

Albany, N. Y., April 24.—[Special.]—Gov. Roosevelt this afternoon vetoed the Hastings bill, which called for the establishment of a division in the state educational department under the board of regents to dispense medicinal liquors to physicians who would be entitled to prescribe it in unlimited amounts.

In a memorandum accompanying the veto the governor said in part:

"The advisability or inadvisability of intoxicating liquor in the treatment of physical ailments is purely a technical professional matter of opinion.

"It is not for laymen or for members of legislatures or of the congress, or, indeed, of governors, to tell reputable, qualified, and experienced doctors how to prescribe medicine."

A bill which petitions congress to request the individual states to poll their voters by referendum on the attitude toward the prohibition question was signed by Gov. Roosevelt today.

SCHOOL OFFICERS AND LEGISLATORS TO DISCUSS BILLS

A subcommittee of the state senate committee on education will meet today with members of the school board, William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, and representatives of teachers' organizations to discuss three bills now pending at Springfield.

One of the bills would guarantee a minimum of 75 per cent of the educational fund for the payment of the salaries of teachers. The board of education at its last meeting refused to recommend the bill, several trustees asserting that it was faulty in structure. One of the other bills would allow five days a year to be used for teachers' council meetings and the other stipulates that attendance in school shall be compulsory to the age of 18 years.

The board has condemned the council bill, holding that the school system loses $380,000 each day the schools are closed and that four hours a year for this purpose is sufficient.

RADIO OFFICIAL DENIES CHARGES OF PUBLISHERS

Says Printing Programs Free Aids Papers.

Princeton, N. J., April 24.—[Special.]—M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting company, told the Princeton press conference in session at Whig hall today that if newspapers stop printing the programs of broadcasting stations it may be necessary for "broadcasting stations to go into the publishing business," and that the newspapers, further, would run the risk of losing all or part of the $31,000,000 that radio supply houses spend annually for advertising.

M. H. AYLESWORTH. (©) Harris & Ewing.)

Mr. Aylesworth was on the same program with Elzey Roberts of the St. Louis Star, chairman of the radio committee of the American Newspaper Publishers association, who advised the conference that newspapers should print radio programs only as advertising matter.

Newspaper publicity, Mr. Roberts said in effect, makes radio advertising "salable," and by this free publicity the newspapers are encouraging the business of one of their most formidable competitors.

Sees Adverse Reaction.

Mr. Aylesworth admitted that a discontinuance of free program service would mean financial loss to radio companies, but he said it also would react adversely on newspapers.

"Suppose," said Mr. Aylesworth, "that radio advertising should drop off, largely through the efforts of the press to suppress programs and other radio news. What then? Quite obviously the finest programs would be off the air."

Discussing the contention that the radio has cut into newspaper advertising revenues, which was one of the points advanced by Mr. Roberts, Mr. Aylesworth said this "might be founded on figures, but not on facts."

Says Press Profited.

He admitted that newspaper advertising last year dropped ten or fifteen per cent, while radio advertising gained 45 per cent, but said the newspaper loss was more than compensated by the heavy expenditures for newspaper space of radio dealers. The press of the country profited from radio to the extent of $20,000,000 last year, he asserted.

So far as the broadcasting of news is concerned, he said, the radio gives only brief flashes which whet the public's appetite for more. As to the contention that the publication of programs benefits the radio industry and should be paid for he said the programs are news the public wants and that radio pages are the most widely read of any except the front and editorial pages.

Prepare Radio Test Case.

New York, April 24.—[Special.]—The first test case to determine if the state may regulate broadcasts from radio stations in which advertising is part of the program is being prepared for presentation to the courts.

According to the attorney general's office the International Broadcasting corporation operators of station WOV, having a transmitting plant at Secaucus, N. J., and a studio for broadcasting at 16 East 42d street, entered into a contract with the Union Mutual Life Insurance company of Des Moines, Ia., by which it was to broadcast its programs respecting life insurance.

The state officials claim that this insurance company has not conformed to the New York state insurance law, and therefore is not authorized to do business in this state.

THE CLICK OF THE GATE

By Alice Campbell

SYNOPSIS.

Iris de Bertincourt lives in a remote section of Paris with her 15 year old daughter, Clare. She and Maj. Alan Charnwood are desperately in love, but there are barriers to their immediate marriage. They are spending the last evening they will have together in several months, as Maj. Charnwood plans to leave next day for Africa. Clare is acting in a school play and is to be brought home by friends.

Iris has been separated for years from her husband, Marcel de Bertincourt, a man of enormous charm, but utterly lacking in moral sense. Iris and he are cousins, and the possible heirs of their aunt, Victoire, the comtesse de Casteimauron. Iris plans to divorce her husband and marry Alan when he returns, but she is keeping her plans secret, as she wishes to avoid the interference of her tyrannical aunt, who has until recently ruled her life.

Iris receives a message telling her her aunt is on the way to see her. Alan leaves. The comtesse tells Iris that her husband's character has wholly changed and that he is desirous of reassuming his duties as a husband and father.

INSTALLMENT VI.

A CHILD'S DISAPPEARANCE.

Iris was silent. Here, on the very threshold of liberty, she sensed an invisible net hovering to close about her. She would have to be extremely cautious not to commit herself. Why, O why, could not the meddling old tyrant leave her in peace?

"I desire little enough from my few remaining years of life," continued the comtesse, watching her like a hawk. "But there is one wish I would like to see realized before I leave this world, and that I think you can guess. It is to see the two beings who are dearest to me reunited. Two, did I say? No, three—for the end and aim of all this is your daughter, Clare."

It was a harrowing moment. Although the comtesse was too austere to show emotion, it was plain that she felt genuine concern. Moreover, irksome as life had been with this over ruling task mistress, Iris could not shut her eyes to the benefits heaped upon her in the past. What could one say not to give offense?

She answered in a low voice, argumentative but restrained. "I can't agree, Tante Victoire, that what you suggest would be for Clare's good. I know Marcel too well. If I took him back he would soon fall into his old ways, and now Clare is growing up she couldn't be kept in ignorance. Surely the revelation of her father's deceit would be a great shock to her?"

"You misjudge Marcel, but that is not surprising, seeing you do not know how transformed he is. You could do wonders with him if you chose to try. Whatever his former actions may have been, he has always admired you, and up till now——" she paused and repeated her words with an emphasis not to be misconstrued, "—up till now you have done nothing to endanger the respect in which he holds you."

Clare—her Clare—was gone!

She fixed her little eyes on Iris, obviously awaiting a reply. As none was forthcoming she went on ruthlessly:

"I have a request to make. Will you give me your word to meet Marcel under my roof and talk matters over with him? It is not much to ask, and I do ask it, in the name of your dead mother and of all the years in which I have striven to replace her."

It had come at last, the direct appeal impossible to evade. Instinct warned Iris to show no weakness, yet she well knew that even a tempered refusal was likely to bring down an avalanche of wrath upon her head. Her aunt, for all her vigorous appearance, was in a precarious state of health, violent anger might prove dangerous.

"You know I would do anything I could to please you, Tante Victoire," she began, every nerve stretched taut. "But it is only fair to say that such a meeting could have but one result. My mind is quite made up. Besides, I am sure you are wrong in supposing Marcel wishes to return. I'm afraid I must——"

She broke off, frightened by the cataclysmic change confronting her. The old frame had stiffened, the sunken eyes contracted to pin points of fury. A spasm of pain assailed the withered mask, while the black gloved hands clenched and unclenched, battling with some sudden seizure.

Iris jumped to her feet to call Ursule, but before she could reach the door a choking voice stopped her.

"No, no, it is nothing; it is past now." A pause, during which the tight chest heaved and fell with the labored effort of breathing. When its owner spoke again it was in a different tone, resolute but controlled. "I was foolish to expect you to decide at once. Think it over and give me your answer at the end of the week. Only promise me faithfully not to mention this to Marcel. He is proud and would resent my attempting to intercede."

"You need not be afraid, Tante Victoire!"

The comtesse rose and stood leaning on her cane.

"Bear this in mind," she said impressively, and each syllable of her perfect French was as clean cut as a cameo, "marriage is a sacrament indissoluble. Those who partake of it may drift apart, but they cannot sever their bonds or repudiate the vows they have sworn before God. That is all I wish to say. Have the goodness to summon Ursule."

In another moment the redoubtable old creature had made her slow progress along the walk to the gate, followed closely by the dog like maid. The enormous car had rolled away, and Iris, trembling from head to foot, leaned breathless against the closed door.

She had not overstated to Charnwood this feeling she had about her aunt. The last half hour was simply a foretaste of future encounters—arguments, reproaches even perhaps, an organized attack to overthrow her plans. O, Tante Victoire would stop at nothing! And if the divorce went through—as of course it must—it meant making an implacable enemy of one who, in her stern way, loved her. Still, it could not be helped.

"I've a right to my happiness!" she murmured vehemently, going back to the hearth and gazing at the features of her little daughter. "O, Clare, my darling, when you're old enough to understand you'll be the last person to blame me!"

Filled with the longing to hear once again Alan's reassuring voice, she started towards the telephone, but checked herself, realizing that by now he must be on his way to the Gare du Nord.

It was with immense relief that at this very instant she heard the sound of another motor stopping in front of the house. Ah, here was Clare! Not late, either; it was exactly half past ten. She would have liked to run immediately to the door, but recalling the fact that she was supposed to be suffering from a severe sore throat, she restrained the impulse. No, better wait till the good-bys had been said. Clare always took a long time parting from her friends.

From the street came a gay flutter of speech, punctuated with laughter. The whole party seemed in high spirits. The gate opened, but still the conversation went on interminably. Then at last the shrill accents of Yvonne Wilder called out, "A demain!" Yvonne was a good natured giggling girl, daughter of a rich chocolate manufacturer. The deeper, comfortable tones chiming in with hers belonged to her fat mother.

"A demain!" That was Clare. How much better pitched her voice was! "Bon soir, et merci mille fois!"

The engine started with a loud whirr, died to silence round the corner. A second's interval: the gate clicked to. Iris listened for the light running step, then not questioning whether or not she had heard it, quitted the salon and threw wide the door.

"There you are, my precious!" she cried. "Have you had a good——"

The question suspended itself in midair.

Where was Clare?

She peered into the darkness, puzzled. Then it occurred to her that this odd child of hers, still a mischievous hoyden, was probably hiding behind the big laurel bush, ready to spring out.

"I see you!" she exclaimed. "Come out, silly! I mustn't stand here in the night air."

Nothing happened. The space behind the laurels was empty. The whole garden was empty.

She hurried to the gate and looked out. From end to end the Passage de Rivoire was deserted. Had she made some stupid mistake, heard one of the neighboring gates instead of her own? But no, theirs was the only one that squeaked like that; she was always meaning to get it oiled. Besides, she had recognized the voices.

Quick as lightning she raced to the corner. From all around her motors roared, but the street ahead showed neither car nor pedestrian.

Suddenly every drop of blood in her body turned to ice. She stood still in the midst of the deserted pavement and shouted aloud, "Clare! Clare! Where are you?"

Her voice came back to her from the long blank wall of the Oratory, a mocking echo vibrating through the gloom.

Clare—her Clare—was gone!

GASOLINE ALLEY—NOT TO CHANGE THE SUBJECT OR ANYTHING

THE INTERESTING THING ABOUT THE NAMES OF POST OFFICES LISTED IN THE POSTAL GUIDE IS THAT THERE IS A REASON FOR EACH ONE OF THEM. TAKE MOUSIE, KENTUCKY, FOR INSTANCE, SKEEZIX.
MAYBE THE SAME MAN NAMED THAT AS NAMED RAT, MINNESOTA.
NO TELLING. AND WHY THAT TOWN SHOULD CHOOSE MOUSIE FOR A NAME AND WHY 27 TOWNS IN THAT MANY STATES PICKED CHESTER WOULD BE INTERESTING TO KNOW.
THERE ARE 28 WASHINGTONS, UNCLE WALT.
SOME TOWNS WANT TO BE SURE THEY'RE THE ONLY THING OF THEIR KIND—LIKE CANDLEWAX, VIRGINIA. OR GANG, MISSOURI.
YES, AN' PLATTER, OKLAHOMA.
ALL I'VE GOT TO WORRY ABOUT NOW IS GETTIN' ALL THE POSTMARKS.
ALL YOU'VE GOT TO WORRY ABOUT NOW IS GETTING YOUR ARITHMETIC.

Good morning!

Robert Montgomery has been made a S-T-A-R!

He hasn't been in pictures long. His name isn't particularly well known. BUT—from the moment of his first appearance on the screen, the feminine vote has been with him. So loudly and persistently have the ladies raved over this young fellow with the reckless smile and dreamy eyes that his employers decided to star him. "Shipmates" is his first stellar vehicle.

The film, as a film, isn't hot. It tells an obvious and improbable story that has frequent recourse to hokum. The hero is a fresh young seaman employed on an oiler, who meets, loves, and wins the daughter of an admiral of the U. S. N. He is yanked (against his will, for he wanted to stay in the harbor) to service on the flag ship, where discipline brings out the man in him. When the picture ends he's all set for Annapolis with the fair Kip promising gladly to wait four years for him.

That's just a brief outline of the yarn—but you get the idea.

Be assured that most of the acting in "Shipmates" is excellent. Mr. Montgomery does himself proud. Hobart Bosworth contributes a really noteworthy characterization as the elderly admiral, who, chafing over his retirement is granted by the gods a chance to leave his beloved service as he had always longed to do. Other roles are well handled with the possible exception of one and you shall pick that for yourselves.

Some of the maneuvers aboard ship are interesting. Photography, sound and dialogue get by nicely. Direction's all the story deserves.

Here's wishing Mr. Montgomery (star) lots of luck—and all of it good.

Nice program at the Punch and Judy this week!

On the bill are a charming German operetta and two really funny comedies. Of the latter, one features Charlotte Greenwood and the other Lloyd Hamilton. People are going more and more to this little theater which was comfortably filled with well entertained guests on Thursday evening.

If you use your heads you'll be able to pretty well figure out the story of the operetta without recourse to the program, which gives German and English synopses of the tale, which is a diverting one. It is excellently sung and acted—though the sound is sometimes too loud—and has an actress of quite remarkable ability and charm in the title rôle. Irene Elsinger is her name. She and Paul Richter make a glamorous pair.

She is the forester's daughter—and she falls in love with a man who never can be hers. None other, if you please, than the kaiser. She does not know the huntsman she has met—and scolded roundly—IS the emperor when she goes to the palace to petition a royal favor for her father. The forester's daughter's unique experience with royalty is alluringly presented.

Sets, scenery and costumes of this German production are like something out of a beloved old fairy tale book! There's a rare rococo atmosphere about the entire production that, to me, was perfectly fascinating.

Canadian Official Favors Barring Stories of Gangs

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., April 24.—Banning of American films and books depicting gangsters and their activities, murders, and suicides was advocated here today by Dr. P. Hebert, acting coroner of Montreal, as a means of reducing the number of suicides and murders in Canada. The two great causes of suicide and homicide, he said, were the industrial depression and films depicting crime, gangster warfare, and suicides.

MRS. HOOVER GIVEN GOUCHER DEGREE FOR SERVICE TO EDUCATION

Baltimore, Md., April 24.—(AP)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover was honored as a scholar here today as Dr. David Allan Robertson was inaugurated as president of Goucher college.

Mrs. Hoover, attired in black cap and gown, was presented with a scroll entitling her to add doctor of laws to her string of honorary degrees, and a yellow hood was draped about her shoulders.

Honorary degrees also were given to three other women distinguished in different lines of endeavor: Miss Lizette Woodworth Reese of Baltimore, lyric poet; Dr. Winifred Clara Cullis of the University of London, educator; and Dr. Florence Rena Sabin, research physician.

Mrs. Hoover's degree was in recognition of her part in translating Agricola's "De Re Metallica," the first great treatise on mining and metallurgy, written by Georg Bauer, German scientist, in 1530, and also for her work in social welfare, notably the Girl Scouts. The translation was made in 1912.

Illinois Backward in Government, So Clubwomen Hear

Educators and others, discussing important pending legislative measures last night at a meeting in the Chicago Woman's club, chided the people of Illinois for allowing this state to remain "fifty years behind the times." They referred to governmental progress.

The meeting was sponsored by a committee of the Chicago Woman's club and was presided over by Mrs. Henry Hoyt Hilton, chairman. Among the measures debated was home rule "up to date," how to make assessment machinery function in Cook county, the constitutionality of a state income tax law, and the Massachusetts ballot and permanent registration.

"The backwardness of Illinois is unexplainable, yet it is the truth," declared Dr. A. R. Hatton of the political science department of Northwestern university. He said Illinois cities have less freedom in regard to home government than those of any other state, unless perhaps Indiana.

"I don't believe the situation in Chicago and Cook county will ever be cleared up until we get home rule," Dr. Hatton concluded.

George O. Fairweather, business manager of the University of Chicago, predicted that if house bill No. 23 is not passed with its "orderly, simple, sound financing of government," the state legislature will be compelled to reconvene for a special session within four or five months.

Several hundred alumni of De Pauw university met last night and paid tribute at the Hotel Knickerbocker to the present president, Dr. G. B. Oxnam, and Dr. Henry B. There were a number of the more prominent alumni and friends at the event, among them Roy O. West, president of the board of trustees, and Mrs. Edward Rector, widow of the founder of the Rector fellowships.

Pope Leaves Vatican to Open Gift College

Blesses Mundelein and Chicago Catholics.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, April 24.—The inauguration ceremonies of the new college for propoganda of the faith, construction of which was made possible with funds raised by Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago, were given an imposing significance today when Pope Pius XI. unexpectedly decided to be present in person. He left the Vatican for the third time since the signature of the Lateran pact with the kingdom of Italy was signed.

CARDINAL MUNDELEIN.

In a short address preceding the ceremonies, the pontiff thanked Cardinal Mundelein for his cooperation in realizing the construction of the new college. He said the cardinal's generosity was more appreciated from the fact that he had come from so far with his assistance. The pope's decision personally to attend the inauguration ceremonies is regarded in Vatican circles as a special mark of esteem to Cardinal Mundelein and the Chicago archdiocese.

It had been said for some time that the pope might leave the Vatican for today's inauguration, but nevertheless Cardinal Pacelli had been named papal delegate to be present for the pope. Cardinal Pacelli had, in fact, donned the garb required for liturgical ceremonies. Then suddenly, a few minutes before 11 o'clock, the pontiff sent word to a gentleman of his antechamber to be ready to accompany him to the college.

At the same time notification was sent to the prefecture of Rome and Sig. Angelucci, questor of Rome, went to Vatican City to assure perfect order along the route the pontiff would follow.

The new college is on Janiculum hill, near the Vatican, and the pope's trip was a short one. His cortège was made up of five automobiles. Accompanying the pope was his chamberlain, Msgr. Caccra, and Msgr. Cremonesi. The crowds in the street, noticing the pontifical auto, dropped on bended knees.

The new college had been decorated with the pontifical banner and with the flags of various nations. Inside were grouped throngs of seminary students, many of them Americans, prelates and 16 cardinals. After the preliminary greetings the pope proceeded to the major altar, where he made a short prayer, and then he took his place on the throne. Cardinal van Rossum made the opening address, to which the pontiff replied. He thanked kind providence for the college and all those who had been instrumental in making the new building possible.

Then, with a cross borne before him and followed by the cardinals, the pope made a tour of the main halls of the building, sprinkling them with holy water. When this rite had been performed the procession returned to the chapel, where the Te Deum was sung and Cardinal Pacelli read a prayer of thanks. The pope, reascending the throne, imparted the apostolic benediction.

Later the pontiff made a detailed tour of inspection of the whole building, mounting to the third floor to see the dormitories and the students' living quarters. The pontiff expressed his admiration of the fine view which was afforded from the college over the hills at the back of Rome, and also over St. Peter's. He told Msgr. Dini, rector of the college, that he was greatly pleased with the entire arrangement and construction of the new building.

Following the benediction ceremonies, and while he was making the tour of the building, the pantiff turned to Cardinal Mundelein and again expressed his thanks. He said Cardinal Mundelein had a special right to rejoice in the successful inauguration of the new college. The pope also expressed his pleasure that Cardinal Mundelein was present today, and said that the completion and inauguration of the college could not have been successful without the Chicago prelate's help.

Catholic Alumni of 52 Institutions Are Meeting Here

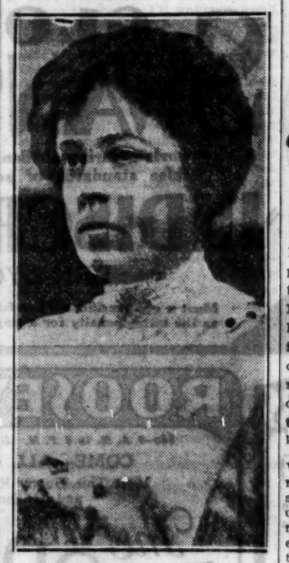
Fifty-two of the country's institutions of higher learning were represented yesterday at the Drake hotel by delegates to the fifth convention of the National Catholic Alumni federation as their common aims problems engrossed the attention of the gathering. These ranged all the way from the proper academic standing for a football star to the most efficient method of providing the college graduate with suitable employment after commencement day.

Presidents of numerous colleges and universities are among the delegates to the conference, which will continue through Sunday and close with a dinner Sunday night at which the Rt. Rev. Edward F. Hoban, bishop of Rockford, will be the main speaker. The late Knute Rockne had accepted a place on the program the day previous to that on which he met his death.

TO AID COLLEGE



MRS. JOHN D. SHEA.
[Tackett Photo.]

Mundelein college will be the beneficiary of a card party to be given this afternoon in Mandel's tearoom by former pupils of the Sisters of Charity, B. V. M. Mrs. John D. Shea of 1535 Granville avenue and Mrs. P. J. King of Oak Park are co-chairmen of the affair.

New Hospital for Mothers to Be Dedicated

Climax of Years' Work of Dr. De Lee, Others.

Thirty-six years ago, to offset what he termed the "awful" conditions prevalent in this country in obstetrics teaching and practice, Dr. Joseph B. De Lee founded the Chicago Lying-In hospital. Its expansion and progress in the years between will be fittingly commemorated by dedication ceremonies next week, marking the opening of the new $1,900,000 institution on the Midway that is the Lying-In hospital of today.

Guests for the initial program on Wednesday, for which invitations already have been issued, will include a group of thirty physicians, members of the alumni association, who will make a trip from California. The exercises will continue with other features for the remainder of the week, through Sunday. After that the public is invited to inspect the buildings.

Dr. De Lee, whose achievements in obstetrics have won him international recognition, will be one of the speakers on the Wednesday afternoon program. Since the affiliation of the hospital with the University of Chicago he has held the position of professor and head of the department of obstetrics and gynecology in the university clinics.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, who since 1908 has been active, first as president of the woman's board of the hospital and then as president of the board of directors, will preside at the dedication. In addition to accepting formally the hospital building and the Mothers' Aid pavilion, Mrs. Fairbank formally will present the teaching and research facilities to the university. President Robert Maynard Hutchins will make the address of acceptance.

Mrs. Harry B. Kempner, president of the Mothers' Aid, will tender the pavilion, which is a separate building, intended for the segregation of contagious diseases. Dr. J. Whitridge Williams, professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Johns Hopkins university, will give an address at the conclusion of the ceremony.

Wednesday evening the faculty of the hospital and their wives and members of the alumni association, including 500 doctors, 6,300 students, and 2,300 nurses who have received training in the hospital will be special guests.

Physicians of Chicago and of the middle west have been invited to inspect the buildings and equipment on Thursday afternoon. On Friday the board of directors will be hosts to the Mothers' Aid in Edna Corsant hall. Hospital executives of Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Indiana will be shown through the institution on Saturday. On Sunday the general public will be welcomed for inspection trips through the plant.

Beds for 157 obstetric cases, including twenty in the isolation unit of the Mothers' Aid pavilion, will be provided in the new building, which will be open for patients within a few weeks. The hospital occupies the north part of the block bounded by 69th street, Ingleside and Maryland avenues, fronting on the Midway. It was designed by Schmidt, Garden & Erikson and is Gothic in style.

Society Hears Stock's Closing Friday Concert

BY THALIA

THE final night of opera may mean the end of the winter season to some members of society, but to that large body of fashionable music lovers who go weekly to Orchestra hall the season is not officially closed until Frederick Stock has laid down his baton after the concluding Symphony concert. Hence there were no vacancies yesterday at the last Friday afternoon symphony of the season. Everybody who was fortunate enough to have a ticket was present.

The audience, composed mostly of women, arrived with surprising promptness, and lingered after the finale from "Die Götterdämmerung" to say farewell to the orchestra with prolonged and sincere applause. Every box was filled and the main floor, where the "hats off" rule is strictly enforced, was a semicircular panorama of well coifed and well dressed women. The Saturday series closes tonight.

Concert Also Serves as Display of Spring Fashion.

At least a dozen young women sitting downstairs at yesterday's concert bore out the popularity of shades of brown and tan, among them Mrs. Bruce Thorne in a tan covert cloth suit, brown turban, and fur scarf; Mrs. Louis C. Sudler wearing a mink coat over a brown dress and a brown knitted turban with a halo effect; Mrs. Stephen Y. Hord in a short jacketed suit of brown and tan wool with a brown jersey blouse and turban; Miss Peggy Hambleton in a chartreuse and brown dress and lapin coat; Miss Dorothy Schmidt in a tan dress and brown hat trimmed in yellow.

Some of the box occupants included Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed in a stunning black and white coat and knitted straw hat with a white crown and black brim; Mrs. James L. Houghteling in a navy and white printed dress under a blue coat with a white scarf, and a blue hat banded in white; Mrs. Albert F. Madlener in black crepe; Mrs. William L. Hodgkins in a black tailored suit and silver fox scarf; Mrs. Walter Borden in black; Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick in a navy blue suit and fur scarf; Mrs. Howard Gillette in a green suit collared in red fox; Mrs. Farwell Winston in a red crepe dress and black coat and hat; Mrs. Lester Armour in a brown dress and hat and lapin jacket; Mrs. Moses Wentworth, Miss Jean Stevens, Mrs. Lewis Louer, Miss Betty Poole, Miss Eleanor Holden, Mrs. Duncan Hodges, Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Miss Betty Cromett, and Mrs. Huntington Henry.

Mrs. W. G. Hibbard Plans Two Months of Travel.

Mrs. William G. Hibbard will have only two more of her nice Sunday "at homes" out in her Winnetka house with its lovely gardens and then is to set off for a couple of months of travel. She is to sail on the S. S. Bremen in about two weeks, and the prospects of her journeying are, as usual, out of the run of the ordinary tourist junketing. With a New York friend who knows much about the intricacies of getting about in Russia she will go into the U. S. S. R., an experience that she anticipates with great interest and no trepidation. After the Russian trip she is going to Ireland to visit the Francis Hacketts at their place near Dublin.

Picture the setting for the luncheon Mrs. George M. Reynolds gave at the Huntington in Pasadena on Tuesday! The table, laid with an apricot colored chiffon cloth, had a long, low floral centerpiece of yellow, salmon, and gold colored gladioli, mixed with greenery and calla lilies, and the whole was candlelit. There were about 50 guests at the party, the Chicagoans including Mrs. John F. L. Curtis, Mrs. Ernest Hicks, Mrs. Darius Miller, and Mrs. George Marcy.

Racquet Club Not to Have Special Car for Derby.

Things to know: The Racquet club is not going to have a special car going down to the Derby this year. . . . Mrs. Gorton Fauntleroy of Geneva sailed yesterday for a six weeks' European trip. . . . Robert Lee Eskridge has departed to sail from San Francisco in May for four months in his beloved South Sea islands, and he has a commission to execute some murals for the James M. Hopkins apartment. . . . Mrs. Harry H. Shearman of the Lake Shore Drive hotel will fill orders for tickets for the Passavant Memorial hospital benefit at the Bendix gallery on May 5. . . . The Russell Matthiases have been sojourning at White Sulphur Springs. . . . Bondholders for the concert by Josef Rosenstein at Orchestra hall tomorrow afternoon include Rufus Dawes, Harold McCormick, Joseph E. Otis Jr., Alfred Hamill, Evan Evans, and Charles Swift. (Mr. Rosenstein is the young man who played at the Olivet Institute benefit this winter and in whose musical career several of the Olivet institute benefactors have become interested.

STOCK'S ORCHESTRA CHANGES DAYS FOR NEW SEASON CONCERTS

BY EDWARD MOORE.

For forty years, ever since its foundation, the Chicago Symphony orchestra has played concerts on Saturday nights. Next season, its forty-first, it will change. What Saturday night concerts are played will be on the popular series. The Saturday night subscription series will be transferred to Thursday nights and the hour of beginning will be moved from 8:15 to 8:30 o'clock.

The Saturday night audiences were beginning to fall off. Saturday has come to be considered a day of recreation, and symphony concerts, finest exposition of musical art though they may be, hardly classified under that head. Wherefore word went out a few weeks ago that the change was being considered. The management considered that if there were any objections they would soon be made plain by letter, and that more objectors than approvers would write. But out of all letters received only thirty-six raised objections. It was therefore decided that the great majority of subscribers either approved or had no objections.

On the theory that the supposed tired business man is unwilling to return to the loop once he has gone home on Saturdays, and that he would be more willing to stay down town for concerts in the middle of the week, the trustees voted to break the custom of forty years and the vote was unanimous. So hereafter there will be twenty-eight subscription concerts on Thursdays and sixteen "pops" on Saturdays.

The Bell Telephone choruses, men and women, combined their forces last night and gave a program at Orchestra hall under the direction of Daniel Protheroe. Appearing both individually as men's and women's units and collectively in combination they proved not only willingness to sing but considerable ability in the art.

No Trouble Too Great to Cure a Child of Fears

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Yesterday a letter was quoted from a mother whose little boy has been the victim of many fears for the last six months, dating from the time when he saw a moving picture. It will be necessary to go to some pains to eradicate the impression. No set rule can be laid down, but my suggestions to his mother would be something like this:

First, bring the past experience right out in the open by talking to the little boy about the movie he saw, asking him if he liked it. Whatever he may answer, get him to talk about it further, and gradually to tell you why he didn't like it. Then reassure him by saying that you're not going to take him to movies any more for years and years—that he's too young to go.

Then begin to explain how unreal movies are and explain to him a little of how they're taken. I'd even be quite elaborate about it and play a game of taking movies—let his father help, too. One could be the camera man and the other two might dress up and act something funny, or even fierce, like Indians chasing white men, or a mock fight, etc., the idea of all this being to make the child realize that what he saw was trumped up, but chiefly to get him to face the remembrance of that experience so that after a while he can do so without fear. Of course, all this talking and playing should be a little at a time.

Then, later, I'd buy him a magic lantern and some slides. And perhaps also make some slides. We used to do that by smoking up strips of glass over an old oil lamp and drawing on them. A magic lantern show has to be given in the dark and that may help him.

All this time I would not mention his various fears to him at all. Also, I would humor his fear of darkness and shadows by not forcing him to go into dark rooms or stay in them. Later you can meet all that if it does not disappear of itself.

Food Talk.

"Will you explain in your column the process of making a good cup of coffee for three persons? I can make five and six cups and have good coffee, but when I try to make two and three cups it is poor. I cannot percolate that amount so that it is fit to drink," writes Mrs. F. L. K.

If you use the same size flame or the same intensity of heat for heating the percolator that contains three cups that you use for the percolator when it holds five cups, you are percolating the small amount of coffee at a more rapid rate than you are the larger quantity. The faster coffee percolates the higher is the temperature of the water in the percolator. It is impossible to make good coffee by keeping boiling water in contact with coffee grounds for any length of time.

One thing that all good coffee makers are agreed on these days is that boiling water must never be used. Boiling water extracts the astringent tasting substance, tannin, from the coffee and the result is a bitter flavor. And boiling also drives off the volatile oils and caffeine which give the pleasing aroma and the very fine flavor that discriminating coffee drinkers enjoy.

Try lowering the flame under the percolator for three cups. I am sure this will improve your coffee, all other conditions being equal.

And then, if I dare, may I suggest another method of making coffee? In the last few years scientific laboratory workers as well as good coffee drinkers with a keen sense of discriminating quality in coffee flavor believe that percolating is not the best method of brewing coffee. They rate the methods of making coffee, in the order of their excellence, thus: Dripping, steeping, boiling, and percolating.

If a drip pot is not available the steeping method may be used with equal satisfaction. This requires about 2½ tablespoons of medium ground coffee for each cup of beverage. Put the coffee into any glass or porcelain container that may be tightly stoppered. A milk bottle serves very well. Add the necessary amount of cold water, and if you have soft water, use it. Hard water influences the flavor of coffee, and especially water that contains iron. Seal the bottle tightly so that none of the coffee perfume may escape. Let stand three or four hours. When ready to serve, strain the liquid through a fine meshed cloth into a porcelain or glass pot. Cover and heat quickly, but do not continue heating after it reaches the boiling point. Serve at once. This coffee is entirely free from tannin, is fragrant, and is just as delicious as coffee made by the drip method.

I hope you have a porcelain or glass percolator. Metal pots contribute a metallic flavor to coffee. Some metals, like tin and copper, produce a more disagreeable flavor than others. The finest of coffee is made in glass, china and porcelain pots, because these substances contribute no flavor. On Friday, Feb. 6, we printed a "Do you know" about coffee. There was much good coffee information condensed in a few words in that article.

D. A. R. Enjoys Raps at Reds, Pacifists, Too

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

Washington, D. C., April 24.—[Special.]—Cheering a congressman who rapped the state department's indifference to communism, and applauding a senator who demanded a big navy, the Daughters of the American Revolution today backed up their applause with two resolutions.

They urged congressional appropriations for the building of the "treaty" navy of 1936. They recommended immediate tightening of the immigration and alien control laws.

In between times they sent out a hurry up call for a special detail of police, to guard against any possible attacks by communists while Representative Hamilton Fish of New York was delivering the anti-communist speech which D. A. R. officials had earlier censored, because of his censure of the state department.

The policemen, however, standing alert at all doors, found no communists. Instead, they spent a quiet afternoon picking up the flowers and furs that the delegates dropped.

Although Mr. Fish's original speech, which, by the way, was delivered via the talkies last Saturday, was blue penciled by D. A. R. officials, he managed this afternoon to rap the state department.

"I have no sympathy," he declared, "with beliefs that the state department policy, despite its holier than thou attitude, should be immune from criticism, especially when its policies are contrary to American traditions, and against the interests and welfare of our citizens in foreign lands."

Reproaching the U. S. government for its lack of knowledge about communist activities, Mr. Fish said:

"Why, the communists could organize a raid on the White House and kidnap the President and the government wouldn't know about it until they read of it in the newspapers the next day."

Equally dangerous, in the opinion of Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, who addressed the evening meeting are the attacks on congress and on public opinion of the anti-navy groups.

"Here in this city," Senator Moses said, "will be found the headquarters of more than one organization whose purpose it is to render the United States wholly defenseless, except for the war panoply which virtue provides. Their officers are as alert as they are fanatical, as plausible as they are impudent, and far more effective than either their cause or their number warrants."

In accord with these sentiments the D. A. R. passed, not only the resolution demanding the "treaty" navy; but another resolution urging all its members to patronize only American ships in order to develop our merchant marine.

Suits Are Bedrock of Season's Modes

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Choose a good tailored suit and you can't go wrong this spring, for every possible variation of the suit idea is being featured by the Paris couturiers. And you can wear your suit in the afternoon, too, for all that extra dressy stuff is beginning to look just a bit florid except for grand garden parties, the polo and things like that.

Lucien Lelong has made some of the smartest suits I've seen this spring. He has a trick of cutting the jacket and the blouse both like waistcoats, though of different materials and colors, that is extremely dashing.

The suit is of black broadcloth with semi-fitted, one button cutaway jacket, that has square lapels and shoulders in the latest fashion. The wrap around skirt is cut in a curve toward the hem recalling the curve of the jacket closing.

The short sleeve cutaway blouse is of white piqué, dotted with red embroidered pin dots. It is embroidered round all its edges with double scallops in red and a row of red eyelets. It has no fastening. A wide red leather belt buckle in back holds it trimly in place.

The buttonhole flower is of the red dotted and embroidered piqué,

In Love with the Doctor? So Are Lots of Other Girls

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"The worst thing that could happen to a married woman has happened to me. I have fallen in love with another man. He happens to be our family doctor. Never in all my life have I felt toward any one as I do toward him. I am old enough to know what I'm doing, but can any one help loving another? I have two small children to think of and never want to put even the tiniest blemish on their lives, etc., etc. MRS. D. T."

My dear woman, you won't put any blemish on the youngsters' lives. It's a habit women have—falling in love with their doctors. There's nothing extraordinary about your feelings at all. It's just one of the commonest ailments known to the profession. But you'll get over it—with the help of the good doctor himself. If he is a good doctor.

The stories I've heard about women camping on the poor professional man's doorstep. If, in addition to being a doctor he is a handsome one—his life just isn't worth the fees. The ailments that some women can scare up under the pressure of an appealing gentleman of the medical profession just am somethin' awful! So don't you go taking your symptoms too seriously. If you've got a good man invite the doctor in to prolong his life, pay his bill promptly and let it go at that. Remember the doctor, himself, may have a little woman at home suffering worse love symptoms than you could scare up in twenty years of his professional visits. And rejoice that your own good man is in a business that carries immunity from this particular brand of hero worship. It is that, I suppose, chiefly.

The medical man comes in and saves your life or that of one of your youngsters. It's no wonder you feel toward him as you never felt toward any one else in your life. Or, by the very nature of his profession you are impelled to bare facts and fancies [or both] that you don't confide elsewhere and so there is built up on your side a certain intimacy which you misinterpret as something else. You may be just another pair of lungs or an appendix or a broken rib to the man, but being in a weakened state you get to imaginin' things all out of proportion to the heart beat counts.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Ease Away Gracefully.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have been going with a fellow I don't like. Please advise. MARY."

Discourage his attentions, as it would be unfair to encourage him any longer.

Proof of Fondness.

"Dear Miss Blake: My friend takes me out two and three times a week. He has never proposed. Does he love me? HARRIET."

Such attentiveness shows that he is very fond of you, if he isn't in love.

THAT GAYER SPAIN RENEWED IN DANCE OF MARTIN, DOMINGUEZ

BY HAZEL MOORE.

Clarita Martin and Mlja Dominguez personally conucted a brilliant and willing audience on a colorful tour of the Spain of their fancy in dance and in song at the Civic theater last night. Nor was it a Spain of revolutions and deposed kings, but rather the gay country of flowers, laughter, and beautiful senoritas.

In other words, Miss Martin in her interpretations of Spanish dances, and Miss Dominguez, the enticing Mexican soprano with her Spanish and Mexican songs succeeded mightily in pleasing their large audience. And well they might. Each was charming, each was accomplished in her chosen field, and the whole effect was enhanced by the most lovely costuming of the season. This with proper lighting and literally an overflow of floral offerings, added to the brightness of the evening.

Miss Martin, though obviously a nice American [she is Mrs. Mellen C. Martin of Winnetka], has acquired much of the inherent spirit of the Spanish dance. The castanets conversed and accented as a true follower of the land of La Argentina would have them, and her heels clicked alluringly.

Miss Dominguez also was adept in song and action, singing brilliantly arias of the Spanish classic music of De Falla, and enacting charmingly a group of popular Spanish songs. They were assisted by Mercedes Navarro Cameron and Fay Polk at the piano, and by Emilio Avila, guitarist.

Bit of "Makeup" Helps the Hair as Well as the Face

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

It's interesting to note the change of attitude that has come over women even in my time of experience with and study on the subject. It isn't so many years back that dyeing the hair sent pious hands up beseeching mercy for the misguided one. Bleaches and that sort of thing were instruments of the well known gentlemen hanging around looking to get folk into trouble. Even after makeup began to be accepted as a performance nice girls were indulging in, a prejudice against hair retouching still remained. It still is more backward among the greater majority of women than the art of makeup.

Yet, why shouldn't hair that has grown rusty and streaked and dulled be brightened just as a cheek or a colorless lip leans upon outside aid for a younger blush? I don't see any reason why not. Certainly, the gals that lived a thousand, two thousand years before us weren't troubled with any inhibitions when it came to glorifying the hair with outside aid, were they?

The backwardness on this point is even more curious when you consider how much more psychologically depressing is faded hair than a faded cheek. Perhaps the hair people have been to blame in the past for not perfecting their cosmetic wares as the other branches of the cosmetic trade have done. Anyway, it's only recently that women have become educated in treating the hair to a bit of "makeup" that does the same thing for their youth and spirits that the cheek and lip aid does.

Hair rinses are really to the hair what makeup is to the face, lending a more youthful or a more colorful touch to the head. I'll wager it won't be long before women, universally, will be treating their hair to some form of color preservative rinse or color toning rinse to defeat the ravages of time, just as they are doing with their cosmetic lotions for facial benefit. This because recently hair has come into greater prominence than it has for a long time, and luster and sheen and a youthful color are demanded of a well groomed head. We do move with the times, and our heads right with us, don't we?

FARM AND GARDEN

PLANT PATENT PROTECTION

Increased efforts by experts and amateurs to create new varieties of plant life are forecast by Frank C. G. White, a member of the Men's Garden club of the Chicago region, in commenting on the efforts of the federal government to reward plant breeders with patent protection.

Luther Burbank, many years ago, scored the neglect of the federal patent office to provide such protection, according to Dr. Joseph Rossman of the United States patent office at Washington, D. C. Burbank's statement is reported to have been:

"A man can patent a mousetrap or copyright a nasty song, but if he gives to the world a new fruit that will add millions to the value of earth's annual harvest, he will be fortunate if he is rewarded by as much as having his name connected with the result."

Members of the Men's Garden club have been advised by Mr. White that details of the plant patent work are being worked out slowly, but that 35 applications on new kinds of plants already were being studied to see if the plants described are new. Other decisions expected to set forth just what the patent office can do are anticipated on such subjects as to whether sweet potatoes can be classed as tubers in addition to other potatoes, and just what is designated as patentable by the original patent amendment applying to plants.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 24.—Rogers Hornsby, serious minded manager of the Cubs, this afternoon was thrown into a rage because of certain clownish events in the first two innings of the Pirate opener and before he could be quieted down he had driven in eight runs with three homers in successive times at bat and had added a single for good measure. The Cubs, who trailing 5 to 0 at the end of the second inning, won the game, 10 to 6, and brought their season's status with the Pirates to four victories and one loss.

Hornsby's rampage brought his homer total for the five games with the Pirates to five, and all five were essential to victory except the third one this afternoon. The boss' feat of hitting three homers in successive times at bat places his name in a new entry in record books along with George Kelly, Carl Reynolds, Earl Averill, Goose Goslin, and Mel Ott. Kelly was the first in so-called modern baseball to hit three homers in successive times at bat in 1923.

Umpires Funny as Ever.

The game had started out to be a comedy affair, until Hornsby welded things together with his bat. In the first place the umpiring team of Rem, Magerkurth, and McGrew, known to vaudeville as the jolly Tyrolean yodeling trio, moved on here from Chicago to continue its series of entertaining numbers. Moran had put on a wow in Chicago last Sunday and it is possible Magerkurth, who has given up tap dancing as not worthy of his talents, was a bit jealous.

So here's how Mr. Magerkurth, the tall one of the trio, broke into the spotlight: L. Waner had started the Pirate offensive against Blake with a single over Cuyler's head. Regan bunted, but P. Waner drove his brother home with a single. Traynor then lifted a high fly which dropped at Willson's feet and P. Waner reached third. Suhr slammed a liner which was headed for center field when it hit Mr. Magerkurth and was deflected to Cuyler, who threw to English and English threw to Grimm for a perfect double play.

Rube Magerkurth's Skit a Flop.

Mr. Magerkurth waved out everybody in sight, and the Cubs went to their bench.

Then McGrew, the only member of the trio who hasn't gone in for fun, and Moran, who is sad about the

Indians Hammer Thomas to Defeat White Sox, 8-1

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Tommy Thomas continues in the rôle of a fellow who can't pitch. He made another attempt yesterday to justify his salary, but the effort, like previous ones, was a total failure and it carried the White Sox to another sound spanking at the hands of the Cleveland Indians. The painful treatment was administered by 8 to 1 and the ninth inning rolled around before the south siders were able to dodge the added humiliation of being thoroughly whitewashed by Willis Hudlin.

While Thomas showed himself to be far removed from an effective workman, he at least revealed his consistency. In two previous starts this season he was rudely removed without much loss of time. It was the same yesterday. The first inning was none too smooth for him. The second was worse. In fact so bad that after the session had netted four runs because of hits and Tommy's own bad fielding, he was told to go his way. Another pair of tallies slipped over before Hal McKain could conclude the unhappy chapter, but thereafter he had the Indians swinging like blind men. However, his exhibition was without profit except to himself.

Just Escape Shutout.

When Thomas completed the long journey from mound to bench he wasn't received with outbursts of enthusiasm. Mr. Bush, the little manager was there and he could be seen gesticulating and talking in Tommy's direction. Occasionally Tommy found space in which to get through a return word. What Mr. Bush was beefing about in particular was Thomas' method of gumming up a possible chance to close the inning without runs, but what Mr. Bush was thinking about was something else. All else aside, Thomas still insists the soreness has left his arm, but he can't pitch. That is what Mr. Bush was thinking about.

With Thomas' early collapse worrying them, his mates weren't long falling into a state of depression. In the first couple of innings they nicked the ball just hard enough to indicate they might be working toward bigger things, but as the affair progressed they grew weaker. Inning after inning elapsed in which they seldom advanced anybody as far as second base.

Errors—Burnett, Thomas. Two base hits—Fonseca, Reynolds, Hodapp. Three base hits—Burnett. Home run—Averill. Double play—Hunnefield-Fonseca. Bases on balls — Off Thomas, 1; McKain, 1; Hudlin, 1. Time, 1:51.

After eight rounds of this they had only five hits to show for their efforts, and in the ninth they added two more to avoid a shutout. Eichrodt produced one of these and Kamm's single shoved him home.

Indians Score in First.

As a warmup for his grand flop in the second Thomas yielded three hits in the first inning, one run resulting. Fonseca looped a double to right with one out and Averill scored him with a hit through Blue. Luckily for somebody Averill tried to stretch his hit into a double and Reynolds threw him out. Then Hodapp singled to left, but Thomas scaled the heights by whiffing Vosmik.

Starting his inglorious second chapter Thomas gave a pass to his old friend, Gus Falk. Hunnefield fanned and the exertion probably was too much for Tommy. He was taken immediately with the misery. Sewell singled to center. Hudlin bounced to Thomas and he could easily have started a double play by way of third base, but he shot the ball to second. He not only threw it like a bullet, but threw it to one side, and

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: I have in my possession a copy of the city ordinances of the city of Chicago presented to me in 1911 by the Hon. Henry Greenebaum. This copy is a de luxe edition printed in 1856.

At that time the city had nine wards. Thomas Dyer was mayor and the aldermen were: James Long, 1st; L. A. Willard and Orrin Kendall, 2d; Calvin De Wolf, 3d; Samuel Myers, 4th; Russell Green, 5th; Henry Greenebaum, 6th; John Dempsey, 7th; S. D. La Rue and C. L. Nichoff, 8th; Michael Diversey, 9th.

Many of those ordinances would make interesting reading to present Chicagoans. Hay and wood stands were regulated thus:

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the common council of the city of Chicago that no person or persons having wood or hay in market for sale by the wagon or cart load shall stop or wait for a purchaser or purchasers on any street, alley, lane, or public ground of the city except as hereinafter provided, to wit:

First. In the south division, on State street, 100 feet north of the north line of Lake street, and 20 feet south of the south line of South Water street, on either side of said State street, at least 20 feet from the center thereof. Also on Market street, 60 feet south of the south line of Randolph street, along the center of said Market street, between the planking of said street.

Second. In the north division, to wit: on Michigan street between Clark and Dearborn, leaving a clear space of at least 30 feet in the center of said street; also on Illinois street, from Clark to Dearborn, leaving a like space of at least 30 feet in the center of said street.

Sec. 2. Any person or persons violating the provisions of this ordinance shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay a penalty for each offense of not less than $2, nor more than $5 in the discretion of the court or magistrate convicting.

Original ordinance passed May 5, 1851; amendment Nov. 12, 1855.

TWO NEW MARKS SET AS RELAYS OPEN AT DRAKE

Hugh Rhea, Iowa State Team, Lowers Records.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., April 24.—Cold weather this afternoon called a halt to the record breaking activities of the track and field armies of the west gathered here for the twenty-second annual relays of Drake university. Where last year, with better working conditions, a dozen records were broken on the first day of the meet, this afternoon only two new marks were created.

Hugh Rhea, Nebraska's big football line man, spun the 16 pound iron ball through the air 49 feet 7 inches in the qualifying trials of the shot put. This mark bettered the record Jim Bausch of Kansas established last year at 49 feet 1½ inches.

The other relay record fell to the distance medley quartet from Iowa State. With Putnam running the mile at anchor, the boys from the neighboring city of Ames were timed in 10 minutes 21 6-10 seconds, more than two seconds faster than Marquette, which had won the event last year and had set a relay mark.

Wind, Rain Dampen Meet.

The brisk, cold, southeastern wind which threatened in early afternoon to whip a fine drizzle of rain across the stadium as added handicap, did not prevent more than 5,000 from watching the preliminary events. True, many of these were in the east stands, reserved for Des Moines grade and high school students, but the cheering from this section colored an ordinary drab spring day.

The high school relays, contested between the sprints and relays for the university teams, brought forth enthusiasm customarily reserved for football. And it rose to a crescendo of screeches when a battalion of seventh and eighth graders swarmed to the infield for the shuttle relay.

While seconds were added to the longer races by unfavorable conditions the contestants in the field events probably had greater handicaps. Muscles, stiffened by cold, refused the spring necessary to reach new heights, and the javelin throwers and broad jumpers also were below par.

High Jumpers Handicapped.

Particularly noticeable was the high jump. In this event only four, Russell of Bradley, Shaw of Wisconsin, Ehrlich of Kansas Aggies, and Strong of Southwestern Teachers, cleared six feet one inch. Eleven others, among them Gordon of Iowa and Nelson of Butler, tied at 6 feet.

Gordon, however, led the field of six qualifying in the broad jump, but at the very low mark of 22 feet 9½ inches. A week ago under a warm Kansas sun Gordon soared more than 25 feet in his specialty.

Weldon, Iowa's other great individual star, led the javelin qualifiers with a mark of 189.46 feet, some 15 feet less than his record at the Kansas relays.

Sentman Wins Heat.

Lee Sentman, the best high hurdler in the country this year, his last of competition for the University of Illinois, won his heat in the preliminaries at 14 9-10 seconds. He should break the Drake record of :14.8 tomorrow, for he is consistently a fifth of a second faster. Hager of Iowa State, also winner in the qualifying races, is his best opponent.

Eddie Tolan, holder of the world's 100 yard mark at 9 5-10, won his heat of the dash today in ten seconds. Tolan never has been able to win the Drake relay hundred, and Paul Swift, Washington State sophomore, and Glass of Oklahoma Aggies, who had the best of all this afternoon, 9 9-10, once more may checkmate Michigan's Negro star. Glass was timed at the 1931 Texas relays in 9 5-10, while Swift won at Kansas last week in 9 6-10 seconds.

Tolan, in addition to his individual

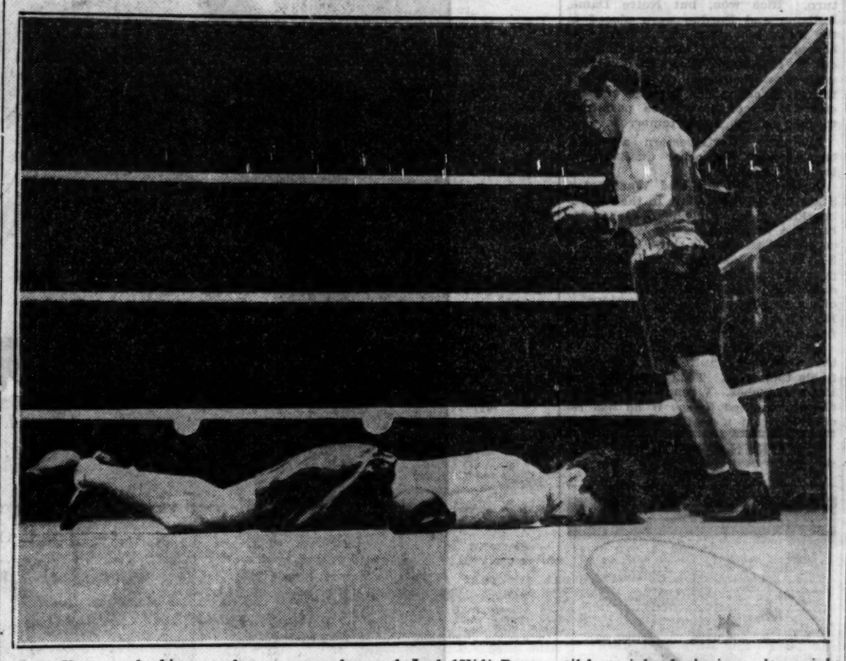
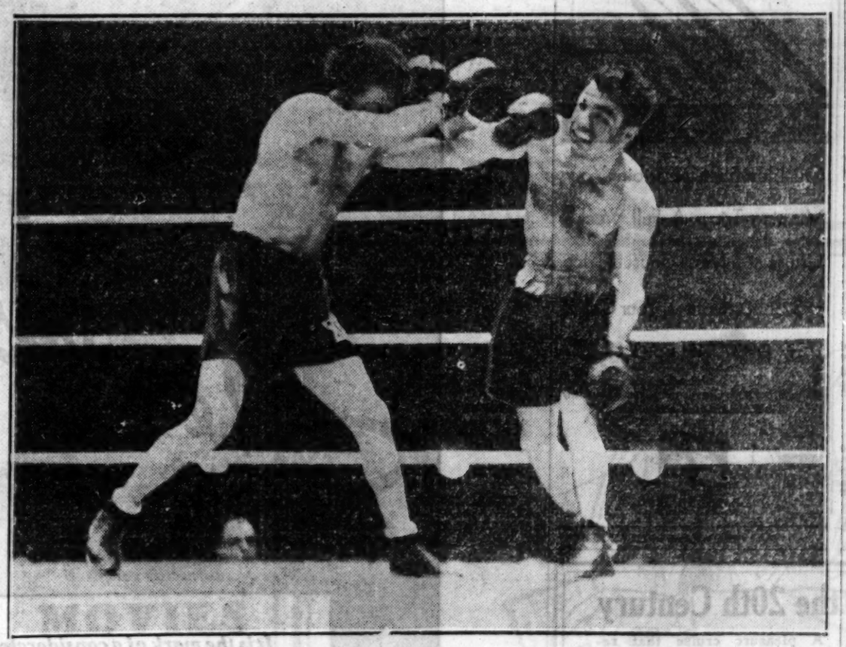
DOWN AND OUT



You are looking at the prostrate form of Jack (Kid) Berg, until last night the junior welterweight champion of the world. He lost his title to Tony Canzoneri in the Stadium ring when the lightweight king exploded a right squarely on Berg's jaw in the third round.



Canzoneri was mad. You can tell it by the expression on his face. He had just failed to connect with one of those hard right swings. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

SOME SHOTS FROM THE RINGSIDE

BY ARCH WARD.

The result of the Canzoneri-Berg bout at the Stadium last night caught the fans by surprise. It has been so long since one of those feverishly ballyhooed spectacles ended decisively that the fans left the arena a bit groggy.

The authors who reported that Canzoneri was a doddering old man ready to abdicate the lightweight throne are a bit punch drunk this morning. So is Kid Berg.

The fans stayed away in large numbers because of the boost in admission prices. If any prize fight is worth $10.80 ringside, it was the windup of last night's show.

When you talk about hard punchers, don't forget to mention Barney Ross, a 1929 Golden Gloves champion. Barney rammed Lud Abella of Spain with so many blows that his opponent thought he was engaged in one of his native bull fights.

Ross probably never will be a champion. He doesn't shake hands with himself in acknowledgement of the fans' acclaim when he leaves the ring. This is a violation of a long standing custom.

The state and city governments were well represented. Mayor Cermak came in after the fourth bout. He was preceded by Senator Mike Igoe. Lieut. Gov. Sterling was the guest of the Illinois boxing commissioners.

Included among the working newspaper men were three writers from New York and one from London. The British correspondent, Trevor Wignall, seems to be a jinx to his fighters. Phil Scott was knocked out [or fouled out] the last time Wignall was in this country to report an important match.

Nate Lewis, Stadium matchmaker, attributed the slim attendance to rumors of fake that preceded the bout. Some of these found their way into print.

Whenever a fighter falls to the canvas on his face, you can be reasonably sure that he has been hit. There are so many easier ways to take the count.

Ed Steeve, who got his schooling in the Golden Gloves tournament a year ago, made good in his Stadium professional début with a victory over Mickey Putrick.

It looked for a moment that a riot was under way just before the main bout. But it was only a squad of former and would-be champions scrambling into the ring to be introduced. Occasionally one could get a glimpse of the windup fighters.

BRITON RISES AFTER 8 COUNT, BUT KNEES SAG

Tony Retains Title with One Punch.

Fight Decisions

At New York—Ben Jeby, New York, beat Johnny File, New York [10].
At Cedar Rapids, Ia.—Tommy Grogan of Omaha, Neb., knocked out Iowa Joe Byers, Cedar Rapids [6].

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

Tony Canzoneri of New York retained his lightweight title against the challenge of Jack [Kid] Berg of England at the Stadium last night with one blow. That blow came unexpectedly after two minutes and twenty-three seconds of the third round.

It was a stiff right cross as Berg was rushing in. It landed flush on the point of the Briton's jaw. Such was the impact and such was Berg's position at the time that he fell forward at full length on his face. Berg, as he lay there, seemed out, but at Referee Phil Collins' count of "five" his fighting instinct roused him. He tried to rise as eight was tolled. Then he fell back on his haunches and was counted out.

In addition to keeping his lightweight title Canzoneri won Berg's junior welterweight crown.

Berg Favored in Betting.

Up to the time of this one blow Canzoneri and Berg, who made 134½ pounds for this bout and was 7 to 5 favorite in what betting there was, had engaged on almost even terms in the fastest milling a Chicago crowd had seen between boxers with reputations and willing to take chances with their reputations. Canzoneri had a margin in the first round, only a shade in the second, and Berg apparently was reaching his form in the third when the knockout occurred.

Despite the presence of two champions in one bout, the crowd was something of a disappointment to the management. Gross receipts were $54,663, with 12,325 persons passing through the turnstiles. Among the latter was Mayor Cermak, who arrived just before the fourth bout on the card and moved to an inconspicuous seat in the fourth row. He was seen by the announcer, however, who called through the microphone and the mayor, in response to the cheers of the crowd, waved a white felt hat aloft as the organist played a few bars of "Go Chicago." Sammy Mandell, Battling Nelson, Maxie Rosenbloom, Jack Thompson and Earl Mastro were introduced to the crowd.

Action from the Start.

Canzoneri and Berg entered the arean for the main bout almost simultaneously. As the gong sounded, the rivals lost no time in rushing into action, and there was an almost constant whirl of gloves and fusillade of blows until the finish. In the first round, Canzoneri attacked with his one-two hooks as he pressed the pace while Berg met the charge with blows to the body.

This round was in line with advance predictions that Canzoneri would force the pace and make his best showing at the start. Berg was expected to wear down his rival as he has done to others. Canzoneri, because of his greater aggressiveness, in which he landed frequently, more frequently than many had anticipated, had a marked margin in this session. It was a marked margin in points, however, with no indication yet of an early ending.

Berg Shows Improvement.

In the second round Berg improved. He mixed to better effect with his rival and landed his share of the blows during the constant action which was giving the crowd an exhibition of how champions should fight. Canzoneri several times shook up Berg with his lefts, but the latter continued with his body tactics and then lifted his attack to the face when the exchanges became prolonged. Berg's showing in this round was in line with the expectations of his followers.

Thus when Berg in the third round attempted to take the play away from his two and one-half pound lighter rival cheers rang out for him. Canzoneri, however, was hitting with terrific power, and while his supreme confidence of the opening session now acknowledged more respect for his rival, he still pursued his set policy of mixing it freely. Berg was quite as willing. So it was that the Briton was making his best showing of the brief bout when he ran into Canzoneri's cross which ended the battle.

Steeve Wins Opener.

In the four round opener, Ed Steeve of Champaign, Golden Gloves intercity winner of 1930, beat Mickey Patrick of Chicago. Steeve weighed 134 pounds and Patrick, 134½.

Natie Brown of Chicago, 135½ pounds, gained a four round verdict over Joe Doktor of Buffalo, 136½ pounds.

Barney Ross of Chicago, Golden Gloves intercity winner of 1929, knocked out Lud Abella of Spain in the second round. Ross outclassed his opponent in both speed and hitting power. Ross weighed 133½ and Abella 133 pounds.

Harry Dublinsky of Chicago, 124¼ pounds, was awarded an eight round decision over Roger Bernard of Detroit, 124¼ pounds. Dublinsky applied a straight left jab to advantage.

Tony Herrera of Chicago outpointed Steve Hallako of Buffalo, N. Y., in the eight round semi-final.

OHIO STATE WINS 2 RELAY RACES IN PENN MEET

Barney Berlinger Retains Decathlon Title.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 24.—[Special.]—Flaming scarlet jerseys of Ohio State swept through to two of the three college championships today at Franklin field as the thirty-seventh annual Penn relay carnival opened under a benign sun that loosened muscles and thus set the stage for a series of brilliant performances.

The assembled athletes smashed six meet records and tied another in an onslaught that presaged another mark surpassing attack tomorrow. Of these half dozen standards that fell only three were made in open competition, while the other three and the tied figures were in the decathlon.

Ohio State climaxed the meet with a victory in the sprint medley relay, a 1:53 anchor half mile by Rupert Beetham, national junior 880 yard champion, carrying in the Scarlet and Gray in 3:27.6, four-tenths of a second better than Georgetown's six year old standard of 3:28.

Keller Surpasses Mark.

Ohio State also accounted for another mark when Sophomore Jack Keller took the 120 yard high hurdles in heat and final in superb time of :14.7, one-tenth of a second better than another 6 year old mark, Charlie Moore's :14.8 time.

The third record came when Joe McCluskey of Fordham, intercollegiate two mile and national steeplechase champion, drove the 3,000 meter steeplechase mark from 9:57.8 down to 9:37.

The rest of the marks were in the decathlon, which Big Barney Berlinger of Pennsylvania won to the surprise of no one at all. But what was a bit disappointing was Barney's point total, 7,735.6135, quite a bit below the 8,000 predicted for him, but a carnival record aggregate at that.

On his way to his final tabulation Berlinger shattered the old shot put mark with a heave of 46 feet 9⅝ inches, while Fred Klauer of Colgate, second to Berlinger with 8,944.104, equalled the 100 meter time of :11.2; Otto Schoenfeld of Cornell broke the discus standard with a toss of 132 feet 6⅝ inches, and George Munger of Penn set a new pole vault height with a clearance of 12 feet 6 inches.

Only Two Repeaters.

It was not a particularly auspicious occasion for the defending titleholders. Chicago gave notice that it would not be so dangerous in the sprint relay when Army beat the westerners in a heat and then the Maroon finished fourth to Ohio State in the final. Ohio State also usurped Chicago as sprint medley rulers and Keller vanquished J. E. Hatfield of Indiana in the hurdles to supplant him there. Penn in the distance medley and Berlinger in the decathlon were the only ones to repeat. Summaries:

STABLE RAZED BY FIRE IS NOT OWNED BY HERTZ

The report of a fire in a stable at the Arlington race track yesterday described it as the private stable of John Hertz. It was explained later that the stable was not that of Mr. Hertz but only one of a group used indiscriminately by such owners as may be assigned to them. The space is not allotted until racing time and the burned building was empty.

The damage was approximately $10,000. Fire departments from Palatine and Arlington Heights extinguished the blaze before it endangered other buildings.

event, ran two longer dashes for Wolverine relay teams. He brought his mates home first in the 880 university relay with a mark of 1 minute 28 9-10 seconds. Michigan has an excellent chance to break the Drake record of 1:27.5 tomorrow if conditions are more favorable.

Rice Team Disqualified.

The Kansas 440 yard relay team, which last week came within one-tenth of the world record of 41 seconds, today was held to 42.2 seconds. The Jayhawkers also are favored to establish a Drake mark tomorrow.

The Rice Institute team was disqualified in the mile relay when Chambers, running third, pushed Gafke, of Wisconsin, as the Badger star cut in front of him at the far turn. Rice won, but Notre Dame, Indiana, and Purdue were placed in the finals when the Texas team was barred. It seemed Gafke might have cut to the inside lane too quickly—such was Chambers' contention—but the relay committee tonight will decide if Wisconsin will be permitted to race in the finals tomorrow.

Michigan, Northwestern and Nebraska were the other qualifiers in the first heat.

Butler, Oklahoma and Washington State trailed Iowa State in the record-breaking distance medley. Marquette had the lead when Pete Walter had completed two of his three laps in the 3-4 mile. However, Pete failed to pass the baton to his brother, Jack, and finally tossed it to him. This, of course, disqualified the Hilltoppers. However, Jack could not place in the final mile of the relay, finishing fifth.

Warne of Northwestern, is one of the nine pole vaulters to enter the finals tomorrow. Today's height was 12 feet 4 inches. Warne's work will be closely watched to see if he has recovered from a foot injury received last summer. Incidentally, Warne jumped 13 feet 11 inches here last year, a new record and the best he ever has done in competition.

HAFEY COMES TO TERMS; DOCKED FOR DAYS ABSENT

St. Louis, Mo., April 24.—(AP)—The 1931 pennant hopes of the St. Louis Cardinals, National league champions, received a big boost today when Charles (Chick) Hafey, slugging Cardinal outfielder and most stubborn of the season's holdouts, accepted the club's salary offer.

"I accept your terms. Will leave first part of next week," Hafey telegraphed President Sam Breadon from his home at Berkeley, Cal.

Breadon's final terms called for a 1931 salary of $12,500, but when Hafey was still absent when the season opened ten days ago, Breadon announced that he would lose a day's pay for each day he was absent and for each additional day required to condition himself.

WALTON LEAGUE PLAYS HOST TO BYRD AND HAWES

Admiral Tells About Pole, Senator About Parks.

BY BOB BECKER.

With Admiral Richard E. Byrd and Senator Harry B. Hawes of Missouri as its guests of honor, the Izaak Walton league climaxed its ninth annual convention last night when more than 1,000 of its members gathered for the annual banquet in the Sherman hotel. President Hoover sent a message of congratulation to the meeting in which he lauded the league for its leadership in "conserving our natural resources and solving the complex problems" affecting the outdoor life and recreation of the people.

Showing a number of reels of motion pictures of his recent polar adventure, Admiral Byrd told the story of his thrilling outdoor experience with something of a polar atmosphere around him, as the league had frozen several game fish in a block of ice which was placed immediately in front of the speakers' table before the speaking program was started.

Senator Hawes Talks.

Preceding Admiral Byrd's address Senator Hawes told the Waltonians of the billion dollars a year which outdoor lovers spend to enjoy America's wild life resources, such as national parks, lake playgrounds, and hunting and fishing.

"There are forty-five million people visiting our parks each year. Thirteen million men and women in the United States now hold hunting and fishing licenses. In addition there are millions of boys and girls enjoying these sports who do not require licenses," he said. He characterized the league the one "irresistible force that registers in the halls of congress" with respect to conservation matters.

The banquet was attended by the heads of state conservation departments, government conservation authorities, and leaders in forestation and game breeding.

Prominent Visitors Attend.

Besides prominent Waltonian officials the distinguished visitors who were in attendance included: Major R. Y. Stuart, chief forester, U. S. forestry service; Maj. L. W. T. Waller, director of conservation for E. I. du Pont de Nemours company; Paul G. Redington, chief, U. S. biological survey; Dr. T. Gilbert Pearson, president, National Association of Audubon Societies; Dr. Harold C. Bryant, assistant director, United States national park service; Ernest A. Pfleger, president Fishing Tackle Manufacturers' association; Gen. Milton A. Reckord, executive vice president of the National Rifle association; George E. Scott, president of the Izaak Walton League Foundation, and Ernest C. Oberholtzer, president of the Superior Quetico council.

The game conference closes at noon today, although the sportsmen's show being held in conjunction with the convention at the Sherman hotel will not close its doors until late tonight.

Henry O'Malley, commissioner of the United States bureau of fisheries, who spoke yesterday on the highlights of fisheries conservation, told the assembled Waltonians that they need not worry about the proposed nine foot channel in the upper Mississippi with respect to harmful effects on fish life because the improvements, which include a deep channel, storage, reservoirs, etc., will be constructed "with due regard to their effect upon fish and animal life."

It is the mark of a considerate hostess, by means of the Humidor Pack, to "Serve a fresh cigarette." Buy Camels by the carton—this cigarette will remain fresh in your home and office.

CAMELS

Every CAMEL Package Now a Tiny Humidor

Switch over for just one day then quit Camels, if you can

All regular Camel smokers have noticed a significant change in the Camel package. Now their favorite cigarettes come air-sealed in moisture-proof Cellophane.

An improvement in appearance, true, but the reason for this change that cost $2,000,000 was not mere looks.

It was done to protect the fine mild quality of Camels until they reach the smoker.

The best tobacco loses much of its rich flavor and aroma when its natural moisture content is lost through scorching or evaporation.

That's why we have made every Camel package a tiny humidor—so that you may always be sure of getting Camels in fresh mild condition.

Camels are wrapped only in moisture-proof Cellophane with an air-seal.

Try a package today and revel in the luxury of a really fresh cigarette.

Factory-fresh Camels are air-sealed in the new Sanitary Package which keeps the dust and germs out and keeps the flavor in.

It is peppery dust and harsh dry tobacco that are unkind to a smoker's throat.

We vacuum-clean away the dust and keep the natural moisture in by the exclusive Humidor Pack.

Make the switch to Camels for just one day, then leave them — if you can.

Westerner Offers Londos $25,000 to Meet Lewis

Lou Daro, Los Angeles wrestling promoter, arrived in Chicago yesterday to negotiate for a match between Ed [Strangler] Lewis, one claimant of the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, and Jim Londos, the other claimant, for Wrigley field at Los Angeles.

The coast promoter produced a certified check for $25,000 which Londos can have if he will sign to wrestle Lewis. Daro said last night that if the Greek did not want to wrestle on the coast, where Lewis is regarded as the kingpin by the California commission, that he would step aside in favor of Promoters Joe Coffey and Jim Mullen and Chicago or any other site.

"The public has grown tired of listening to the claims of two so-called champions," said Daro. "Out in California they think Lewis is the champion. I am neutral.

"I went before Gen. John V. Clinnin, chairman of the Illinois state athletic commission, and Mr. Clinnin told me that he would accept my certified check and also a forfeit from Lewis.

Lewis will arrive in Chicago this afternoon by airplane from Missouri. The Strangler is to wrestle Jean Le Deaux, the French champion, at the Coliseum, Tuesday night. It will be his first Chicago appearance since he won back his slice of the championship from Don George with Daro promoting in California.

Gus Sonnenberg, Dartmouth football star, who once defeated Lewis for the title, will be on the Coliseum card with Karl Zbyszko, a nephew of Stanislaus and Wladek.

Three Homers by Hornsby Beat Pirates

echoes of his Chicago number, got together and ruled Magerkurth's skit a flop. Moran and McGrew ordered the Cubs back to their positions and placed three Pirates on bases, and although Mr. Magerkurth yodeled prettily, his ideas got the hook. The reversal was made on the ground that because a batted ball had hit an umpire, the batsman was entitled to a single. The game went on eventually and Blake was so distressed that he forced in another run with a walk, although he shouldn't have been upset, seeing as McGrew and Moran were right.

In the second inning Lester Bell got into the spirit of revelry attempted by Magerkurth. Bell went into an adagio dance when he should have been accomplishing a third out, and three runs ensued to destroy Blake and get Hornsby stirred up.

Bell Gets Into Muddle.

The inning started with a pass to French, who moved to second while L. Waner was rolling out to Grimm. Regan filed to Cuyler. Then Hornsby went back of second for a barehand play on P. Waner's grounder. Seeing that French had started on home and was some ten feet past third, Hornsby threw the ball to Bell. But Les had lost sight of French, who was wearing a leather jacket, making him look like Manager Ens, who was in the coaching box.

The whole Cub cast was yelling at Bell and this started him into a series of spins and whirls, trying to learn what all the shouting was about. Eventually French got back to third and Les' head cleared and the game went on. Then Pie Traynor stepped up, still laughing heartily with the rest of the 15,000 Pittsburghers present, and knocked a home run, scoring French and P. Waner ahead of him, this made the score 5 to 0, in favor of the Pirates.

Cubs Get Pretty Mad.

Sweetland was called in and walked Mosolf and Suhr, and everybody could see Hornsby was getting madder and madder at the comical features of the contest. Thevenow forced Mosolf for the belated third out, and by this time the Cubs all were pretty mad, especially Hornsby.

Sweetland started things with a single, the first of his series of hits, which included two singles and a triple. Cuyler flied to P. Waner, but English singled to right. When Hornsby came up the crowd gave him a terrible razz. That razz proved the signal for homer No. 1, a terrific drive over the left center fence at a spot that is cleared about once every two years. This made the score 5 to 3.

Sweetland allowed no hits in the Pirate third and fourth and French allowed none in the Cub fourth. Which brings us up to the Cub fifth.

Second Homer Gives Cubs Lead.

Cuyler started it with a single to right. Then English walked. Bang. Hornsby had hit homer No. 2, this one into the right field pavilion. The score was 6 to 5 in favor of the Cubs.

Hornsby hadn't started to quiet down. Sweetland tripled with one out in the sixth and scored the first run to be accomplished without the aid of a Hornsby homer, when Cuyler singled and moved to second on English's sacrifice. Up bobs Hornsby again. There were cheers this time. Then the Cub leader knocked the ball over the scoreboard in left field, scoring Cuyler ahead of him.

Sweetland shut out the Pirates until the eighth, so the Cubs didn't have to bear down after Hornsby's third homer.

The Cubs and Pirates will play the final of the series here tomorrow. Pat Malone of the Cubs will pitch against Remy Kremer.

BOAT SHOW
NOW NAVY PIER

Old Salt Casts Weather Eye on Boat Show

An ancient mariner who sailed the seven seas in the days of clippers and full riggers found a strange harbor last night at the opening of the second Chicago Boat show on the upper deck of Navy pier. And when he set sail for home it was with the conviction that the modern sailor has an easy time of it, what with touching a gadget or two and being 30 or 40 miles from his home port within an hour.

The elderly one came to scoff, but remained to praise. He'll never lose the memory of fo'c'sle days, but after viewing more than 100 different types of boats, together with countless accessories, fittings and engines, he admitted that everything in the show was shipshape.

The majority of boats were power craft, but one exhibit of two sailboats brought a wistful gleam to the old sailor's eyes.

46 Footer for Phil Wrigley.

During the course of the ancient mariner's cruise up and down the avenues of displays, he sighted more than one boat to make him anchor for a minute or two of admiration. There was the big 46 foot commuter built recently for Philip K. Wrigley with its handsome cabin and two engines capable of making a speed of 28 miles an hour.

There were boats of every decription for the old sailor's inspection and he discovered that a boat could be bought from $50 to $60,000, depending upon one's purse. And when he became curious about speed, he was informed that some of the skinny little outboard boats would travel at 50 miles an hour under the proper pressure, not to mention the feats of such drivers as Gar Wood and Kaye Don with their specially constructed 100 mile per hour engines.

Outboard Association Meets Monday.

He also was told that these same insignificant looking little boats have become so important within the last decade that their owners have become the National Outboard association, the racing commission of which will hold its annual meeting in the offices of the association at 201 North Wells street Monday morning.

Indians Pound Thomas; Beat White Sox, 8-1

Appling couldn't make the grab. This filled the bases and Burnett emptied them with a triple to right. The triple marked the finish of Thomas, but two more scored before McKain could halt the fuss. This pair of markers resulted from Fonseca's single off McKain's shin and Averill's homer into the first floor of the right field pavilion.

The Indians were considerate enough to give McKain a breathing spell in the third and fourth, but were back in action in the fifth, one scoring. Hodapp led off with a two base bang down the left field line. Vosmik lined into Reynolds' hands. Falk aimed a single into right field and Hodapp ran home with the Indians' last run. After this McKain yielded only one hit, a single by Detore with one out in the ninth.

Vic Frasier, who was bumped off the rubber in Cleveland last week, will attempt to make amends in the final of the series today.. Brown will start for Peckinpaugh.

BRIEF SUSPENSE HERE FOLLOWS PYNCHON NEWS

Chicago Market Calm as Confusion Ends.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Five minutes of exciting uncertainty followed the announcement yesterday on the Chicago exchange of the Pynchon suspension. Stocks in which the house was active sagged moderately. Traders watched the tape anxiously for a New York reaction and when it became apparent that no general selling would develop the confusion cleared up and business was carried on in a routine fashion for the remainder of the session.

A few big blocks of Middle West Utilities involving 1,000 and 1,500 shares changed hands and the issue dipped below 20 for the first time in several weeks. Another stock with Insull affiliations, Associated Telephone Utilities, sank more than 3 points, but snapped back on aggressive support and closed practically unchanged.

Closes at Previous Low.

The Utilities Power and Light issues were off slightly, but not actively traded in. On light trade General Theaters gave a point to close at its previous low quotations of the year of 5.

The generally calm manner in which the news of the suspension was received was gratifying to the market community. But most traders were a bit wary of making any predictions on the market's immediate future.

The extent of the collateral liquidation by the banks made necessary by the suspension is conjectural and the next few days probably will tell what remains to be done.

The Borg-Warner corporation, whose stock was one of the leaders in the bull movement earlier in the year, yesterday issued its quarterly earnings report. The statement showed that the firm failed to cover present dividend requirements on the common stock. Net profits for the three months ended March 31 were $334,667, equivalent after deductions for minority interest in subsidiaries and preferred dividends to 21 cents a share on the common stock. The firm now pays 25 cents quarterly on its common.

Current Assets $16,675,140.

In the first quarter of 1930 the company had net profits of $1,097,811, equivalent to 85 cents a share. The consolidated balance sheet as of March 31 showed current assets of $16,675,140, and current liabilities, $3,948,350.

C. S. Davis, president, said that the company's business has shown increases each month this year and that April will show an increase over March. Second quarter profits should exceed those for the first three months by a substantial margin, he added.

OFFICIAL WEATHER FORECAST.

The official forecast for today and tomorrow and yesterday's table of records follow:

Indiana—Mostly cloudy, probably occasional light rain Saturday and Sunday; no decided change in temperature.

Lower Michigan—Mostly unsettled Saturday and Sunday, probably occasional light rain, slightly warmer Saturday along Lake Michigan.

Upper Michigan—Partly cloudy to cloudy Saturday and Sunday, probably local rain or snow; not much change in temperature.

Wisconsin—Partly cloudy to cloudy Saturday and Sunday, probably local showers; no decided change in temperature.

PYNCHON & CO. IS SUSPENDED BY EXCHANGES

Assets, Liabilities Around 40 Million.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 24.—The old established New York Stock exchange firm of Pynchon & Co., operating headquarters at 111 Broadway, with branch offices in Chicago, Milwaukee and eight other cities connected with private wires and with additional offices in London and Paris, was suspended from the stock exchange this afternoon for insolvency.

Both assets and liabilities of the house were estimated in Wall street at somewhere in excess of $40,000,000. It was reported that the loans of the firm this morning stood at $38,000,000.

Announcement of the suspension of the firm, one of the largest wire houses in the country, was made from the rostrum of the stock exchange in the last hour of trading this afternoon.

Shortly after the stock exchange acted the New York Curb exchange also suspended the firm for insolvency and announcement also was made of the retirement of the firm from clearing membership in the Stock Clearing corporation for the same cause.

Has 22 Partners.

Wall street, which formerly regarded Pynchon & Co. as a fixture in the market place, was not greatly surprised, since there had been rumors for many months indicating that all was not assured in the future outlook for the firm's business. During the forenoon there were reports of last minute conferences with bankers to decide upon what should be done.

The firm, according to the latest stock exchange membership directory, had twenty-two partners, two of whom were members of the exchange.

The firm specialized in recent years in public utility securities and was also a large factor in the market for internal and external foreign bonds, although this section of its business has not been as active in recent years.

Pynchon & Co. is the second New York stock exchange firm to be suspended for insolvency this year. Loren E. Anderson & Co., whose head office was in St. Louis, was suspended on Jan. 22. Five firms were suspended by the stock exchange for insolvency last year. They were Toody & Co., J. A. Sinto & Co., Prince & Whitely, C. Clothier, Jones & Co., and Bauer, Pogue, Pond & Vivian.

Hit by Security Decline.

A statement issued by the firm explained that it was hoped its embarrassments would be temporary and that the primary reason for the suspension was the decline in a number of securities in which the house was interested.

The statement said: "Due to the sharp decline in a number of securities in which this firm and its customers actively dealt, the firm was forced today to consent to its suspension by the New York Stock exchange.

"It is hoped and believed that the suspension is temporary and that with the return to anything like normal values of the securities in which this firm is interested, no creditor of the firm will suffer any loss. Already assurances have been given by banking and other creditors of their support, and every effort will be made for a reorganization of the firm with new capital at the earliest possible date.

"Pending an audit that is being made no definite statement of assets and liabilities can now be made. Even with the existing abnormally low prices of securities the value of the assets is practically equal to the liabilities."

DRAWS ANXIOUS CROWD

BY O. A. MATHER.

The Chicago branch of Pynchon & Co. at 112 West Adams street was closed yesterday afternoon simultaneously with the closing of the New York main offices. At the same time the firm was suspended from the Chicago stock exchange, the Chicago Board of Trade, and the Chicago curb exchange following the action of the New York stock exchange.

Closing of the Chicago office drew a crowd of anxious customers of the firm, as well as curious onlookers, that for a time almost blocked traffic in Adams street. The Chicago police force made the same announcement to customers that was issued in New York. At the banks it was said that the firm's loans in Chicago were amply secured by collateral. At the Board of Trade it was said that the firm's open grain trades were relatively small and that it had deposits amply sufficient to cover any liability of its customers.

Interested in Fox Film.

The failure of Pynchon & Co. was attributed in La Salle street largely to its interest in the securities of the Fox Film corporation and the General Theaters Equipment, Inc., which controls Fox Film. The firm held second position in the syndicate which underwrote the senior financing for General Theaters Equipment in 1929 and 1930. It was not a member, however, of the syndicate that offered the $30,000,000 Fox Film debentures this month.

The drastic decline of General Theaters Equipment bonds and stock, as well as Fox Film stock, depreciated the firm's holdings of these securities. It was related yesterday that last June when the firm faced financial difficulties it was helped out by a loan of $2,000,000 made by New York banks.

However, the further shrinkage in the value of its holdings brought about a new crisis in the last few days. The firm's circumstances were reviewed by New York and Chicago bankers at an all night session that ended yesterday morning and further financial aid was refused,although it was said that Harley L. Clarke, president of Fox Film and General Theaters Equipment, as well as of the Utilities Power and Light corporation, offered to join in a sizeable new loan.

The firm was founded in 1895 as Raymond, Pynchon & Co., and became Pynchon & Co. in 1917, when George Raymond withdrew. It has held memberships in 16 exchanges in New York, Chicago, and Liverpool, and had three offices in New York, domestic branch offices in Chicago, Milwaukee, and Battle Creek, Mich., and foreign offices in London, Paris, Liverpool, and Manchester. There are twenty-two partners.

New York Exchange Out to Correct Abuses: Whitney

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., April 24.—A new course of action to force listed corporations to correct instances of misrepresentation in their financial reports was announced today by Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock exchange, speaking on "Business Honesty" before the Philadelphia chamber of commerce.

Mr. Whitney also predicted action by the stock exchange to call the attention of the public to the possible dangers connected with fixed investment trusts. The strongest penalty for a corporation violating its listing agreement with the stock exchange by using unethical methods is to strike the stock of the corporation from the list of the exchange. In effect, the new method of procedure will be for the governing committee to give public warning that unless abuses charged against any corporation are remedied, the stock will be stricken.

Public More Critical.

"During the days of prosperity, when each annual report showed larger and larger earnings," Mr. Whitney remarked, "stockholders were content to reflect the existing management without scrutinizing the methods which had produced such satisfactory results. The year 1930 has made stockholders and investors more critical.

"Practices which passed unnoticed in earlier years are now examined critically and from the number of complaints which the exchange has received it is clear that the owners of American business are insisting not only upon financial results, but also upon frank and open business methods.

"The exchange has constantly urged corporations to have their accounts audited by independent auditors. It has also endeavored to secure the prompt publication of financial reports so that stockholders and investors might know as rapidly as possible the results of operation. In a number of instances, particularly in 1930, corporations have been slow to meet these requirements, annual reports have sometimes been delayed for months. Semi-annual and quarterly reports of income have often been published so late as to be of no practical value.

Cites Delays.

"In almost every case of unexplained delay, the ultimate publication has shown there was no just or proper reason why these reports were not given to the public more promptly. In some cases also unaudited annual reports have been published containing figures which differed substantially from the reports submitted by accountants and this has happened even when correct statements were in the possession of the company at the time the unaudited statements were given to the public.

"The exchange has always pointed out the danger of confusing extraordinary and nonrecurring items with current income, and yet there have been a number of instances where assets have been revalued and the amount of the writeup has been included in income without notice to stockholders that it did not represent part of current earnings.

Finds Abuses.

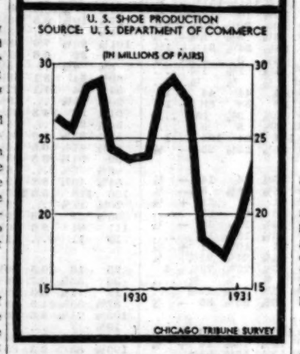
"It is hard to justify practices of this kind, but, providentially, they are rare in American business. On the other hand, it has been a great shock to discover that methods which tend to confuse or mislead stockholders have been used by corporations whose securities are dealt in on the exchange.

"We have hesitated, therefore, to strike a stock from the list, but we shall not longer tolerate a situation in which the officers and directors of a listed company may continue to withhold from their stockholders necessary information. The committee on stock list has sought, and I believe has found, a means of bringing these unsound practices forcefully to the attention of stockholders so that they may take remedial action.

Adopt New Policy.

"Let me say definitely that hereafter, when the committee on stock list is advised and has determined that a corporation is employing a method which, in its opinion, is unsound or is violating an important agreement with the exchange, it will report the facts to the governing committee and will request that committee to give public notice that unless the abuse is promptly remedied the stock of the corporation will be stricken from the list. If such a request is made to the governing committee, I am confident it will give the notice and will publish a brief statement why the action was taken. Stockholders will be given an adequate opportunity to compel the management to change the objectionable practice before the stock is striken from the list, and if a proper change is promptly made the security may remain upon the exchange."

SHOE PRODUCTION HAS TURNED UPWARD



LEE SEES RYS. FITTED BEST TO CO-ORDINATE ALL TRANSPORT TYPES

Cleveland, O., April 24. — (AP) — Co-ordination of all types of public transportation services was described by Elisha Lee, vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad, here today, as the idea of American railroads for a solution of the complicated problems of modern transportation.

Mr. Lee outlined the coördination proposal in an address before the convention of the National Petroleum association, and said it would accomplish its purpose by eliminating waste and uneconomic competition, and by improving transportation services and lowering their cost to the public.

"We believe the railroad companies from their long experience as carriers are best fitted to accomplish this," Mr. Lee said. "We do not, however, claim for the railroads any right of monopoly, but merely the privilege of attempting the job without hampering and unsound restrictions, or the handicap of discrimination or subsidized competition."

Mr. Lee told the oil men that "the public is entitled to the full benefit of every real advance in the art of transportation, no matter by what agency it may be rendered." He added, however, that "the day has long passed when railroads should be looked upon as limited to the rails alone."

Urging the right of the railroads to enter into the fields of motor truck, bus, airplane, waterway, pipe line, and other types of transportation, Mr. Lee said: "If the railroads can have access to all agencies and avenues of transport upon the same terms and conditions as all other interests, we shall have nothing whatever of which we can justly complain."

Mr. Lee said he was not speaking officially for the railroads in general, but that he did for the Pennsylvania, and that he has "many friends in the official families of other railroads whose attitude I know and it does not differ widely from ours."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TRADE REVIEWS REPORT MIXED BUSINESS TRENDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 25.—Mixed trends in general business during the week, without any significant alterations, were reported today by various trade reviews.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s summary said no reversal of the recent situation has been observed and gains in business, while in certain instances well defined, were restricted in scope. In this connection seasonal factors are operative and the unusual conditions of readjustment add to the contraction of activity that usually develops at this time. The disposition to proceed slowly is virtually general and current trade is for needs actually in sight, or for which there is a clear prospect.

"Despite the rather pessimistic tinge to the sentiment visible during the last week," says Bradstreet's, "the actual changes scored in trade seem strikingly small, and in one direction at least, that is reports from crops, a fairly perceptible gain is to be noted.

"Out of reports from forty centers, some undeniably drab, it may be deduced that wholesale and jobbing trade has made a slight advance, while retail trade and most industrial reports have pointed to the maintenance of the preceding week's quiet to fair conditions."

Depression in Japan Checks Wheat Imports

Millers in Japan are reported to have purchased sufficient supplies of wheat to meet requirements until next harvest. The bulk of foreign wheat was purchased from Canada and Australia at prices considerably under American quotations. Total flour stocks in Japan April 1 were larger than normal. Milling conditions were unfavorable, which resulted in curtailed home demand, general depression and cheap rice also being important factors, as announced by Consul General Gassel.

Defend Futures Trading at Canadian Grain Quiz

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

Chicago grain brokers and other business men interested in this city's grain dealing and handling industry appeared one by one before the royal grain commission of Canada yesterday at the Drake hotel to give their opinions as to the effect grain futures trading has upon the price to the farmer producer.

The session was held behind closed doors, but in an intermission at noon Sir Josiah Stamp, chairman of the group of three conducting the investigation, reported that the Chicago grain men had talked freely and some of them were distinctly of the opinion that futures trading affected the price to the producer, giving the farmer a better price.

Protect Own Interests.

"Naturally they want to protect their interests by such statements, but their talks today were frankness itself," said the chairman, who is president of the Bank of London and chairman of the London, Midland and Scottish railway. "We discussed views on the purpose of hedging and the movement of grain. Subject to differences in market conditions, we have obtained in Chicago views that are comparable to those obtained in previous conferences of this kind in Winnipeg and Minneapolis."

He indicated that a report signed by himself and by Chief Justice W. Sanford Evans of Winnipeg and Chief Justice Frederick P. Brown of Regina, Saskatchewan, will be submitted in Ottawa when it is completed.

Among those who appeared voluntarily before the Canadian commission yesterday were L. N. Perrin, chairman of the business conduct committee of the Chicago Board of Trade; John R. Mauff of a Chicago brokerage house, who explained the commission business here in its relation to the proportion of speculation as compared to the actual amount of grain involved; James Norris, a broker; E. L. Glasser, broker; and Fred Uhlmann, a director of the Chicago Board of Trade.

Others Offer Information.

John A. Bunnell, past president of the Chicago Board of Trade; Arthur Cutten, Canadian born large scale trader in Chicago; James C. Murray, president of the Chicago Board of Trade; A. C. Harris and J. W. Badenoch, Chicago dealers; and L. A. Fitz, grain exchange supervisor, also were among those who had agreed to offer information and who were called upon to confer with the commission.

Few of the men volunteered information as they retired from the session. They had been told that they could discuss the situation freely after leaving the meeting room if they so desired. On this basis, Fred Uhlmann reported he had told the Canadians that he considered grain futures trading a benefit not only to grain men but to farmers, bankers, exporters, and the community as a whole. He pointed out that Germany years ago had abolished such trading until farmers demanded that the market practice be reëstablished to permit their grain receiving better prices.

Sir Josiah Stamp, who served as an English member of the Dawes reparations committee, is known world wide as an authority on economics. He leaves Sunday night for New York, where the commission's report will be sent to Ottawa before he returns to England.

CHRYSLER CORP. REPORTS LOSS IN 1ST QUARTER

New York, April 24.—(AP)—The Chrysler corporation experienced an increasing demand for automobiles during the first quarter of 1931, it reported today, but did not attain sufficient momentum to yield a profit.

For the period the corporation reported a net loss of $979,927, after full provision for depreciation and interest charges, against a net profit of $180,717 in the comparable period of 1930.

Through an increase in cash and marketable securities and car shipments against bill of lading drafts the corporation was able to report an increase of $4,849,963 in its net current assets on March 31, as compared with the close of 1930.

W. P. Chrysler, president and chairman of the board, in his statement to stockholders, noted a gradual improvement in business activity generally, which was reflected in an increasing demand for Chrysler products.

Production schedules were sharply increased during the first quarter. At the same time the corporation's inventory was cut $500,000, which Mr. Chrysler cited as an indication that "satisfactory progress has been made not only in effecting a more efficient and economical operation but also in more accurate adjustment of production to current demand."

STANDARD OIL OF NEW YORK 1930 NET $40,246,198

New York, April 24.—(AP)—Standard Oil company of New York reported that net earnings from operations for 1930 amounted to $16,496,726. However, non-recurring profit from the sale of gas properties brought the total net profit for the year to $40,246,198, a gain over net income of $38,150,849 reported for 1929.

Net earnings from operations amounted to approximately 93 cents a share on the capital stock, but the addition of the non-recurring profit brought the per share earnings to about $2.25, slightly in excess of the $2.23 a share reported for 1929.

The balance showed a substantial increase in cash to $22,908,939 as of Dec. 31, last, compared with $6,813,843 at the end of 1929. Total current assets at the end of 1930 were carried as $238,478,763, compared with $226,910,445 at the end of 1929. Current liabilities were reported as $38,178,952, compared with $47,356,122 at the close of 1929.

Freeport Texas.

Please send me information regarding the stock of Freeport Texas, which is listed on the New York Stock Exchange.—F. C. J.

Freeport Texas company is one of the two largest sulphur producers. This company and Texas Gulf Sulphur turn out about 75 per cent of the world's supply.

Effective in 1930, the company changed its fiscal year to coincide with the calendar year. Net income for 1930 was $3,124,186, or $4.28 per share on 729,344 shares of capital stock, including 15,200 shares of treasury stock. For the twelve months ended Nov. 30, 1929, net income was $4,085,042, or $5.60 per share. Net profit for December, 1929, was $359,914. As the company does not carry the value of sulphur reserves on its books, no deductions for depletion or development expenses are made.

For four out of the seven years from 1919 to 1925 inclusive losses were shown and in no one year was net income over $800,000. Net income for the 1928 year was $3,275,576; for 1927, $3,735,600, and for 1926, $1,809,041.

On Dec. 31, 1930, current assets were $10,137,840 and current liabilities were $4,667,728, leaving a net working capital of $5,470,112, against $7,230,037 on Nov. 30, 1929. Cash alone was $3,431,763. The company has no funded debt.

In February, 1931, it was announced that a controlling interest in Cuban-American Manganese corporation was acquired. Initial annual capacity will be about 100,000 tons of ore.

With the dividend payable June 1, 1931, to stock of record May 15, 1931, the common will be on an annual dividend basis of $3 a share. It had been on an annual $4 basis since May, 1927. An extra of $1 per share was paid in 1930.

The maintenance of a satisfactory price for sulphur is essential for favorable earnings.

The capital stock is somewhat speculative.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 24.—Stocks beat a zigzag course in today's market. Price swings were narrow as a general rule and trading hit a leisurely pace, the turnover barely topping the 2,000,000 share mark. An undertone of nervousness was apparent and the two opposing speculative forces were watching each other closely for any new moves.

Announcement of the failure of one of the street's biggest brokerage houses, Pynchon & Co., caused a flurry of selling about the beginning of the last hour, but it was followed by a turn for a rally as the bear element proceeded to bid in its short lines and the final tables showed a preponderance of gains for the day.

From the constructive viewpoint the big feature of the session was the disappointing failure of the market to carry through on the rally which developed yesterday afternoon. Brokerage house experts have been assuring their clientèle for many weeks that a selling climax probably would be necessary to put a period to the slow dribble of liquidation which has been carrying the list downward with such dogged persistence and that this all important development could be counted on to give way to a technical rally of more less substantial proportions.

Hoped for Upturn.

The heavy selling which broke about midday yesterday was generally hailed as the expected "climax," and many traders came down to the brokerage rooms expecting to see a general upswing in prices. Evidently, however, everybody was just as bent on letting the other fellow start things, and so it turned out that the party developed into one of those "watchful waiting" affairs, with the market playing the rôle of the little lost orphan.

In the face of all this prices took the easiest way out and in a majority of cases this proved to be toward lower levels. Westinghouse Electric yielded to the lowest price in years, and Texas corporation and Anaconda Copper bumped new bottoms for the year along with many lesser lights of the list. Goodyear Tire was heavily sold and the close found it with a net loss of more than 3 points on the day despite an effort to cut it in the last hour rally.

Rails Do Better.

The rails got off to a mixed start, but most of them improved—for a change—as the session wore on, and some of them acted up quite nicely in the end. Atchison varied the monotony of its recent poor performance by hopping up some 6½ points. Union Pacific edified the faithful in its train by registering an advance of more than 5 points, Norfolk and Western gained 2, Erie 1½, and New Haven 2½ points. Southern Pacific could not make the grade at all, however, and wound up with a 3 point loss against its account

Utility shares did much better than usual, on the other hand, gains of 1 to 2 points bobbing up with frequency in the final roster, with American Water Works, American Power and Light, Consolidated Gas, North American, and Standard Gas prominent among the pacemakers.

The chemicals were also higher most of the time, and some of the oils were a little better liked. Tidewater rose 4 points on a single transaction.

Montgomery Ward Reports $1,783,674 Quarter Loss

Montgomery Ward & Co. reports a loss for the first quarter of the year of $1,783,674, as compared with a loss of $2,318,260 in the first quarter of 1930. A reduction in expenses of over $2,000,000 more than offset the decline in gross revenue caused by a sales recession of 13.78 per cent from the corresponding months last year.

FIND 'PAINLESS' TAXES AT LAST BECOME PAINFUL

Scrutator Cites Hurts of Public Spending.

BY SCRUTATOR.

The purchaser of a gallon of gasoline or a package of cigarets can readily compute the amount that he pays in direct taxes.

He may think that is all. It isn't. He has no means of figuring the portion of the purchase price that represents indirect taxes imposed in more remote quarters which are passed along to him by the manufacturer and distributor in the form of higher prices.

Nor does he know how much he pays in taxes when he buys a suit of clothes, a kilowatt hour of electricity, a radio, a railroad ticket, a box of candy, or a bag of cement.

There are around 1,500,000 voters in Cook county, but only about 315,000 personal property tax bills are issued annually. The nontaxpayer too often is inclined to believe that high taxes do not affect him.

Leads to Inefficiency.

The tendency on the part of the voter to measure the effect of taxation on his pocket book by the amount he says directly leads him to elect spendthrift public officials and endorse the squandering of government funds. His resistance is especially weak when politicians tell him that increased public spending will create more jobs and a greater volume of business.

He fails to see that in the end the bill will be passed back to him for payment.

In the last fifteen years although the national income has increased only 135 per cent government expenditures have risen 300 per cent, according to the National Industrial Conference Board. More than half of this money has been spent by local governments. State and local governments together account of 68½ per cent of the entire cost of government in the United States.

In the years from 1922 to 1928 the actual net bonded debt of state and local governments jumped 76 per cent.

Now that the piper is coming along for his pay the general apathy toward the subject of public spending is giving way to some concern.

Would Restore "Nuisances."

Senator Bingham of Connecticut proposes to curb political extravagance by restoring "nuisance" taxes in order that a larger number of citizens may be brought to realize that when legislators go on a spending spree the bill eventually is paid by the rank and file.

The United States Chamber of Commerce at its annual meeting in Atlantic City at the end of this month will consider a proposal to undertake a study of the final effect of taxation—federal, state, and local. The idea behind this proposal is to bring out the proportion of taxes represented of the amounts expended for food, clothing, shelter, etc.

The Illinois Chamber of Commerce is also inaugurating a study that impinges on this question. A committee headed by Dean Charles M. Thompson of the University of Illinois is undertaking to map out exactly how taxes are leveled under the present system in Illinois and in what manner the funds obtained thereby are spent.

Standard Oil Official Assails Overproduction

The economic difficulties in the oil industry are rooted in overproduction and consequent pressure of crude oil seeking a market, in the opinion of W. T. Holliday, president of Standard Oil Company of Ohio, writing in Trade Winds, published by the Union Trust Company of Cleveland. "The essential difficulty is that the drilling of new wells continues regardless of the status of crude oil supply," he writes, "both above ground and potential. In most industries, overproduction forces the individual to stop producing, but the speculative element in the oil industry checks that force."

LOOP CLOTHIERS LEASE NEW SITE ON WASHINGTON

BY AL CHASE.

One of the oldest of the popular priced clothing chain stores, Foreman & Clark, which has had its Chicago headquarters for several years at the northwest corner of State and Jackson, yesterday signed leases for space at the northwest corner of Washington and Dearborn for a term of years.

Albert H. Wetten & Co. were brokers for all parties. It will occupy temporarily, when its State street lease expires on April 30, the ground-floor store at 102 North Dearborn. The new store, upstairs, will be ready for permanent occupancy about June 1.

L. G. Freeman, for many years manager of the State and Jackson store of Foreman & Clark, leased the store at 52 West Washington street, which is west of Dearborn street, for a term of years. This will be used as a stairway entrance to the second and third floors above, each of which is 50x80. This space was leased from the Tuthill King estate. The rental was not disclosed.

Lease Space Adjoining.

In addition Foreman & Clark have leased the entire second floor, 72x80, of the building adjoining to the north at 108-114 North Dearborn street from Nathan K. and Meyer Aranoff for a term of years. This will be opened into the second floor of the corner building, giving the lessees a second floor selling space fronting eighty feet on Washington and 122 feet on Dearborn.

The new quarters are to be extensively remodeled and redecorated and will be under the management of G. A. Smith. The Foreman & Clark concern has several manufacturing plants in the east and has a chain of retail men's clothing stores from coast to coast, fourteen in all. It is stated that several more Chicago outlying stores are contemplated.

Food Market for Evanston.

The North Town Markets, Inc., have leased from Robert D. Cunningham for a twenty year term the building at 810 Church street, Evanston, at an undisclosed rental. The property will be used for a general food market, all under one roof. The property is across from the Field store. Hoffman & Jaffe were attorneys for the lessee. Eugene H. Garnett represented the lessor.

Thomas D. and Laurence J. Duhamel have sold the three story building located at 4631-37 North Racine Avenue, in the Uptown district, to Nicholas Marsch for an undisclosed consideration. The site fronts 100 feet on Racine with an irregular depth. The buildings are operated as a hotel by the Sheridan Park Hotel company and contain seventy rooms. The Bowes Realty company was broker. Miller, Gorham & Wales were attorneys for the purchaser.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 500; hogs, 8,000; sheep, 4,000.

Trading in cattle and lambs was comparatively slow, but prices held generally steady in most cases, while hogs were firm on short receipts. All points reported substantial decreases in hog receipts, resulting in a quick clearance of good grades when shippers came on the market for 7,000 head, the largest Friday shipping orders in several weeks.

The extreme top was $7.35, while the general average was unchanged at $6.85. These prices compare with a top of $7.50 and average of $7.35 at the close of last week. Prices have declined sharply this week. Three of the leading western markets report top hogs slightly below the $7.00 line.

Monday's Hogs Bid $7.20.

Light weight hogs for next Monday's delivery were bid $7.20 on the "to arrive" market yesterday. Hogs averaging 210@260 lbs were bid $6.75 and 260@310 lb heavy grades were bid $6.50. May light were offered at $7.75 and bid $7.25, while June contracts were offered at $8.00 and bid $7.50. September lights were offered at $8.40. Bids of $8.00 were made on medium and heavy grades for September delivery.

Yesterday's meager supply of 2,000 cattle, hardly enough to test quotations in all branches of the trade, were peddled out on a "catch as catch can" market that was considered mostly steady, with the general selling the previous day. Much of the gain scored this week has been erased. However, some of the best offerings are still selling 25@50c above a week ago.

Good 832 lb yearlings topped the market yesterday at $9.65, the next highest price being $8.40, paid for 625 lb heifers. The demand shows a decided preference for light weight stock.

Sheep Receipts Large.

Sheep receipts yesterday were augmented by offerings carried over from Thursday's unsatisfactory trade, but slimmen finally held bulk of offerings to a steady basis. Considerable price lagging resulted in a dull, topheavy opening market. Most handy weights sold around $9.50, shippers paying upwards of $9.75, while 95@97 lb lambs brought $9.00@9.25. Aged sheep and yearlings were slow and steady. Sheep receipts at seven leading markets at 2,000 compared with 54,000 a week ago, but that was the only larger Friday total since January.

Probable receipts at Chicago for next Monday are estimated from 35,000 to 54,000. E. S. Waterbury marked 1,800, F. M. Sherwood 50,000, S. Lund 2,000, J. T. Brown 44,000, J. M. Waters and C. Southwick 43,000, F. Knutzen 42,000, G. McClean 41,000, O. W. Chandler, W. T. Reneker, and H. S. Turner 40,000, R. B. Ellis 38,000, and C. Zetas 35,000.
